STORM WROUGHT HAVOC IN OREGON AND WASHINGTON

Two Ships Have Been Reported in Distress Off the Coast—An Airplane and Its Occupants Crashed Into the Sea—Witnesses Report That the Plane Disappeared as Soon as It Struck the Water—Residents of Coquille, Ore., Report Twenty Miles of Territory Under Water.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 1—(AP)—With two ships off the Washington and Oregon coast in distress, an airplane and its occupants reported having crashed into the sea, and residents of Coquille, Ore., reporting twenty miles of territory under water, a storm which played havoc for the past 48 hours continued with lingering fury today.

Coast guardsmen from Hoquiam, Wash., were out today attempting to locate an airplane which was reported in the surf last night at Grayland, twenty miles south of here. The plane flying north disappeared as soon as it struck the surface, witnesses reported.

At Marshfield in southwestern Oregon, reports were received saying that flood waters in the Coquille valley had reached their crest as a result of the run-off from the Coquille river, that stream jumped four feet overnight, making it seven feet above the normal flood stage.

The flood water soverran the railroad tracks between Coquille and Myrtle Point, placing that area under four feet of water. Farmers who prepared last night to move their families to higher ground, were watching the river today to determine what move they would make tonight.

Train service south of Marshfield was suspended because of the flood conditions which caused slides near Mapleton. Farther south the Sixes river, driven to high marks by storm waters, was cutting a new channel near the Roosevelt highway in northern Curry county.

At Portland reports were received from the coast guard cutter Haida saying that craft had reached the distressed schooner Helen B. Sterling, a six masted vessel. A line was thrown abroad and the schooner was reported in town bound for the Columbia river.

The Sterling caught in the full fury of the storm had been riding at anchor off Heceta Head, lashed by the winds.

Radio messages intercepted here indicated that the coast guard cutter Snohomish was searching for the schooner H. V. Kruse, last reported riding out the storm on the southern Washington coast.

SIFTING TESTIMONY OF ALBERT B. FALL

EL PASO, Tex., April 1—(AP)—Directing his attack on the testimony of Albert B. Fall, given in a deposition to be used by Harry F. Sinclair in fighting charges of conspiring with Fall to defraud the government in the Teapot Dome oil lease, chiefly to Fall's famous McLean letter to the senate oil committee, Atlee Pomerene, government counsel today probed exhaustively into statements contained in the communication.

In the letter, written early in the oil scandal, the then secretary of the interior said that he had borrowed $100,000 from Ned McLean, Washington publisher and that he had not received money from either Doheny or Sinclair for oil leases.

Later it was developed that McLean had loaned checks for $100,000 that were never cashed and were returned. The prosecutor sought detailed explanations of these statements, and at times members of Fall's family said, Fall's voice rose in sharp and emphatic answers.

The cross examination by Pomerene which ended this afternoon closed the taking of Fall's deposition, made necessary by the severance of the trials of Fall himself and Sinclair and postponement of the Fall trial because of his serious illness.

CROWDS FILE PAST BIER OF SENATOR F. B. WILLIS

DELAWARE, Ohio, April 1—(AP)—For two hours this afternoon the people of Delaware, who turned out Friday night to acclaim their favorite son in an old fashioned homecoming celebration, filed past the bier of Senator Frank B. Willis.

There were few political leaders in the line of callers at the Willis home today. They were close friends and neighbors, who recalled instances of the days when he studied law at Ohio Wesleyan university here, for the most part.

Large wreaths bearing purple crepe streamers today were hung along the Main street which glowed with red fire Friday night as the townsmen marched to Gray chapel at Ohio Wesleyan to greet their favorite son.

MRS. COOLIDGE DINED WITH GOV. AND MRS. TRUMBULL

PLAINVILLE, Conn., April 1—(AP)—Taking a respite from the constant watch she has kept at her mother's bedside, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge motored down from Northampton, Mass., to dine with Governor and Mrs. John H. Trumbull tonight. Mrs. Coolidge was accompanied by her physician, and by John Coolidge and Miss Florence Trumbull who drove to Northampton for her. John was an overnight guest of the Trumbull's last night.

Mrs. Coolidge and John were driven back to Massachusetts, later in the evening. John will return to school tomorrow.

NEGRO WAS FATALLY STABBED IN ANSONIA

ANSONIA, April 1—(AP)—His throat slashed and with blood flowing freely from a jagged wound on the left side of his face, Franda Hills, 35, a Negro of 13 Colburn street was admitted to a hospital early today and died several hours after. Wiley Mills, 38, of 187 Clifton street, was taken in custody in connection with the affair, and eight witnesses are also being held.

Hills is said to have made an antemortem statement, naming Mills as his assailant.

The two men had been guests at a party given by Ike Keel, of 82 Broad street last night.

WEATHER UNFAVORABLE FOR DUBLIN-NEW YORK FLIGHT

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 2—(AP)—(Monday)—Although the weather reports were more favorable at midnight than for several days, they were note sufficiently promising to enable the German plane Bremen to start its trans-Atlantic flight Monday morning. Captain Hermann Koehl, pilot of the plane, and his companions, Baron Von Huenefeld and Arthur Spindler, are getting tired of waiting. They said they will start Tuesday if conditions are at all suitable.

SIX FOREST FIRES RAGING IN A NATIONAL FOREST

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 1—(AP)—The most serious of six forest fires raging in the Ouachita National Forest reserve tonight was sweeping over Fodderstack mountain beyond control of service men and volunteers. Six counties have been invaded by the flames which destroyed approximately 1,000 acres of timber on the reserve.

INTERNATIONAL AIR RACE MOVEMENT UNDER WAY

DUBLIN, April 1.—(AP)—An international air race to America between French and German planes from Baldonnel airdrome is in prospect. A report reached Dublin tonight that a French aviator is negotiating with authorities of the Irish Free State for use of the field where Baron Von Huenefeld's plane, the Bremen, has been weather-bound for a week.

The report is that Maurice Drouhin, who was engaged last year by Charles A. Levine, for the Paris-New York hop that never materialized, is the French pilot who desires to make Ireland the jumping off place for a westward flight. The report is that he will fly to Ireland soon, perhaps next Tuesday.

Authorities at Baldonnel field declined to comment on this report, but it gained credence because of the attitude of secrecy which the airdrome officials have held since before the arrival of the Bremen. That secrecy was so strict that Dublin had no advance word that the Bremen was coming, the appearance of the plane above the city last Monday being the first knowledge Ireland had of the project.

INJURED WHILE TRYING TO AVOID A COLLISION

THOMASTON, Conn., April 1.—(AP)—While trying to avoid colliding with another machine on the Torrington-Thomaston road, John Schwartz, of Torrington was pinned under the machine when it turned over this afternoon. He was taken to the Charlotte Hungerford hospital suffering from internal injuries and shock. X-ray pictures will be taken to ascertain his condition. Mrs. Julia Cook, a passenger of the auto driven by Reinhold Appel, received a leg injury.

EASTER DRESS REHEARSAL AT ATLANTIC CITY SUNDAY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 1.—(AP)—Although the day was cloudy and a cold wind swept the resort, record breaking throngs participated today in the annual Palm Sunday dress rehearsal for the Easter style revue of the boardwalk.

The great majority of promenaders and roller chair riders were muffled up in winter coats, but nearly all the women appeared in new straw hats. There was a great variety of colors, blues of various shades predominating, with the tight fitting cloche hats as popular as ever.

300 FOREIGNERS ARE FACING DEPORTATION

Immigration officers said the members of the local group were to be deported because of criminal records, illegal entry or insanity.

BELIEVE WOMAN DROWNED IN THE HOUSATONIC RIVER

BROOKFIELD, Conn., April 1—(AP)—The Housatonic river is believed to hold the secret of the disappearance of Mrs. Charles Petitt who left her home Thursday to visit a relation and has not been seen since. The woman's gloves, hat, shoes and coat have been found in various places along the river bank and it is now thought that she committed suicide.

Mrs. Petitt was in ill health for almost a year before her disappearance but had never appeared morbid.

CONDITION OF MRS. LEMIRA GOODHUE IS UNCHANGED

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 1—(AP)—The condition of Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, mother of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, was described as "unchanged" today by Dr. J. E. Hayes, her physician. He said yesterday that the patient was resting fairly comfortable.

Mrs. Coolidge visited Dickinson hospital during the morning and remained at her mother's bedside until early afternoon. When she left, she told attendants she would probably return later in the day.

LINDBERGH AND PARTY ARRIVED AT DALLAS, TEX.

DALLAS, Tex., April 1—(AP)—Colonel Charles Lindbergh, flying to the Pacific coast, landed here at 9:48 a. m. today from Tulsa, Okla., and after refueling, took off at 10:40 a. m. Neither Colonel Lindbergh nor his three passengers, who were backers of his New York-Paris flight last May, would say where they would spend tonight, but it was learned indirectly that El Paso was the destination, with a stop at Midland, Texas, for refueling.

Quake in Smyrna Caused 60 Deaths

Population is Living in the Open—The Damage Was Widespread and Heavy.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 1—(AP)—Terrifying phenomena accompanied the earthquake which shook Smyrna to its foundations yesterday, according to reports received here. The latest estimates place the number of dead at sixty, all Turks.

Witnesses of the disaster say there was a play of celestial electricity a minute or two before the first shock. The waters of the sea near the shore rose and whirled and receded as if boiling over a hot fire in an open kettle. Terror-stricken inhabitants of the city and suburbs fell to their knees in prayer.

Then came dead silence. Next a tremendous roaring rumble was heard, greater than any thunder. The earth quivered a moment, then shook and fairly rocked. This was the first shock. Eight others followed at short intervals.

Complete reports have not been received from the country districts, but the damage was widespread and heavy. In one village a single family of five members was killed when their home collapsed.

In Smyrna itself the quake seemed to be the most severe in the sections where the most costly buildings stood. Two bank structures tumbled into ruins. Four schools were demolished and practically all of the best shop buildings that have been erected since the great fire of 1922.

The population of Smyrna is prowling the streets, many of them in scant attire, but all fearing to enter the standing skeletons of their homes for clothing.

Kiazim Bey, governor of Smyrna, is organizing relief committees and some work of restoration has already begun. First effort in that direction is being directed towards fissures. One of the largest of these opened along the quay. It was sixty feet long and nearly four feet wide.

BRITISH PARTY TO HUNT FOR TREASURE IN BRAZIL

ARICA, Chile, April 1—(AP)—Quest for several million dollars worth of gold and silver, supposed to have been buried in 1767 by Jesuits at Inquisivi, Brazil, is the object of a British expedition which arrived here today. The treasure hunters are equipped with modern salvage tools.

They disembarked from the Liner Orcoma and boarded a special train for Eucalyptus station, the place nearest to the supposed hiding place of the treasure.

Two hundred tons of material, trucks, motorcycles, oxygen respirators, sounding rods, an electric light plant and all sorts of mining tools were landed from the ship.

The enterprise is based on old documents which apparently have certain historic value, and according to which a large treasure was buried by the Jesuits in 1767, when they were compelled to make a hasty exit from America through a decree issued by Charles the Third, king of Spain.

AMERICANS TOOK PART IN DEVOTIONAL WALK

BETHLEHEM, Palestine, April 1—(AP)—Many Americans took part in the devotional walk made today by hundreds of Christians, including delegates to the International Missionary council, along the six-mile road that leads to Jerusalem, just as Jesus Christ and his disciples did on the first Palm Sunday nearly 1900 years ago.

It was a curious hodge-podge of humanity that streamed along the modern asphalt highway which covers what was a dusty road when trod by the Savior and his followers. In addition to the Christian Pilgrims were many quaint, old world Jews in velvet garbardins who were hurrying to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover. Christians and Jews alike rubbed elbows with Moslems from all over Palestine who are pouring into Jerusalem for their annual Pilgrimage to the reputed tomb of Moses and festival of Nebi Musa.

And at the head of this motley crowd, starting out from Bethany, was a modern automobile which seemed strangely out of place on the road dedicated by a forlorn man who road upon an ass.

TWO SISTERS END THEIR LIVES IN SUICIDE PACT

LOGANSPORT, Ind., April 1.—(AP)—Inseparable in life, two sisters, Esta Hoover, 22, and Seena Hoover, 12, walked to their death in Eel river in a suicide pact, authorities today concluded. The body of Seena was found today by firemen who had been dragging Eel river since yesterday. Esta's body was found yesterday in the water works millrace, 100 yards farther down the river. The two disappeared Wednesday night.

Autopsies on the bodies resulted in the finding that the younger of the two sisters was to have become a mother within two months. Authorities believed this fact resulted in the suicide pact. Frank Hoover, father of the girls, demanded the autopsies.

The finding of two trails of slipper prints leading into the river, from a park a short distance up the river from where the bodies were found was mute evidence that the two sisters waded hand in hand into the river and to their deaths.

TO STUDY SUGAR CANE BREEDING IN NEW GUINEA

WASHINGTON, April 1—(AP)—In an effort to find a sugar cane plant able to withstand diseases which have ravaged present domestic types, three internationally known experts in sugar cane breeding will shortly set out on an airplane expedition to New Guinea under the auspices of the department of agriculture.

The men are Dr. E. W. Brandes, senior pathologist of the office of sugar plants in the department; Dr. Jakob Jeswiet, professor at the University of Wageningen, Holland, and director of that country's sugar experiment station at Java, and C. E. Pemberton, Hawaiian entomologist.

Dr. Jeswiet will arrive in New York tomorrow from Holland and is expected to go to San Francisco by train. Dr. Brandes and Richard Peck, pilot, will fly to the west coast where the plane, a Fairchild cabin type, will be shipped to Sydney, Australia. The men will leave San Francisco by steamer, April 12, to be joined by Pemberton in Honolulu. The study will take from six to eight months.

Survey to be Made of Thames River

With View to Formation of Plans For Its Most Effective Improvement.

WASHINGTON, April 1—(AP)—Flood control work on numerous streams throughout the country will begin immediately and will be pushed by army engineers as rapidly as is practicable under allotments of funds aggregating $1,500,000 announced today by the secretary of war.

The money became available March 23 and Maj. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of engineers, has selected for special attention streams on which floods have occurred and others in which flood control is involved, in order that an early solution of their flood control is involved, in order that an early solution of their flood control problems may be made.

The funds will be used for the beginning of surveys of the streams with a view to the formulation of plans for their most effective improvement from the standpoint of flood control and navigation, in coordination with irrigation and power where these uses may be involved. A reserve of about $500,000 is being held to supplement the allotments for those streams on which progress of surveys may indicate that additional funds can be used profitably this year.

The allotments include:—

Boston district: St. Croix, Machias, Union, Penobscot, Kennebec, Androscoggin, Presumpscot, Saco, Kennebunk, Salmon Falls, and Merrimack—$75,000.

Providence district: Tauntan, Pawtucket, Pawcatuck, Thames, Connecticut and Housatonic—$18,000.

THIS WILL BE A WEEK OF POLITICAL ACTIVITY

WASHINGTON, April 1—(AP)—Off to a rather slow start, the national political campaign is gathering speed that during the next few weeks will show the running qualities of republican and democratic presidential aspirants who are actively bidding for convention delegates.

April is here and the make-up of the Kansas City and Houston conventions, both of them less than three months away, still is very much in the making. Less than one-fifth of the republican delegates and less than one-sixth of the democrats who will have voting credentials at Houston have been chosen.

April, however, will be a month of activity with eight state primaries and party conventions in more than a score of states on its political calendar. During the month, 555 republican delegates, or more than half the number who will be at Kansas City, will be designated.

There will be 1089 delegate votes in the Kansas City convention; 1100 in the democratic gathering. Up to this time, 215 republicans and 164 democrats have been named. Once April is out of the way, 319 republican delegates and 464 democrats will remain to be selected in May and early June.

The April primary season will get under way tomorrow in Michigan where Hoover is seeking the republican preferential vote and Smith the democratic endorsement. As neither has opposition, each is assured the support in convention, at least on early ballots, of Michigan delegates who will be chosen later at party conventions. Michigan will cast 33 votes at Kansas City and 30 at Houston.

On Tuesday, 26 republican and 26 democratic delegates will be selected in the Wisconsin primaries, while in the New York primaries on the same day 83 republican district delegates and 80 democrats—all but the delegates-at-large who will be named later in the month—will be chosen. The New York republican delegation-at-large already has been designated.

INVESTIGATING DEATH OF MISS MARGARET STEWART

CONCORD, Mass., April 1—(AP)—State detectives investigating the death of Miss Margaret Stewart spent several hours in Worcester today questioning the dead girl's brother, Gordon, who refused to come to Concord when notified that his sister's body had been found beside the Cambridge turnpike last Friday under conditions indicating foul play.

Although the officers were non-committal after the interview, it was understood that their questioning brought out the fact that Miss Stewart had quarreled with her brother on several occasions. The altercations were all concerned with Miss Stewart's 10-year-old daughter, Jeanette, whose father was known to him, Gordon said, but whose name he declined to divulge.

The authorities were represented as ready to discount Gordon's statement that the man was now dead and had been a member of a prominent family.

At the same time local authorities were pushing investigations of various "mystery" clues including that furnished by a Boston optometrist who said he saw a man placing a woman in a car on the Lawe Waldon road at 7:15 Friday morning, half a mile from the spot where Miss Stewart's body was found.

MATTERS THAT WILL ENGAGE CONGRESS THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, April 1—(AP)—Speeded on its way by the rapid fire action of the senate last week on the gigantic flood control measure, congress is working toward the end of its legislative tangle in a manner forecasting adjournment well before the opening of the first of the national political conventions in June.

Farm relief and tax reduction demand senate attention this week and with disposal of these two controversial issues, that branch of congress will have cleared its decks of its principle problems for the session.

Then comes the Boulder canyon dam bill and with it the only present threat on the horizon against a smooth road to the end of the session. Senator Ashurst, democrat, of Arizona, whose state is battling the compromise measure of Senator Johnson, republican, California, for construction of the dam, has frankly given notice of a filibuster when that bill comes up.

Meanwhile the house will grind out during the next ten days the last of the regular appropriation bills for this session and may, before the end of the week, tackle the senate $325,000,000 flood control measure which faces early approval with some modifications.

MOVEMENT TO OUST LEWIS AS HEAD OF MINERS' UNION

His Removal is Urged By the "Save the Union Committee"—Action is Sponsored By the Progressive Element in the Miners' Union—Lewis is Accused of Betraying the Union and With Being in League With the Coal Operators.

PITTSBURGH, April 1—(AP)—Removal of John L. Lewis as president of the United Mine Workers of America was urged in a report adopted here today by the national "save the miners union" conference on the first anniversary of the walkout of miners.

The meeting was sponsored by the "save the union committee," described as the progressive element in the miners' union. Delegates from Illinois, Kansas, Pennsylvania, Michigan, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, and Indiana, attended the conference, according to those in charge.

Lewis and what was termed his "reactionary machine" were accused of betraying union miners and with being in league with coal operators.

"The reactionary Lewis machine, corrupt to the core and bound with a thousand ties to the coal operators and the politicians of the republican and democratic parties of the bosses, is strangling the miners' union," the report said and continued:

"By the complete suppression of union democracy through expulsion, blacklist, stealing of elections, packing of conventions, armed terrorism, etc., they balk the will of the rank and file in selecting a new and honest leadership and putting the progressive program into effect. The union is in an acute state of emergency. Drastic methods are necessary to rid it of the baneful influence of the Lewis reactionaries.

"To put the U. M. W. A. into honest hands we propose the following procedure: The save the union movement in the various districts shall at once through the local unions insist upon the calling of special emergency district conventions carefully guarding against any packing methods by the Lewis machine. In the event of refusal or delay by the present district officials in calling such conventions, the respective save the union movements shall themselves call the conventions. At these emergency district conventions the offices of the Lewis machine supporters shall be declared vacant and new officers, representative of the membership, shall be elected.

"In the local unions new officers shall be elected in place of the proved Lewis supporters. After the district conventions the national convention of the U. M. W. A. shall be organized on the same principles."

While the "save-the-union" conference was in session, mass meetings in charge of officials of the United Mine Workers were in progress at numerous mining towns in the Pittsburgh district. Speakers in general spoke words of encouragement to the idle miners and condemned the "save-the-union" conference. Union officials estimated that 7,000 miners and their families attended the meetings.

ALMOST 600 MINERS' FAMILIES FACE EVICTION

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 1.—(AP)—The breach between the union miners and coal operators was as dire today after a year of idleness and its attendant hardships, as it was when 40,000 miners deserted 800 Ohio mines of major importance one year ago yesterday afternoon.

Six calls for wage conferences between operators and representatives of the United Mine Workers have been made during the year but in each case the operators have refused to meet the miners.

"The United Mine Workers pin their only hopes on some solution by the senate investigating committee now working on the problems in the Pennsylvania and Ohio coal fields," C. W. Savage, secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers said today.

Meanwhile preparations were going forward in Belmont, Jefferson and Harrison counties today for the erection of barracks to care for almost 600 miners families who face eviction from company owned homes.

Fifteen thousand dollars have been appropriated for this purpose by the United Mine Workers. Three barracks have already been erected and work on five others was to be under way this week.

United States Marshal Stanley G. Borthwick, just returning from the mine fields, condemned the "barracks plan."

"They are preparing to crowd whole families into these two-room suites, a situation deplorable for the children" he declared.

Judge Benson W. Hough last week ordered the eviction of 285 miners' families on May 1. Two hundred, ninety-six other families, scheduled to be evicted from their homes today under an order issued Jan. 13 are to be heard tomorrow on a request for a month's postponemegt.

CASUALTIES REDUCED IN THE U. S. AIR SERVICE

NEW YORK, April 1—(AP)—Air service is established in this country on a basis of security and reliability comparable to the best systems of rapid surface transportation, the Aeronautical chamber of commerce of America said today in an analysis of airplane accidents during 1927.

Based on 382 reports on all mail service, air transport operations and aerial service, the analysis as reported in a letter to William P. MacCracken, assistant secretary of commerce for aviation, "shows that in operations over established air routes by the government air mail and air transport companies, where all activities are governed by the department of commerce rules and regulations, casualties have been reduced to a remarkable degree."

"In the government air mail operations," the letter continued, "there was but one fatality to 1,413,381 pilot-passenger miles. In air transport operations, the ratio was 1 to 1,413,320.

FIVE NICARAGUAN REBELS WERE KILLED BY MARINES

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 1.—(AP)—Scattering what is believed to have been the largest band of Sandinistas encountered in more than a month, patrols of the U. S. marines fought two sharp skirmishes today in the region about 50 miles north of Jinotepe. There were no marine casualties.

Five rebels were killed and two wounded. One of the dead is known to have been one of the chief lieutenants of Augustino Sandino, although the name of this leader was not given out. For military reasons marine headquarters are also concealing the exact locations of the two contacts.

The patrols captured 21 horses and mules, 16 saddles, two rifles, several machetes and a number of bombs.

TERRIFIC ARCTIC STORMS ARE REPORTED BY RADIO

BOSTON, April 1—(AP)—A radio message which described terrific arctic storms has been received by Edward Howe Forbush, state director of ornithology from Commander Donald B. MacMillan, whose schooner Bowdoin is now at anchor in a Labrador harbor.

"Lap wings seen here December 22 and also at various other places that week," the message said. "Very bad northeast storm from December 18 to 23. I think these birds came from Greenland with that gale. Had little snow but terrible winds. Old residents cannot remember anything like it. More snow this morning. Have just had two day howler, March 6 and 7. Worst in years, air one mass of snow from interior. Am wondering if this storm hit you before or after. MacMillan."

MAY BE BREAK IN MAINE DEMOCRATIC DELEGATION

WATERVILLE, Me., April 1.—(AP)—A rift in a prospective 100 per cent. Smith delegation from Maine to the democratic national convention tonight appeared imminent as Maine democrats were preparing to assemble here for their biennial convention on Tuesday.

Some party leaders were said to be marshalling their defenses against Mrs. William R. Pattangall, Maine member of the democratic women's committee for nine years, and an avowed candidate for the delegate to the Houston convention. Objections to the election of Mrs. Pattangall, an uncompromising "dry", appeared based on her opposition to the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, of New York, for the presidential nomination.

ONLY 29 OF 150 GIRLS WOULD MARRY COL. LINDBERGH

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 1—(AP)—Of 150 girls in South Hall at Stephens college, a girls school, only 29 of them would marry Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, a questionnaire revealed. The question was "would you marry Col. Lindbergh if you had a chance?"

Eleven of the 29 were enthusiastic over the question: 15 of them wanted to "date him quite a while first," and three of them observed that it wouldn't be bad at all to be pictured beside the great flyer.

Of the 105 that gave negative answers, 63 were in love with some one else. Seventeen said he was too popular; 12 didn't care "for his type at all;" six were afraid he might get killed at any minute, and three couldn't stand to marry a famous man and be known only as his wife.

EIGHT MEN WERE MAROONED IN LAKE ERIE

PORT DOVER, April 1—(AP)—Eight men marooned in Lake Erie since last week aboard the ice-locked tug Jean F., were towed to port in safety today by the ice-breaker, Vermont, of Ashtabula, Ohio.

All those on the Jean F., were reported in good health. In addition to the crew of six, the tug had two members of the crew of the fishing tug Altawandron, which was caught in the ice on March 23. Other members of the Altawandron's crew previously had been brought to safety. The Jean F., was caught, last week, when attempting to break through to the relief of the Altawandron.

The Ice-breaker Vermont left Ashtabula late today to bring in the deserted Altawandron.

VOTING IN ARGENTIN AFOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS

BUENOS AIRES, April 1—(AP)—Somnolent quiet marked the balloting hours today when voters of the Argentine republic voted for 176 presidential electors and 81 members of the house of deputies. The only untoward incident was a quarrel betwen two political partisans, one of whom was dangerously wounded.

Under government orders all stores, theatres and cafes were closed when the balloting started and for hours the streets were deserted except for voters going to and from the polling places. But at 6 p. m., when the polls closed, the scene changed magically. Shutters came down from store fronts, theater doors swung open and the neothronged into the streets.

The result of the balloting will not be known for several weeks.

TO SHOOT NIAGARA FALLS IN RUBBER BALL

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 1—Jean A Lussier of Springfield, Mass., who is visiting at the home of his uncle, Clement Lussier of 49 Ash street, has told his friends that he will soon resign his position as a salesman for a shoe polish concern and complete preparations for a trip down Niagara Falls. Lussier, who is 36 years of age, hopes to be the second man to accomplish this death-defying feat by riding the falls in a huge rubber ball. Lussier points to the accomplishment of Bobby Leach who took the perilous trip on July 25, 1911 in a barrel and lived to tell of it. It is recalled that Leach died in 1926 when he fractured his skull after slipping on a banana peel. Lussier is planning to take the drop at the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side, a fall of 168 feet. The intrepid young salesman, who is a Franco-American and native of Concord, N. H., talks convincingly of his plans and it is apparent that fear will never cause his abandonment of his hopes for fame and fortune.

WINDHAM INTERESTED IN SEVERAL ROAD PROJECTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 1—With spring at hand Windham is becoming more acutely interested in the several road programs within and adjacent to its boundaries. One of these items is the completion of the water bound macadam road from North Windham village to Windham Center, a project that was started two years ago through the state aid highway plan. At that time the town voted its share of the construction of seven-eighths of a mile of macadam leading out of North Windham. State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald has now suggested to First Selectman Ernest P. Chesebro that the town of Windham anticipate a sum not to exceed $35,000 to complete the construction of three and one-half mile stretch. This appropriation would be made with the understanding that the state will reimburse the town for three-quarters of the amount expended from future state aid highways as provided by statute. It is further pointed out that if the town makes this appropriation the state highway department will be able to allot the town an additional appropriation of $10,000 on the state status as the regular state aid appropriation. The financing of the project would then be: Regular state aid $17,391.71, town's share one-quarter and special allotment, $10,000, town's share one-quarter. Commissioner MacDonald calls to mind the saving to be effected by accepting his suggestion, to the benefit of both the town and state, because of the size of the project and the fact that once the town's one-quarter share is paid it is under no further obligation for either maintenance reconstruction or snow removal as the road will be under state supervision. While the completion of this road would make valuable in completing surfaced highways through the "Windhams," its greatest asset will be in making it a connecting link between the trunk lines out of this city to Providence and Norwich.

An unoccupied 1 1-2 story frame dwelling on the Eagle's Nest property, owned by David Fleischman recently of New York city, was destroyed by fire started from a grass blaze Saturday afternoon. The property was formerly known as the old Dimock place and was purchased some two years ago by Fleischman from D. Deppeler. It is located on the south eastern section of Hosmer mountain and is just within the city limits. The Fleischman family occupy the old Dimock homestead and Mrs. Fleischman discovered the blaze when she noticed the grass fire sweeping toward the building. While a call was being sent in to Engine company No. 1, the unoccupied building was ignited. An effort to check the blaze by pumping water from a well proved unsuccessful, although the firemen, under direction of Acting Chief Michael J English, prevented the main residence from being endangered. A report was circulated about the city that the spacious Dimock homestead was on fire and this drew a large crowd to the scene. The loss is estimated at $2,000 Mr. Fleischman was unable to determine at the time the amount of insurance carried on the building. It is believed that the grass fire which caused the destruction of the dwelling, was started by children.

It is understood that state highway engineers have decided on a new route for the highway through the village of South Windham to eliminate the two dangerous curves that have plied up a tremendous score of accidents in years past. Two original plans drawn up during the past two years were abandoned when the villagers protested. It now appears that the engineers have mapped out a route that has the rare virtue of being favorable to both the state department and the villagers—at least a majority of them. The new survey is from a point a short distance from the city line on Windham road, leading between the river and Dugway Hill along the trolley tracks, diverting off and continuing from Shetucket park through the wood and joining the main highway again near the Central Vermont railroad between the Stiles and Backus properties.

President Frank P. Fenton of the chamber of commerce made known today that there were reasons to believe that at least one large manufacturing concern was much interested in taking advantage of the several facilities Willimantic has to offer to industrial concerns. Officials of a large company have been in this city the past week and while they remained incommunicado on definite plans they appeared favorably impressed The chamber is preparing statistics and other information for this concern and for another concern whose headquarters were recently visited by Secretary Earl J. Arnold.

CONTRACT FOR CITY SIDEWALKS IS AWARDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 1—The contract for the construction of concrete sidewalks, gutters and curbing in the city for the season has been let to Merrill H. Jones, it was announced today by Alderman William E. Jackson, member of the street committee. The bids were opened Saturday night in the offic eof City Engineer Robert E Mitchell. City officials attending the session were Mayor Charles A. Gates, Corporation Counsel William A. King, City Engineer John Collins, and Aldermen Oliver L. Willard, chairman, Arthur J. Dubreuil and William E. Jackson, of the street committee. Besides Jones, there were two others bidders David P. Ahern and Michael Angelo. Jones was a half a cent lower on sidewalks than Ahern while Angelo was one cent lower. Angelo's bid was not given full consideration however on the grounds that it was not properly filed. It was pointed that contrary to the call for bids, Angelo's bid was not left in the office of the city engineer as provided, was not made out on the approved blank and was not accompanied by a certified check In view of these technical discrepancies on the Angelo bid and owing to the fact that Jones is fully equipped for the work and has had previous experience, the awardment of the contract was made in favor of the latter by a two to one vote of the committemen. The Jones contract calls for 22 cents a square foot for sidewalks, 80 cents a foot for curbing and 32 cents for gutters.

Robert D. Greene, 43, employed as an attendant at the Mansfield state training school and hospital for the past two years, died in St. Joseph's hospital this morning. He was born in Newport, Nova Scotia, December 3 1884, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Greene. Besides his wife, he leaves his parents and two brothers, James and Martin Greene, of Nova Scotia.

Both machines were damaged and one woman sustained a wrist injury in a collision of cars driven respectively by Louis E. Butcher of 34 Water street, Palmer, Mass., and Emile Chamberland of 19 Ives street, this city, at the junction of North and Main streets, late Friday afternoon During an investigation by Traffic Officer Arthur Hurley, the local man agreed to settle for the damages. Mrs. Butcher was slightly hurt.

Willimantic faces the immediate expenditure of approximately $50,000 for the construction of sewers in the northeastern section of the city according to a well grounded rumor that some 200 property owners of that section are planning to petition the board of alderman for sewerage. The district comprises the whole or parts of several streets including Bolivia, upper Jackson, Ash, North, High and Chestnut streets and Ash avenue. To meet this demand calls for the laying of sewers on an extensive scale with an uptiet pipe down Ash street to meet the lower Main street disposal main

Police Chief Thomas F. Grady has posted the following assignments of the patrolmen for April: William Hurley, Jackson street; Roderick Lariviere, upper Main; Albert F. Montie, center Main; F. Rudolph Laramie, Pleasant street and lunch relief; day traffic duty, Arthur Hurley. The lower village beat is to be covered by supernumerary officers.

In the juvenile court Saturday morning a 13-year old boy was given a six months' probation sentence by Judge Frank H. Foss upon being found guilty of taking a small sum of money from his employer. Full restitution of the amount had been made.

Practical jokers had their day today in observance of April Fools' day. It was conceded however, that the month of March played the biggest prank by giving the public the shivers Saturday in keeping up to its ancient tradition of coming in like lamb and leaving like a lion.

S., and Mrs. Viola Houston, worthy matron of Radiant chapter, No. 11, accompanied by a party consisting of past worthy patron and Mrs. Fred L. Lawrence, Mass.—"For years I suffered and would sweat cold and feel as if I would faint. At such times I could neither walk nor sit down with comfort and my work is sitting down all day. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound through friends I work with, and I began to take it as a tonic six months ago. I am much improved. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and you may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. Marie Macheda, 169 Oak Street, Lawrence, Mass.

WESTERLY

EARLY MORNING FIRE IN RESTAURANT KITCHEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 1—About 7.30 a. m. Sunday alarm No. 46 West Broad street near Pawcatuck river bridge brought out the P. S. Barber Hose company firemen for a fire in the rear of the kitchen of the restaurant of Girard Brothers, 15 West Broad street. Arthur Rathbun had just started a fire in the range for the day when he found the woodwork about the stovepipe leading into an outside chimney to be on fire. Hastily throwing water on the blaze, he attempted to telephone a call to the firemen and then called one of the proprietors, Joseph A. Girard who lives in the Metropolitan house adjoining at 1 Coggswell street and who directed that a fire box alarm be sounded

A hydrant hose line was laid from a West Broad street hydrant down Coggswell street and taken to the rear of the kitchen in a one-story building ell on the main building. The water made short work of the flames. Some of the rear window and woodwork of the roof was cut away and a small stream from a garden hose was used to put out smouldering sparks between the kitchen ceiling and roof. The total damage will amount to $100. Fire Chief Francis J. McMahon made sure all sparks were out before he had the recall sounded at 8.30 a. m. The building is owned by Fred S. Ople.

Westerly fier alarm was sounded at 6.30 Saturday evening from Box No. 23, Granite street near Vose, by Albert Taylor Kenneth for a fire burning briskly in the cottage of Mrs. Sylvia R. Lewis, 3 Vose street. The fire was seen by Edward J. Butler, Jr., who resides near by and who found that Mrs. Lewis was visiting at the time at the home of Mr. Kenneth, at 3 Vose street.

The Ahrens-Fox and Seagrave pumper and Alert Hook and Ladder truck arrived to fight a stubborn fire in the basement, near the pipeless heater, which blaze had burned a hole through the floor near the chimney in the center of the house. The basement and lower floor of the cottage were filled with smoke. Two lines of booster tank hose were laid and a stream of water from a Granite street fire hydrant were directed on the blaze. Burning rugs were thrown outdoors and parts of a corner seat and mopboard were ripped off to get at the blazing woodwork, where pans of water had been thrown on the fire by Mr. Kenneth. Firemen with smoke masks entered the cellar from the outside to play the hose on the burning floor beams. Engineers Robert Bonner, Geo. McKenzie and Columbus J. Passetti were present. The damage from fire, smoke and water will amount to several hundred dollars, all covered by insurance.

Miss Hazel Westcott, 19, of Hillside avenue, Pawcatuck, driver of an automobile which was sideswiped Thursday evening about 9.15 and had its side ripped off, on Wilcox curve, Quiambaug, was the complaining witness at a special session of Stonington town court before Judge William A. Wilcox Saturday morning. John J. Donovan Jr., of New London, driver for the Beacon Oil company of that city was presented by Prosecutor George R McKenna, as the operator of the other auto, on a complaint of reckless driving. Trooper Bernard Kennerson of the Groton barracks was the investigating officer who summoned Donovan into court. Just before the collision, Miss Westcott with a party was proceeding from Mystic to her Westerly home when the other machine was observed coming toward them. In the collision no one was injured but the Groton-Stonington line of the Shore Line Electric railway was so blocked that a trip was dropped. Donovan was fined $75 and costs, a total of $89.29.

TWO TAKEN TO HOSPITAL FROM MOTORCYCLE CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 1—George LaFontaine of 47 Lena street, Southbridge, Mass., and until recently of Danielson, was taken to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam this afternoon with a fractured elbow. LaFontaine was riding on the rear seat of a motorcycle driven by Emil Deslauriers of 148 Mechanic street, Southbridge, Mass., who is also at the hospital with a possible fracture of the skull. At North Grosvenordale about 3 o'clock this afternoon the motorcycle in swinging from one state road around a sharp corner into another road at Reardon's corner was in collision with an automobile driven by Mrs. Helen Rala of 35 Wabash avenue, Worcester, who was riding with her husband and children. The occupants of the automobile escaped injury.

Another motor vehicle accident this afternoon also checked up by State Officer Elton Nolan of the Danielson barracks on his way to North Grosvenordale to investigate the motorcycle accident involved an automobile driven by Mrs. Eva S. Chubbuck of Mechanicsville, where the collision occured, and another car driven by Sammy De Filipo of Grosvenordale. Everyone in these cars escaped injury, though the machines were considerably damaged.

DANIELSON'S FIRE LOSS FOR YEAR IS $2360

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 1—Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department was getting a thrill of satisfaction + day out of the fact that the borough fiscal year that closed last night showed that the total losses in Danielson for the past twelve months aggregated only $2,360, as against $6030, the preceding year.

This year's losses are probably lower per capita than those of any other town the size of Danielson in Connecticut, representing only 74 cents per person. There were only 36 alarms in Danielson the past twelve months as against 49 during the preceding twelve months.

Danielson's immunity—one feels like knocking on wood or doing some other foolishly superstitious thing in writing this—from heavy fire losses is really remarkable, dating, as it does, over a score or more of years. Many factors undoubtedly enter into this fine record, but one of the ones is a volunteer fire department of really unsual efficiency. Chief Woodward always has stressed the fact that the time to fight a fire is before it gets a real start. With that in mind and with the fine co-operation he gets from the companies of his department he has called for and obtained speed in responding to alarms. Few volunteer fire departments anywhere match the Danielson organization in getting into action promptly.

The wonder of it all is that the men who fight the fires here have so much enthusiasm for their work, their compensation being only a small factor of consideration for the work they do.

Leroy DeForest Parker, 79, died Saturday at the Rhode Island infirmary at Howard, and the body was brought here during the day in charge of Undertaker A. F. Wood. Mr. Parker has been making his home for a considerable period with a niece resident in Woonsocket, and has been a patient at Howard for only a few weeks. Mr. Parker was borr in Plainfield, Nov. 5, 1848, a son of Thomas W. and Elizabeth Tucker Parker. For the greater part of his life he was a resident of Windham county, living in Brooklyn for a long time, later in Danielson and Goodyear and at another period in Pomfret. He was a stationary engineer and it was recalled today that for several years he operated the steam roller owned by Killingly when this town was engaged in road building work on its own account.

Mr. Parker leaves a sister, Mrs. Carrie Barker of Rochester, N. Y., a niece, Mrs. W. C. Bradley, and a nephew, Raymond Barker, both of Woonsocket.

Raging and snarling and vindictive up to its very last moments, March went its way last midnight after giving a Saturday demonstration of a kind that is probably responsible for the old saying about the month going out like a lion.

In review, March rates one of the coldest months since last fall. It likely will surprise the average person to learn that the average sunrise temperature for March was lower than the average sunrise temperature for last December, but Judge James N. Tucker, careful compiler of weather statistics for years, related this to be a fact at his home in East Killingly Saturday morning.

This year the average sunrise temperature for March was 27.50 degrees, and only twice during the past 11 years has the sunrise average in March been lower, these years being 1923, when that average was 27.12, and 1926, when the figures were 24.41.

Mrs. Louise Quintal, 87, died Saturday morning at her home on the West Side. She had been in failing health for a long time and ill in bed the past eight months. Mrs. Quintal, a native of Canada and the widow of Augustin Quintal, was one of the oldest residents of the West Side both in years and term of residence, having lived in that section for close on half a century.

An unusually solemn and impressive ceremony marked the blessing of the palms at the last mass at St. James' church today, the rites witnessed by the large congregation dating back many centuries. A host of acolytes participated in the ceremonies which were conducted by Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., and Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S.

The announcements of the day dealt largely with the arrangement of services for Holy week, particularly those on Holy Thursday, Good Friday and Holy Saturday. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evening of this week there is to be a retreat for the English-speaking members of the parish.

An auction sale of automobile tires, tubes and other motor car accessories conducted at Goulet's tire shop in Union street Saturday afternoon for the account of Harold Cunningham of Elliott attracted a number of buyers and resulted in spirited bidding.

Streets of the borough are going to require a very considerable amount of attention this spring. The open winter brought more punishment to the street surfaces than they usually get when covered with ice or snow for many weeks at a time. Some of the streets are now dotted with holes, are rough and humpy in other caples and not altogether pleasant to ride over. It is understood that the repair work upon them will be undertaken as soon as weather conditions warrant.

Officers of the Baptist Sunday school for the ensuing year are: Superintendent, Amasa D. Pierce; associate, Thomas U. Day; recording secretary, Mrs Dorothy M. Burton; assistant secretary, Miss Harriet Shippee; treas., C. Clinton Cleveland; assistant treasurer, Edwin Davis; corresponding secretary, Charles B. Carver; superintendent junior department, Ethel G. Lyon; primary, Miss Cora Browne; beginners, Miss Florence Moran; cradle roll, Mrs. Chester J. Armstrong; home department, Mrs. C. B. Carver; missionary superintendent, Miss Grace M. Stanton; auditors, George W. Crocker, Walter Rawson; organist, Miss Grace M. Stanton.

Among other signs of spring, is the reappearance of the old-time hobo, the type that solicits hand-outs from door to door, and is not averse to asking a kindly appearing soul for a few dimes to help him along life's way. These knights of the road have been around Danielson for several days past, and, like the circus, apparently are just out of winter quarters.

It is believed that farmers in this territory will be able to furnish work for numbers of unemployed when the spring work gets into full swing, within a fortnight or so, in fact, some farmers have said so. They sense the fact, though, that numbers who have no work would not accept a season's employment on a farm.

Rev. W. L. Beard, former president of Foochow college, China, spoke at the union service of the Danielson Federation of Churches at the Westfield Congregational church this evening. The soloist at the service was Jehu Downes of Wauregan. This afternoon at 5 o'clock Dr. Beard addressed a congregation at the Congregational church in South Killingly.

Walter Anderson, former warden of the borough and until recently an executive of the Jacobs Mfg. company here, has sent out announcements relative to going into business on his own account.

The fact that today was Palm Sunday largely overshadowed the fact that it also, traditionally, was All Fools' day, and one heard of few practical jokes being played.

Monday morning the special series of Holy week services at the Baptist church will be instituted, the services, daily, beginning at 7:50.

April introduced itself this morning with a below freezing temperature, some readings here being as low as 22 degrees.

Numbers of trout fishermen who in other years would have been on the brooks today for the opening of another fishing season had to content themselves this Palm Sunday with walks along the banks of brooks and contemplation of the opening of the season on April 15. Careful watch of the brooks by fish and game officials will be maintained the next two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Colvin, who have been in Florida since early January, were reported en route home today and are expected here the first of the week.

Wellington E. Bitgood, who has been ill at his home on Broad street the past week, was reported today as making favorable progress toward recovery.

Good Friday will not be observed generally as a legal holiday in Danielson.

It was indicated at the week end that Danielson will be an enthusiastic supporter of the plan of reviving the eastern Connecticut chamber of commerce.

Homer I. Clark, who died at his home in Pascoag, R. I., was very well known throughout this section as a cattle buyer and also as a man who was greatly interested in race horses and things pertaining to them.

Early April will bring a speeding up, it is said, of the construction work being done on the state highway between Danielson and Brooklyn. Completion of the contract is expected to take until late summer or early fall.

Miss Georgianna Gaudreau was in Boston today on a business trip.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 1—Charles Sheldon, 78, a life long resident of South Woodstock died at his home in that town on Saturday after a short illness. Pedestrians coming into the business section of the city from the north end of the town, who habitally glance up at the official time organs of the city, the clocks in the tower of the Second Congregational church, have been taking a second view of the hour of the day since the clock facing the north has been keeping time that is just one hour olswer than the other timekeepers. Occassionally the clocks will stop for a few hours but none of the elders of the city seem to recall when the church clocks gave out time that did not agree in all four walls of the tower.

Mrs. Nancy Harrington entertained at seven tables of whist at her home on School street Friday evening for the benefit of the Putnam grange. The prizes were won by Mrs. Fred Card, ladies' first, and Mrs. Edna Winterburn ladies consolation. Alexander Lepier won the gents first award and the consolation went to James Gifford. After the prizes were awarded the hostess served her guests with refreshments.

KROLL TO ARRIVE AT NEW YORK TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 1—Matt Kroll wanted for the murder of his wife in Worcester, Mass., will arrive in New York today on the steamship "Carinthia" in custody of Lieutenant Robert T. Hardy of the Worcester police department. Kroll was trailed across the seas to Danzig, Poland by the Worcester authorities. He successfully eluded the police for two years but was arrested on another charge in that country and later was identified as the alleged Worcester murderer and held for the police of that city.

April was ushered in Sunday with a bitter touch of the March weather that has been absent for many days. Saturday night the temperature dropped to its lowest mark since February, which was 25. During the afternoon heavy snow squalls threatened to blanket the city with an April snow storm. Sunday the mercury rose in the thermometer and the prevailing north winds receded and were followed by fresh southerly winds that brought out the many spring fashions that have been purchased for many weeks and have been in store awaiting favorable weather to be exhibited.

Holy week was opened today with Palm Sunday. Services were held in all the Catholic churches of the city with palms being distributed to the congregations. At all the masses at St. Mary's the passion of Christ was read and announcements for services during the week were given out. Rev. U. O. Bellerose pastor of St. Mary's read Governor Trumbull's proclamation, setting aside Good Friday, April 6, as a day of fasting and prayer. Father Bellerose further urged every member of the church to keep the day in accordance with the state's chief executive's order.

The Masonic ball of the Quinebaug lodge of Masons was held Friday evening in Odd Felows hall and was one of the most brilliant social affairs of the season. All invitations were limited to Masons, their ladies and younger sons. Music was furnished by a Masonic orchestra from Massachusetts. The decorations were elaborate and were in keeping with a Masonic affair. Many were in attendance and the affair was a decided success financially.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hogan and family of Tatem street left Saturday for Trenton, N. J., to attend the funeral of a relative.

The members of the Putnam lodge of Elks and the members of the Masonic club will gather Monday evening at the Elks banquet rooms to celebrate the Elks second victory over the Masons in the annual winter tournament which ended last week. The Masons will be hosts to their victors at a turkey supper. Many members of both lodges will be present to drink a toast to the Elks' success.

The Hermanson greenhouses on Grove street held their annual spring opening Sunday. Many flower lovers passed through the houses to admire the beautiful blossoms that were in bloom. For many years this local concern has held its annual flower show on Palm Sunday.

The movie was an epic of the Civic war and was witnessed by the largest attendance since the services opened in November. Rev. James F. English, pastor of the church announced that on Easter Sunday evening the choir will sing the Easter Cantata.

During the past few weeks work on the new state park at Priest's Island, south of Putnam near the Wheaton farm has been rapidly progressing. The thick undergrowth that has covered the island for many years has been cleared away and forms for the suspension bridge that is to span the Quinebaug river between the island and the main land are now being laid. A Hartford contractor is to erect the bridge and it is to be made of wood. It is thought that the bridge will be nearly completed by May 1.

National baseball week opened today and boys throughout the city have gotten their sandlot equipment out of the closets and attics so as to be on the team when the season officially opens Monday. The week will also be observed by the Putnam high scho l and the Silk Sox nines during their practice games. The high school squad under the direction of Coach Noyes has had a few light work outs last week to work off the stiffness, but they will get down to real work Monday afternoon on the local school diamond.

Debris from the recent fire of the Chickering House is now being cleared away by local workmen and it is thought that the building will be somewhat repaired by its owner. The fire that occurred from an explosion a few weeks ago did considerable damage to the Union street side of the block. The building has been afire several times during the last few years and each time it was threatened, the firemen succeeded in saving it from complete wipeout. Each blaze helped to darken the structure and caused it to mar the appearance of surrounding buildings.

NOANK

The Saturday Evening Post cover page picture was drawn by Lewis Toney, of St. Louis, a summer resident of Groton Long Point, who has made many friends in this village.

Dr. Williams, checker champ of Mystic, came down to the fishing village with 50 fans to play Allie Crowell, the best player in Noank, for the best four out of seven games for the championship of the two places, Friday evening, in back of the waiting room. One hundred fans crowded the room to see the battle. Referee George Patterson, all dolled in white, announced the rules. Champion Williams won the toss for the first move, putting over to a corner, trying to fool Crowell, who has made a study of every space on the board. But he did not fall for it and when Faithful Crowell put over a four-man move on the pride of the West Side, it gave the cod chasers' cheering section a thrill. Careful Williams' up-river squad was not saying a word; but the doctor pulled the first match out of the fire, not burning his fingers, winning the match by a close score. Then the noise started that could be heard for two miles. The second match was all set and the Elm street boy was first to start the game. With fire in his eyes, he resolved to make it a tie and his cheering section, with Hubert Ellis as leader, called to him for action, gave a cheer and said, "Fight, Faithful Allie! Don't let the champion make it two straight!" So setting a trap like catching a gray fox, the doctor fell into it and lost the second match by a wide margin. As though doing an Indian war dance, the cod chasers' voices were ringing for the victory. But the pride of the West Side would not give up, and the final game of the evening was on. Starting off slowly was Crowell, the kid from Elm street, but Foxy Williams was watching the Noanker's every move and, making a bad move, Crowell's mistake cost him the last match. The crowd from Mystic gave their champion a big hand. But Crowell said, "It will be a different story in Mystic next week." Apple turn-overs with cocoa was the lunch. The rainy night was pleasantly spent where points of thrills and good playing were enjoyed.

Lewis Main, of New Haven, spent Friday at his home in Noank.

The Young fishing fleet left the packing dock Friday morning, going to Block Island for a few days' fishing. The fish are fat and big and the fishermen have found their hiding place. Ten boats were in the fleet. On account of rough weather while at the fishing grounds, the boats will put into Block Island instead of coming back to Noank if the waves are too risky. Boat Ada and Sarah lost a net, that got caught on an old schooner which sank several years ago. The net got tangled in some way that almost pulled the boat over and Captain Albert lost $80, for that is what the net cost.

William Plumstead has returned from a short visit in New York.

Sam Carson has entered the Thames shipyard at New London as a carpenter.

The Daughters of America lodge held a pinochle and whist party in their hall on Elm street Friday evening. Seven tables were in play. At 10:30 o'clock, Mrs. Tyler, chairman of the committee, had the score cards collected. At pinochle, Walter Palmer had 6950 points, but George Patterson held too many jacks and nine-spots and made only 3500 points. Mrs. Tyler, with over 7000 points, took back to Mystic first prize. Mrs. Gertrude Tourjee had a special seat at Table No. 2, stayed there all the evening and took home a small basket of candy for low score. Mrs. George Banks held all good hands with the whist players and won first prize. Mrs. J. Hemstead had bad luck on Friday, could hold nothing but four-spots, so she was given the low score prize. Mr. Main, of North Stonington, came down to show the men about whist and had high score, while James Hemstead forgot his glasses and received the low score trophy. Sandwiches and coffee were served. Dancing followed. The card party ill not be held this week on account of Holy Week.

The Noank Valley Cemetery association met recently and elected these officers: President, Augustus Morgan; secretary, William A. Frazer; treasurer, Arthur Anderson; sexton, Charles I. Fitch; directors, Dr. William Hill, Milton Chester, William Spicer. The books of the sexton showed a total of 28 burials for the past year. The ages ranged from an infant to 73 years. Sexton Fitch has held that office for 25 years.

AN EASTERN CONN. CHAMBER

What appears to be an excellent move is that set in motion by the state chamber of commerce for the establishment of an Eastern Connecticut chamber of commerce that would be made up of the 14 existing chambers in this end of Connecticut.

Through such an organization there is opportunity for valuable cooperation, and that cooperation is of decided importance in connection with many matters which involved the entire eastern end of the state as well as the community which may be directly concerned. The chance to bring combined influence to the support of of worthy projects which are certain to have indirect as well as direct benefits should not be overlooked.

References made at the conference to numerous movement which hold in store future development in this part of the state indicate the possibilities of such an organization. It should be more than a temporary affair. Its purpose ought not to be simply to accomplish one, two, or a half dozen things and then cease to be interested in anything else. Its object ought not to be to labor in behalf of any particular locality but to develop a broad-minded interest in all localities and through efforts in behalf of their development strive for a bigger and better eastern Connecticut. As was said by President Fenton of the Willimantic chamber of commerce "anything which benefits a part of this section benefits the whole."

It will be surprising if the various chambers do not ratify the action of the conference and give their support to the launching of this new organization. If there are chambers which now have projects for which they need the support of such a body it should urge upon any others to get busy and undertake matters of their own which would command similar assistance. Such a clearing house for problems of this end of the state gives promise of accomplishing excellent results in many directions, stimulating better relationship and encouraging a helpful friendliness and better understanding. It affords an opportunity for pulling together for the whole eastern end of the state that has great possibilities.

THE ICEBERG PATROL

Spring has come, but with the spring there come icebergs stealthily slipping down from the north into the steamship lanes and creating a serious menace to shipping. What this menace is was revealed years ago by the loss of the Titanic. It is possible to guard against it; ships can be operated slowly and maintain watches for this purpose but that interferes with schedules and does not altogether meet the demands of safety.

Ever since the sinking of the Titanic there has been parole duty done in the North Atlantic by United States revenue cutters. The time has arrived for them to go to their station, that long, monotonous circling of the waters where icebergs are expected to be. These cutters in fact go in search of icebergs. Their purpose is to locate them and then furnish warning to shipping as to where they can be expected for the purpose of having a wide berth given to their danger by the steamships, or in fact any vessels navigating in the locality of icebergs.

The radio is of immense value in this connection for the cutters are in constant touch with shore and shipping. They send out their warnings and those who violate them do so at their own risk and peril.

This protection to ocean transportation is invaluable. It is carried on by this government but with other governments participating in the expense and with all ships getting the benefit of the service. The cutters also engage at times in the breaking up of bergs where such a thing is possible and therefore really disposing of what might otherwise continue to be a menace.

Since the establishment of this patrol there have been no fatal crashes. There have been occasions when vessels have bumped bergs, when proceeding into the ice fields, with or without the warnings from the cutters to guide them, but there can be no disposition on the part of big liners to take any chances when the presence of icebergs is foretold by those who are on the watch to guard life and property on the high seas. It is a great service which grew out of a great disaster.

DEPLORABLE CONDITIONS

Thoroughly bad is the situation which has developed in Chicago and which to a large extent is attributed to politics. Here is a city the welfare calls for correction and yet charges are bandied about so freely that if all are to be believed it is a case of six of one and half a dozen of the other. But charges do not correct the trouble and matters are in the meanwhile going from bad to worse.

During the past five months there have been 61 bombings in Chicago. These were not all minor affairs and were not directed solely against gangsters and foreigners. They have on the contrary involved some in the highest places, the most recent ones including United States Senator Deneen and Judge Swanson, but the worst of the trouble seems to lie in the fact that because of factional differences whatever happens is always regarded by the other political element as a frameup. Even in the recent bombings it is the belief of the state's attorney, a member of the opposing political faction to the United States senator and judge, that men were hired to do it for the purpose of creating political sympathy for the attacked and offers of immunity and rewards have been made for information that will lead to the disclosure of the higher-ups.

This indicates that Chicago must be in a deplorable state. It indicates why there is so much activity by gangsters, why crime abounds and why that city is getting so much undesirable publicity. The wonder is that the right minded people of that city do not rally to the crying need for a housecleaning in that community and put an end to such conditions. Just as long as they are tolerated the impression will become the more firmly fixed that they are desired. To no small degree the fact that they are what they are reats upon the people who make them possible, provided it is politics that is at the root of them.

This is the house cleaning season. Chicago needs a housecleaning and the aim should be to apply it thoroughly to the midwest metropolis just as soon as such action is possible.

MILD WINTER AND ROADS

In connection with the mild winter with the few snow and ice storms there is apt to be the impression that it has been a benefit, that it has saved dollars and cents that would otherwise have been spent for snow cleaning.

According to the Boston & Maine railroad's report there was an actual saving of more than $100,000 during the first two months of this year over last year because of the small snow fall.

What might be true of a railroad in this respect does not necessarily hold good in regard to highway work. The absence of snow has, of course, made it unnecessary to spend as much money for the cleaning of state or city highways as was the case a year ago, but the absence of snow and ice has left the highways bare with the result that they have experienced the wear and tear which they would not otherwise have received. This does not apply to the socalled permanent pavements, but there are many of the improved roads which have experienced the ravages of the winter to say nothing of the gravel and unimproved streets.

Whether the low snow removal cost has actually meant a saving of money when street and road repairs are considered is a question. Roads and streets have experienced a hard winter and it would not be surprising if state and cities found that the bill for road repair because of the open winter would offset if not exceed the saving which has been effected through the small amount of snow removal work. Thus while the mild winter was a blessing in many ways and an advantage for the railroads, it was the creator of much expense in other ways.

FURTHER DELAY

After a careful study of the national origins plan for immigration restriction indications promise a further continuance of the date when it will be put into effect. The delay is occasioned by the fact that the senate committee is at loggerheads. There has been a study of the effects of the change and they do not indicate that they are going to do what was expected.

The national origins arrangement would permit the entrance of 150,000 yearly and that number would be apportioned under the 1920 census according to the national origin of the inhabitants at that time. This plan was hit upon because it was believed that it would meet the requirements of this country. A further study of the idea has made that less certain. While it would be advantageous in some respects it would be against what was sought in others.

The result of the dilemma is that there is a call for the further postponement of the effectiveness of the measure with the hope that in the year that would elapse there can be worked out a plan that would do what is expected.

Immigration restrictions have always created puzzles. There is no commanding desire to take down the bars but there is a desire to have the restrictions work in such a manner that the real purposes of them will be forthcoming. If the explanation given is correct this situation has not as yet been reached. More time is required to investigate and revise. The committee on immigration in the senate asks for delay in such a manner as to carry conviction and present indications are that the national origins will not be effective the coming July.

EDITORIAL NOTES

April showers bring May flowers.

Bright, crisp, cold April, but we must welcome it just the same.

Haven't heard any hand organs or hurdy gurdies this spring; or have they gone with the little German band?

Some of those who won't work are doing a large part of the complaining about the lack of employment.

The man on the corner says: How many times were you caught by the brick under the hat?

Colonel Lindbergh ought to have known that congress was sufficiently up in the air without taking the members airplaning.

Of course if Lindbergh liked publicity and worship like some he might be easily induced to come here in the interest of a local aircraft.

It may be a little early but it would be interesting to know if Senator Borah plans to make up any deficit in the Sinclair restitution fund.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Try cottage cheese with a little horseradish, onion juice and chopped parsley added to it.

Burned spots may be removed from china by rubbing with a cork dipped in damp salt.

Molasses cookies provide iron as well as a sweet for the school lunch.

Wrap a hot cloth about the mould and jelly will come out whole.

Ham is toughened by frying too rapidly in a very hot pan.

When washing ceilings, or anything overhead, tie a cloth around your wrist to prevent water running down your arm.

Applesauce that is to be used with pork should be made from sour apples and is much better if a little horseradish is added.

When stuffing a duck add a chopped apple to the bread dressing. The apple removes the strong taste that some people object to.

Turnips, if cooked a short time in boiling water without cover, are delicious if baked with rich cream sauce and strips of pimento.

If you keep your good silver put away in dark blue cotton flannel it will keep it shiny. Light flannel seems to permit tarnishing.

Sprinkle sugar on top of the cornstarch pudding while hot and no crust will form during the cooling process.

A coat of paint each spring will preserve the wooden pail of your ice cream freezer and also keep the iron parts from rusting.

One housewife uses colored gumdrops in her fruit cake instead of citron and lemon peel and the little colored specks add attractiveness to the cake.

If you first dip the oysters in flour, then in egg and the cracker dust the coating will stick and the fried oysters will be improved in appearance and taste.

FOR THE CLIPPED RECIPES.

An envelope pasted on the inside of your favorite cook book to hold recipes that have been clipped from newspapers or magazines will enable you to find them when you wish to try them. Then, if found desirable, they may be copied on to a card and put in the kitchen card index and the clipping passed on to some inquiring friend who enjoys the dish.

TO CLEAN WHITE WOODWORK.

Enameled paint is dulled by soap. Such paint may be cleaned first by rubbing first with a woolen or cotton flannel cloth wrung out of hot water and then with a dry cloth. Spots, stains and dirt that will not yield to hot water alone may be removed by a fine scourer. This must be applied lightly in order not to scratch the surface.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

That tired and badly shod feet are responsible for wrinkled faces is the latest theory advanced in beauty culture.

One of the best means of massage for the scalp is brushing frequently and hard. Brush from the hairline upward and outward, never flat down against your head. Get a brush that has long, stiff bristles and use it morning and night.

Always wrap a rubber hot-water bottle in soft cloth before placing it on a patient's flesh. Place the bottle near, but not against, the patient's flesh. If placed too close, the patient may be burned before realizing it.

Give honey to the children whenever they ask for it, because this natural sweet is wholesome and health-giving. And, if you cannot get your home-grown variety, ask for the honey which is sent to us from Australia. It is not expensive, and is guaranteed quite pure.

LONGER WEAR.

Many times stockings are discarded on account of a darn just where the top of the shoe rubs the heel. If a tiny flat tuck is taken just under the heel by the arch of the foot it will pull the stocking just far enough below the shoe to hide the unsightly darn. Then you will not be ashamed to wear the stocking you have given up as hopeless.

FOR THE CAMPPEPPR.

One of the most useful articles carried by campers, according to one experienced person, is a roll of white table oilcloth. When ready to eat, if a table of any kind was found, the oilcloth was unwound and the food put on it.

TEST THE MOP.

When buying a new dry mop shake it and see if the strings show individually and do not mat together. A good quality mop will have strings that practically stand alone.

FOR THE ROSE TREE.

Never throw away the washing-day soap-suds if you are lucky enough to possess a garden with rose trees in it. Use the suds on the rosebushes.

TO KEEP ROSES FRESH.

To keep roses from drooping hot, dry weather, put them immediately after cutting into a deep bucket of water or lay them in a bathtub, submerging all except the heads. Cover with newspaper or darken the room and leave for several hours. Roses cut in the evening should be left in the bathtub in this way all night. They will then last much longer than when put in vases right away.

COLLARLESS NECKLINE.

The flat collarless neckline so characteristic of smart spring coats is one of the surprisingly novel ways in which the designers differentiate the really new coats from those of last season.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Many quaint little Priscilla collars are used on new dresses.

For sports, yellow holds a definite place in the golf or range.

The smart hat will match either the coat or dress in color.

Jumpers of new two-piece frocks are longer and have belts.

Flowered taffetas in pastel colors are chic for evening gowns.

Fitted hiplines and skirt fullness are sponsored for spring.

Pleats, flares and tiers are important details of the mode.

Belted treatments are an interesting note in new fashions.

Many new coats are lined with silk of polka dot design and have a scarf of the same dotted silk.

Racine lace godets, in black, give fullness and delightful contrast to a princess combination in maize colored crepe de chine.

Sport dresses are sleeveless this spring but evening frocks are introducing tiny caps, scarfs and cape effects to give them short sleeves.

A string colored handkerchief linen one-piece dress has a tub coat of transparent woolen in midnight blue which has a gate bow tie on the lower edge. "Jade bronze" is a new French green of lively shade that has an almond tone to it. A satin coat of this color tops a cream lace frock.

A red tulle evening gown has a sleeveless jacket of red embroidered in gold, black and yellow design. Its wide sash and large hip bow is of taffeta.

Formal frocks are featuring cape effects. A silver blue chiffon gown with swooping hemline scintillating with brilliants has a chiffon cape collar with identical hemline identically ornamented.

For the woman who demands a certain sophistication in her clothes there are delightful new piques suitable for sport clothes. Besides the white ones, there are others with prints upon the white backgrounds.

FANCY COATS

The fancy coat, of embroidered kasha or other lightweight woolens, will have a big vogue this year, styles indicate. A straightline rose-beige one, embroidered in coin dots in tans, rose and gold, is very decorative.

ANOTHER ENSEMBLE

The older woman wears an ensemble of the new afternoon genre in which she attends a fashionable bridge party or puts in an appearance at a reception or debutante tea.

NEW RIBBONS

Crepe de chine ribbon and a new sizing are chic as hat trimmings this spring. A rustic straw braid in natural shade has a wide brim on one side, the other short brim augmented by a big crepe de chine bow.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A tablespoonful of vinegar in the rinsing water will revive fading colors.

Fasten the snaps of a garment together before putting the article through the wringer. This will prevent the crushing and breaking of the little knobs.

If the wash curtains are inclined to hang unevenly after being laundered run a curtain rod through the bottom hem and let alone for several days. This will straighten them.

Remember there is no bleach like sunshine. If you want to whiten clothes, spread them out on the grass without wringing them. A few soakings and dryings will make the most obstinate article beautifully white.

SAFETY FIRST IN LAUNDRY

Angora sweaters, or other wooleen sweaters are washed in soap flakes in lukewarm water, not twisted or wrung, then laid flat on a bath towel and rolled up. They should be ironed when dry.

Because rayon is strong when dry and a weak fabric when wet it should be washed with more than ordinary care. Use soap flakes in water that feels slightly warm to the touch. Rayon is easily cleaned by squeezing and kneading and should not be rubbed. Squeeze the water out and dry on a coat hanger or folded over a line.

NEED NOT BE REAL

Jewelry is in greater favor. It need not be real. It seldom is what it seems. All the merit it must possess is up-to-dateness or design. The neck aces are frequently of triangular slips of metal. These are used to contrast with flat placques of metal, enamel, jade or onyx which depend from them. Even the cutting of the artificial stones of the semi-precious stones is triangular but, of course, like the wearers, with three faces to choose from they turn the best fact forward.

SEPARATE VEGETABLES

Keep onions, celery and strong-tasting vegetables apart from other vegetables or food. Herrings should also be kept where they cannot taint the household provisions, and fruit of all sorts should be laid out separately on a shelf, if possible, as one piece coming in contact with another will quickly become spoiled.

REMOVES ONION SMELL

When onions have been boiled in a saucepan and the odor remains wash the pan with hot water and soapsuds, dry, and then wash in a little strong vinegar.

HOW TO BATTLE THE MOTHS

Moths can be kept away by sprinkling liquid camphor under the carpets, turpentine in the corners of the wardrobe, says Nature Magazine. Tobacco dust, such as used by florists is also good for moths, or split cedar cigar boxes packed with clothes will keep them away.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The American Institute of Actuaries now has four women members.

It is estimated that throughout the entire world there are 60,000,000 working women.

Frau Katherine Behlau has been a janitress in a Berlin, Germany, bank for the past 53 years.

Now in her 104th year, Mme. Helene Faneau, a farmer's widow of Dijon France, never has yet been on a train.

Airplanes now flying regularly between London and the Continent are patronized more by women than by men.

Seventy-eight women in the United States are listed as quarry workers. The coal mines claim 1,500 women workers.

Paula Busch, celebrated German equestrienne, has become the manager of a world-famous circus. On the death of her father, Paul Busch, frequently called first horseman of Germany Fraulein Busch took charge of his entire establishment.

BIT OF BUTTER HELPS

If a small piece of butter is added to blancmange mixture, the blancmange will turn out of the mold easily and will have a glossy appearance.

BOX FOR DRESSING TABLE.

An unusual box for the dressing table is of wood painted a dull blue and gilt. The cover is finished with a depression into which is fitted a French print covered with glass.

RECIPES.

Macaroon Velvet—Use pint of lemon gelatine. When cold, whip till stiff and fold in one cup of whipped cream, whipped stiff, and stale macaroons, crusted. Pour into molds and set aside to harden. Garnish with whipped cream and cherry.

Fried Mock Oysters—Press one cup canned peas through a sieve to obtain the pulp. Add one tablespoon melted butter, a few drops onion juice. Sift together three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-fourth cup flour and one-fourth teaspoon baking powder; mix with the peas. Add one well-beaten egg yolk and fold in the stiffly beaten white. Drop by small spoonfuls in hot deep fat (374-390 degrees fahrenheit) and fry until golden brown. Drain and serve with mint jelly.

YOUR HEALTH

Food and Fat

By Orville Harry Brown, M. D., Phoenix, Ariz., Member Gorgas Memorial

It is a well-known fact to the stock grower that if animals are fed all the food they will eat and are kept in small corrals where they cannot run or jump about much they almost invariably get fat. It is also a well-known fact to the farmer that certain animals take on flesh with less food and more exercise than do others. The same facts are now known to be also true of the human family.

Many persons who are too fleshy eat too much and do too little muscular work. There are those, however, who eat most modeartely and exercise freely who still take on too much flesh.

If a person is really desirous of losing weight let him substitute coarse vegetables and fruits for his rich foods. He should then gradually reduce the quantity. He will slowly become satisfied with less food. But do not let this system of starvation be carried too far. The stomach must be allowed to function properly and if, when one is hungry, coarse vegetables, lettuce without salad dressing, or fruits are eaten in sufficient quantity to satisfy the cravings of the stomach, very few calories will be eaten and therefore no fat will be added.

In those persons who are fat in spite of the proper diet, medical science has found that abnormalities exist. In many cases the wrong can be corrected. There are certain glands in the body whose function is to assist in the oxidation, or burning, of the elements of the food for the purpose of supplying energy. It has been known for a long time that the person whose thyroid is underactive is likely to be fat. Such a person is apt to have fat hands, neck, body, arms and legs. The condition can be improved by proper treatment.

There is another gland which has more recently been recognized as having much to do with the burning of fat in the tissues. This gland is located in the skull at the base of the bain and is known as the pituitay. In persons with this gland underactive there is apt to be excess flesh. The shoulders, upper arms, trunk, abdomen, hips and thighs are large, whereasthe rest of the body may be thin. Proper administration of these gland extracts under skilled guidance, with proper diet, will often accomplish much good.

The thyroid ad pituitary may both be inadequate in the same individual. Hence the problem becomes complicated. There are still other glands, for example, the sex glands, which may be factors in obesity. From here on the problem of obesity becomes highly technical.

Obesity is a disease in many instances and should be so considered and treated.

Fellowship of Prayer

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

By Rev. Jay T. Stocking, D. D., Federal Council of Churches in America — Copyright 1928

Topic for Holy Week
"RELIGION AND HOPE"

Monday
"Resting in God"

"Rest in the Lord and wait patiently for him" (Psalm 37:7).

Read Psalm 46.

MEDITATIOIN: The important word here is "rest." Here is where we often make our mistake in prayer. We try to solve our problem while we pray. Prayer is not the time for solving problems, but for taking them to God. We must leave them with God and wait. Even God requires time. Prayer should be a period of rest for the harried and burdened mind. We should stop working and expectantly and hopefully rest in God. This resting in the hour of our extremity is often the most effective attitude that we can take, for God works in a quiet mind as He cannot work in a troubled one. Our minds may easily be so occupied with our reasonings that there is no place for God's promptings.

PRAYER: O Thou Helper of the one of men we bring Thee this hour our perplexing problems. Make clear to us, resting quietly in Thy presence, the way we should take and the things we should pursue. Let us not be anxious but wait patiently for Thy revealing. In Thy name, O Giver of life. Amen.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 63

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It's mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Kinky's Long Tongue.

Nature doth provide and plan
For needs of all, including man.
—Mother West Wind.

Bobby Coon had a lot to think over. He tried to make himself think that what Scrapper the Kingbird had told him about the members of the Raccoon family 'way down in Panama had been made up by Scrapper. But right down inside Bobby knew that Scrapper had been telling him the truth. It gave him a queer feeling to think that he had these faraway relatives of whom he had never heard before. He wanted to hear more. He wanted very much indeed to hear more. He didn't like to admit it, even to himself, but it was a fact.

So the very next day who should appear at the edge of the Green Forest, close to the Old Orchard, but Bobby Coon. He tried to appear as if he had not come over there for any purpose but was just passing that way. The bright eyes of Scrapper the Kingbird discovered him almost at once. Scrapper chuckled. He knew what had brought Bobby over there.

"He's just as full of curiosity as Peter Rabbit," thought Scrapper. "He wants to know more about that long tongue of Kinky the Kinkajou. That's what has brought him over here."

Now Bobby hoped that he would find Scrapper the Kingbird right on the edge of the Old Orchard, and when he didn't he was disappointed. He pretended to fuss around as if he were looking for something. All the time Scrapper, from the top of a tree in the middle of the Old Orchard, was watching Bobby and chuckling. By and by, he took pity on Bobby, and flew over to where Bobby was.

"Hello, Bobby Coon," said Scrapper. "You just had to come back to find out about Kinky's long tongue, didn't you?"

Bobby opened his mouth to deny this. Then he thought better of it. "Yes," said he, looking a little sheepish, "yes, I just had to come over and find out about that long tongue. You see, I don't happen to know any member of my family with an extra long tongue. Is it really so very long?"

Scrapper nodded. "Yes," said he, "it is quite a match for that long tail of his."

Bobby Coon's eyes opened very wide in amazement. "Do you mean to tell me that Kinky's tongue is as long as his tail?" he demanded.

Scrapper laughed right out. "No, of course not," said he, "though it did sound that way. What I mean is that just as Kinky's tail is extra long, so is his tongue; and it is for the same purpose."

Bobby Coon blinked. "How can he hang onto things with his tongue?" he demanded.

It was Scrapper's turn to blink. "Who said anything about his hanging onto things with his tongue?" he exclaimed.

"Didn't you say that it was for the same purpose as his long tail? And didn't you tell me that that long tail was to hang onto branches by?" Bobby asked.

"Certainly, I did," responded Scrapper. "I told you that the purpose of that long tail was to be made use for Kinky's special needs, and that is the purpose of his long tongue. He can run it into places like cracks and little holes in trees, where you would be quite helpless. He likes honey. That long tongue is very handy in getting at the honey. That is one reason he is called a Honey Bear. But I've often wondered what he does with that tongue when he has it back in his mouth. However, I never have found out. Speaking of tongues, one of the funniest tongues I know of is Banana Bill's."

"And who, if you please, is Banana Bill? Is he another relative of mine?" asked Bobby.

(Copyright, 1928, by T. W. Burgess).

The next story: "Banana Bill."

Stories That Recall Others

He Knew His Dog.

Ted, a little tot, the proud possessor of a dog, was asked.

"What kind of a dog do you have?"

"I don't know, but he's part female," was the reply.

Too Soon.

George, age five, had a new baby sister. As he played in front of Mrs. X's house one day, she said to him,

"George, how do you like your new baby sister?"

"I like her fine," he replied.

"What do you call her?"

"We doesn't call her," he answered. "She can't walk yet."

CHILD TRAINING

"Dining Room Manners"

Marion Brownfield

"Now we're eating in the dining room, we must put on our dining room manners!" confided one little girl to her sister.

It had been a warm summer day, and the mother, who usually found serving a meal in the kitchen breakfast nook more convenient than in the dining room, had changed the routine for the sake of cooler, more refreshing surroundings. Her little girl's words now arrested her attention.

"What do you mean, Eunice, by 'dining room manners'?" she asked.

"Why, our best manners, like company ones," explained Eunice. "Cause when we eat in here, we usually have company, or, anyway, people who come, see us. That's why you put on better dishes in here, isn't it, mother?"

"Well, yes," admitted her mother, remembering that there had been hurried occasions in the kitchen when she had served milk from the bottle instead of the pitcher, "but we should always have nice table manners."

"Father doesn't put his elbows on the tables in here, either," chirped Dorothy, the youngest.

"They're observant, all right!" exclaimed Father. "We'd better stop eating in the kitchen, if we've caught children's manners."

"We only eat there to save work," explained mother. "But now it's summer vacation the children can help, so we can eat in here all the time."

"It's cooler," said father.

"And more fun," exclaimed Eunice, so excited that she dropped a crumb of potato on the rug.

"Now, see, young lady," said father, "how much work it makes. Are you willing to pay for your fun? We can't make mother extra work, like using the carpet sweeper after every meal. I'll tell you; if you children will set the tables in here—and be careful about your crumbs—I'll clear the dinner table, every evening."

"It'll be very nice to have a butler," laughed mother. "But we must have good manners, for servants always notice those things!"

Eunice giggled and turned to Dorothy. "Mother will be cook and father butler, so you and I should take turns being 'second girl'."

"What'll we do?" asked the little sister.

"Bring in the dessert after the butler has cleared the table, and later wipe the dishes as I wash them," explained mother.

Thus were dining room manners reestablished in one family where the children were very impressionable—as most children are. And it being summer, the division of work was beneficial to all.

So, if you find that your children have to be corrected in company, try the plan of practicing dining room or company manners every day until they become a natural habit.

EVICTION ORDER ISSUED AGAINST GYPSY BAND

An order evicting John Miller and a band of gypsies from the premises they have been occupying at No. 33 Franklin street, has been issued by Josiah H. Greenstein, J. P. The eviction order is the result of a summary process action against Miller by Ike Beckenstein and Samuel Taylor, engaged in business as Beckenstein and Taylor. Attorney John H. Barnes represented the plaintiffs and Attorney Lee Roy Robbins represented the defendants at the hearing which was held at Attorney Greenstein's office.

Plaintiffs claimed that in February they leased to Miller, the upper tenement of the building at No. 33 Franklin street for one month from March 1st at a rental of $25. The plaintiffs further claimed that Miller represented to them that the place was to be occupied by himself and his two sons and that no women were to be allowed to occupy the premises with them

After securing the keys Miller allowed five or more women, gypsies, to occupy the tenement with them and his two sons. On February 28th, when the plaintiffs learned of this, they notified Miller to quit possession of the tenement on or before March 9th. Miller declined to leave the premises and the summary process action followed.

The Norwich police department had a fairly busy month in March, making 104 arrests in that period, in which the two leading causes were intoxication and breach of the peace, the former with 40 and the latter with 20.

There were eight arrests for various violations of the motor vehicle law and two for operating under the influence of liquor. Seven persons, one of whom was a woman, were arrested for violation of the liquor law, and other causes of arrest were the following: Keeping disorderly house 3, frequenting disorderly house 9, non-support of children 2, fraud, fornication and committing nuisance, one each.

Murphy investigated they found that Clendennin was without a driver's license for 1928, and he was placed under arrest on that charge. He secured bail for his appearance in the city court. Mrs. Conaty, who was riding with her husband, suffered a cut on the nose, and was attended by Dr. Clarence M. Thompson.

Sunday afternoon Peter Briere was arrested at his home in Montville by State Policeman Whitmarsh on the charge of fraud in selling an automobile. He was brought to police headquarters here and bail was fixed at $300, which he had been unable to furnish up to a late hour Sunday night. The church he had served had raised a sum of money which was equal to half of a year's support and Bishop Anderson gave the congregation an opportunity to help in this matter, with the result that nearly the amount needed was pledged.

SETS NEW PEN RECORD IN STORRS EGG-LAYING

To the Rhode Island Red entry of George T. Purkis of Topsfield, Mass., goes the honor for setting up a new weekly pen record for the 17th Storrs egg laying contest. These ten pullets produced 66 out of a possible 70 eggs, or a lay of better than 94 per cent during the 21st week. The best previous score in the present contest was 64 eggs, a score that was made in the 12th week.

Four more entries attained the 1,000-egg mark during the past week. They are the Reds of Fred H. Sampson of Springfield, Mass., and Homestead Farm of Newtown, Conn., and the White Leghorns of George Lowry of West Willington, Conn., and Bournedale Farm of Millerton, N. Y. There are eight pens which have laid 1,000 eggs or more in the first 21 weeks of the present competition. Performance of this kind, which means an average of better than 200 eggs per entry for each month, is real championship laying.

GAVE PALM SUNDAY CANTATA IN FINE FORM

A congregation that filled the Central Baptist church Sunday evening heard with great appreciation the rendition by the augmented choir of the Palm Sunday cantata, The Seven Last Words of Christ, by Th. Dubois.

This was given under the direction of Frederick J. Maples, the choir director, with a chorus whose ensemble effects were finely worked out, and Earl E. Styers, of Hartford, as bass soloist. He sang in splendid voice and there was excellent solo work by the members of the choir, Mr. Maples, tenor; Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., soprano, and Mrs. Olive A. Potter, contralto. The offertory solo, My Redeemer and My Lord (Buck), was effectively rendered by Mrs. Potter.

The following made up the chorus: Sopranos: Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., Mrs. Charles T. Bard, Miss Amie March, Mrs. Walter Buckingham, Miss Eunice Taft. Altos: Mrs. Olive A. Potter, Mrs. H. T. Church, Mrs. Frank Lathrop, Miss Doris Myott, Miss L. Howard. Tenors: Arthur Blackledge, Robert Gray, Lyle Fillmore, George Turner, William Douglass. Basses: Frank Steinke, William Lund, J. T. Hynd, James Jackson, Benjamin Brown.

EARLE W. STAMM REVIVED C. OF C. AT NEW LONDON

Concerning a Norwich man a writer in the New London Day says: It is to be regretted that the rules of the chamber of commerce prohibit President Earle W. Stamm from continuing in office another year, because his term as director terminates at this time. Under his intelligent guidance the chamber, during the past year, has made definite progress. One of the chief problems when President Stamm assumed office was to increase the chamber's membership, which had sunk to a low point. It was necessary to instill a revived interest in the value of the work the chamber is trying to perform. With the zealous assistance of the directors, acting as a membership committee, the task of obtaining new members was begun. Almost from the start the results were encouraging. New members were enrolled almost weekly, and at the end of the year the chamber had 320 on its roll: over double the number it had at the beginning of President Stamm's term. This shows that with the right effort interest in a local chamber of commerce can be secured and maintained. Thornton N. M. Lathrop, chairman of the membership committee brought in the largest number of new members, and Judge Arthur B. Calkins of the same committee was next in this activity.

JUDGE DISCOVERS FIRE AT ATTORNEY'S RESIDENCE

Early discovery of a roof fire at the residence of John F. Huntington, Harland road, Sunday afternoon, without doubt prevented heavy damage to the house. While driving through Harland road about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon Judge Alvin L. Brown noticed that the roof of Mr. Huntington's residence was on fire, around the chimney. He stopped the car and notified Mr. Huntington who had been sitting in front of the fire place. While Mr. Huntington, who had a three gallon fire extinguisher in the house, went to the roof to fight the fire, Judge Brown telephoned to Engine No. 3, Joseph Perkins road, asking for additional chemical, and notifying the fire department that Mr. Huntington had the fire very nearly out.

Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft was in the station at the time, and taking two small chemical tanks, and one man from the crew of Engine No. 3 went to the Huntington residence. Some of the shingles were ripped off and within a few minutes the fire was out. Neither of the two chemical tanks owned by the fire department were used as Mr. Huntington's 3-gallon tank sufficed to extinguish the flames, which were caused by sparks from the chimney.

OIL TANK TRUCK ON FIRE FROM SHORT CORCUIT

About 11.35 o'clock Sunday morning an oil tank truck at Smith Brothers' filling station near the city line on Boswell avenue, caught fire from a short circuit. The fire department was notified by telephone that there was a fire at the gas station and not knowing the nature of the blaze, Engine No. 2, Engine No. 1, and Squad A and the deputy chief's car responded. Engine No. 2 had the fire under control when the apparatus from the central fire station arrived on the scene. The damage was slight.

FIRE DEPT. AVERAGED ONE CALL PER DAY

Thirty-one calls gave the fire department an average of one call a day during the month of March. There were 25 telephone calls, five oral calls and one bell alarm, from box 7 last week. The greatest loss for the month was the fire at the fairgrounds which was outside the city limits. The largest loss within the city limits was the barn fire on Mt. Pleasant street last week. The damage to the barn was estimated at $1,000 and in addition an auto truck was destroyed by the flames.

TUNNEY FIGURED AS 3 TO 1 FAVORITE OVER TOM HEENEY BY ALAN J. GOULD

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, April 1—(AP)—The selection of Honest Tom Heeney, the village blacksmith, to fight Gene Tunney for the world's heavyweight championship in July helps to clear up the current fistic muddle even if it lacks spectacular prospects or provokes no cheers from the other boys of the elimination tournament who now are on the outside looking in.

In the first place, Tex Rickard, for lack of other magnetic elements, seems to have decided to ballyhoo one of his old loves, the international struggle. In the second place his choice of Heeney, aside from Honest Tom's capable record, forecasts the probability of a second title fight in September, either with Jack Dempsey again in the come-back role or a challenger selected from one of the other listed contenders such as Johnny Risko or Paulino.

Probably Two Fights

Risko, shelved just when he had reached the finals of the elimination tournament, probably will be assured a chance to scramble for the second title bout but the baker boy won't get into the picture if Dempsey decides to have another fling.

Heeney gets the preference over Risko now because the New Zealander already holds a decision of Jumping Johnny, also because Rickard believes another test between these two would do no particular good. The promoter by now has had enough of these elimination fiascos.

On the same sort of reasoning, however, Paulino would be entitled to as much if not more consideration than Heeney.

The Spaniard fought Heeney twice, gaining a decision and a draw. In both instances the majority of ringside opinion favored Heeney but the record nevertheless favors Paulino. The Spaniard, however, may be content with the talk of his opposing Tunney, or whoever is the champion in 1929, in a title bout in one of the bull-rings of Madrid.

If there is any idea of staging a championship match in the Spanish capital it isn't so far-fetched for Rickard to entertain the notion of going to London for the Heeney-Tunney battle. The promoter might "play" the chief European capitals, moving on to a different one each year, just as he has shifted his big extravaganzas from one center of population to another in the United States in the past few years.

Reno, Toledo, Jersey City, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago have been the scenes of the big title fights Rickard has conducted. London, Madrid, Paris, Berlin and Rome may be included in the next circuit.

London, where the huge Wembley stadium is available, has been considered by Rickard as the possible site of a foreign venture for some time, but the experts have always regarded the project as visionary. They recall that in 1923 when he had some trouble getting his affairs organized, Rickard talked of taking the Dempsey-Firpo fight to Buenos Aires.

After all the suggestions of going to London building a new arena in New Jersey and so on have been thoroughly aired the probability is that the fight will be fixed for either the Polo grounds or the Yankee stadium, where no doubt exists about the eagerness of the customers to pay often and plenty.

Knockouts Eliminated

The Heeney-Tunney affair doesn't shape up, in critical eyes, as much to get excited about. Honest Tom has done everything asked of him since he came here overcoat-less a year or so ago but the impression of him is chiefly one of rugged endurance and bulldog aggressiveness.

It would be the plugger, Heeney, against the sharpshooter, Tunney. The champion would figure to be at least a 3 to 1 favorite, but, for that matter, so was Dempsey in 1926. The one fairly safe gamble is that both Tunney and Heeney will be on their feet at the finish, whether it goes 15 rounds in New York or 20 in London.

RICHMOND IS STOP FOR GOLFERS THIS WEEK

PINEHURST, N. C., April 1—(AP)—Richmond was the next stand for many of the golfers who participated here last week in the annual north and south tournament won by Billy Burke.

After battling high winds and showers, the players moved on to Richmond for the first open—worth $3,000 to the leaders—ever held in the Virginia Capital city.

Among those who will compete there are Tommy Armour, National open champion; Bobby Cruickshank, Johnny Farrell, Al Espinosa, Henry Ciuci, and many others classed high in professional ranks.

Bill Mehlhorn, Texas open champion said last night that he might enter the Richmond meet. However, he and Armour expect to sail within a few days for England to prepare for the British open.

Billy Burke, new north and south champion will remain here a couple of weeks, because of engagement for professional duties.

GARDNER LEAD RUNNERS INTO NEWKIRK STATION

NEWKIRK, N. M., April 1—(AP)—Ed Gardner, Seattle Negro led the Transcontinental Marathoners into the twenty ninth control here today, covering the 32.2 miles from Santa Rosa in 4:36:20. His elapsed time for the 1,036 miles from Los Angeles was 197:58:01.

Olli Wanttinen, New York was second in 4:48:55 with elapsed time of 217:12:12. Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., came in third in 4:53:25. His elapsed time of 177:21:02 enabled him to go in over Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, for second place in the grind.

Arne Suominen, Detroit, leader in the race, was fourth in today's lap in 4:57:10. His elapsed time is 172:52:-15.

NAUGATUCK-BRISTOL AT CHICAGO TOURNEY TOMORROW

CHICAGO, April 1—(AP)—From villages, towns and cities in thirty-seven states, America's best high school basketball teams today headed for Chicago and the National Interscholastic tournament, which opens Tuesday morning at the University of Chicago.

Forty teams already have accepted invitations with two additional possibilities still to report. The entry limit is set at 42 by tournament officials. The expected entries are Everett, Mass., and the winner of the Wisconsin state championship, Watertown, decided last night.

The team of the U. S. Indian School of Albuquerque, N. M., represented by members of four southwestern tribes, arrived Saturday in full tribal regalia. Purdy high of Selma, Tenn., followed them by a few hours. The majority of the other contestants planned workouts at the tournament cage Monday. Pairings will be made by Coach Herbert Crisler after all competing teams have reported.

The list of entries includes 32 state champions and two sectional titleholders, Vienna, Ga., twice winner of the Cotton states title, and runner-up in last year's tourney; and Naugatuck, Conn., winner of the Seaboard states title. Five teams, Englewood, of Chicago; Winfield, Kans., Vienna, Ga., Bristol, Conn., and Grand Forks, N. D., were represented in the 1927 tournament also. Morton high, of Cicero, last year's champions, will not compete.

The list of entries includes:

Connecticut—Bristol, state champions: Naugatuck, Seaboard states champions.

Maine—South Portland, state champions.

Massachusetts—Holyoke, official state representative.

New Hampshire—Berlin, state runnerup.

New York—Poughkeepsie, Southern N. Y. state champions.

Vermont—Rutland, state champions.

BRISTOL TEAM GETS ENTHUSIASTIC SEND-OFF

BRISTOL, Conn., April 1—(AP)—Bristol's entry in the national scholastic basketball tourney which gets under way in Chicago on Tuesday, was given, to put it mildly, a riotous send-off today. The team left here by bus and entrained for New York and the first leg of the trip to Chicago, at Berlin.

More than 150 automobiles, loaded down with passengers, accompanied the bus to Berlin and when the station was reached, the 11 men in the squad were cheered individually and collectively until the train pulled out.

The Bristol tossers will arrive in Chicago tomorrow afternoon.

LOTT WINS SO. ATLANTIC TITLE WHEN ABE DEFAULTS

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 2—(AP)—George Lott, of Chicago, ranking No. 3 player of the nation, added the South Atlantic singles tennis crown to his titles today when Tamio Abe, Japanese champion, defaulted in the finals of the tournament, because of an infected foot.

Abe, paired with Frank X. Shields, New York, national junior champion, in the morning trimmed Lott and Johnny Doeg, Stanford university star, for the doubles title, 6-3, 6-8, 6-0.

The Japanese champion in declining to meet Lott, said the doubles match had caused irritation of three infected toes on one foot and he was unable to play.

In the mixed doubles finals, Alice Francis, Orange, N. J., paired with Shields, won over Clara Louise Vinke, of Cincinnati, paired with Lott, 7-9, 6-5, 6-2. The play of Miss Francis was the feature of the mixed doubles finals, her placements being unerring and her returns little short of sensational.

TILDEN SATISFIED WITH U. S. DAVIS TEAM PLAY

MEXICO CITY, April 1—(AP)—Led by William T. Tilden, II, the American Davis cup players today went through a strenuous practice session, but also found time to make a sightseeing tour through the city's environs.

Tilden expressed himself as satisfied with the form of himself and his companions, saying he was certain they would be in fine fettle for the first matches with the Mexican players Friday.

It is tentatively planned that Tilden and John Hennessey shall play the singles matches against T. P. Tapia and Robert Kinsey, of the Mexican forces, while Tilden and Arnold W. Jones probably will form the American doubles team against Kinsey and Senor Unda.

NOTHING DOING AT MERIDEN BASEBALL LEAGUE MEETING

A meeting to form a state semi-pro league was scheduled to be held in Meriden Sunday afternoon but as far as could be learned Sunday night either the meeting had not been held or nothing important transpired.

Taftville and Riverview were supposed to be represented at the affair, which was to be sponsored by the Meriden Endeos.

Joe Cronin Sold by Pirates

LOS ANGELES, April 1—(AP)—Joe Cronin, utility infielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been sold outright to the Kansas City club of the American association. He left for Kansas City today.

SWIM ENDURANCE RECORD SMASHED

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., April—(AP)—Apparently little tired by her 32 hour grind, Mrs. Lottie Moore Schoemmel of New York this afternoon completed a swim in Deauville pool here that raised the world endurance record one hour.

She entered the water at 9:23 a. m. yesterday and climbed out at 5:23 p. m., today. The former record of 31 hours, set by Miss Edith Johnson in Black Pool England, stood for more than 47 years. Bill Erickson, who set the American record of 30 hours last summer in Lake George, swam part of the time with Mrs. Schoemmel yesterday and today. For the last ten minutes Mrs. Schoemmel sprinted around the pool at a brisk crawl to demonstrate her stamina.

Spectators helped her up the ladder but it was unasked aid. She walked unassisted to the showers, and declared she felt no ill effects other than being "a little tired and a little sleepy."

Coffee, tea and bouillon were fed to her at regular intervals by persons who swam alongside.

Mrs. Schoemmel announced at the end of the test that she probably will make an attempt to swim the English Channel next September. She already holds 27 records, chief among them a swim from Albany to New York by relays in 54 hours swimming time.

Mrs. Schoemmel went to bed without mounting the scales to see how much she lost in the long grind.

HIGH SCHOOL PROSPECTS

Chapman Tech

Chapman Tech, as usual, is making large preparations for another athletic season and this time it happens to be baseball. Something like sixteen games are scheduled although not many reputed strong teams are scheduled.

It is probably just as well, for Tech's outlook is none too bright even though enthusiasm reigns. Last year's team was just fair, losing some games that were slaughters while winning a few that were creditable victories. Tech lost to the Academy and Westerly by one-sided scores and was not in the running in the Interscholastic league hardly at any time. And than, the Whalers flashed some nice form that completely surprised her followers.

This year Tech has a fairly good infield with an outfield that is probably above the average. The battery positions, notoriously weak practically all through last season, seem little remedied for 1928. Chapman will miss Montgomery, its captain in 1927 for he was a big part of her entire play. However, Nield, and Fratalli are still there as infield standbys while Phillips, the hefty swinger is around to provide color for the outfield.

Tech may be a big surprise this year and knock a lot of the good teams loose from their championship aspirations but from this distance she looks like nothing better than a fair high school nine, that stands an even chance of winning as many as she will lose this season.

Tomorrow—Windham High.

'BOUT SPORTS

A long-awaited clash is now practically ready for fandom in the Windham-Academy game, slated for a week from Wednesday at Willimantic. Both teams will be known as Independents but practically the same players that made up the two school quintets this past season will be on the floor.

Ever since the Academy started its sensational winning streak about a month ago and which lasted right up until the closing game of the regular season Saturday night, local fans have wondered how the Academy, playing as they gave in their last seven games would have made out against teams that found them easy early in the season.

The Academy has no stronger rival in basketball than Windham and this game, played as the preliminary to the All-Heller-Hartford Yankees game ought to be of real interest and — the same kind of action.

10,000 SEND NAUGY OFF TO TOURNAMENT

NAUGATUCK, April 1—(AP)—Confident of defending their title as Seaboard States champions, the Naugatuck high school basketball team, winner of the University of Pennsylvania basketball tournament and with a record of 22 victories and four defeats left this town today for the national high school tournament with a rousing send-off from 10,000 residents.

A bus trip was made to Springfield, Mass., where the team boarded a train which will carry the party to Chicago tomorrow afternoon. Hundreds of followers accompanied the squad to Springfield.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

Well, Norwich has had its final fling at basketball for the year!

Aside from a few closing games of the church leagues and probably a tilt for the C. F. C., this popular winter sport is through for a few months.

Interest from not only high school followers but all basketball enthusiasts is centered on Chicago this week for the national scholastic tournament.

Connecticut is well represented with Naugatuck and Bristol. It would be a sorry event should these two meet in the first round, however, although it might be interesting.

The St. Michaels' Five from Westerly (Pawcatuck) was slated to oppose the Y Emps in the preliminary to the Academy-Crescents game Saturday night, but something went wrong and instead the All-Stars beat the Eagles.

There was a good sized crowd present and, although the Academy led nearly all the time, the game was interesting.

Whaples handled the game well.

The Plainfield Pros are meeting one of the snappiest little clubs in the state in the Hartford Knights of Lithuania, Wednesday. This team beat Danielson about a month ago.

The Crescents closed their season with Saturday night's game while the Academy officially did likewise, although some of the members of the team will play for a week or so with independents hitched onto their cognomen.

The way the Academy played in the last month made many fans thing of what would have come about had they started this earlier.

It is no rash statement to say that in their last seven games the Red and Whitesters have shown as good work as any high school in these parts did this year.

N. F. A. HANDS TAFTVILLE CRESCENTS DECISIVE BEATING IN SEASON'S FINAL

With another of their fine bits of work, the Academy trampled the Taftville Crescents, heretofore the town's premier court representative, under a 38 to 25 score and in so doing ended their season with 11 wins and the same number of victories at the Y gym Saturday night.

N. F. A. Strong

The Red and White was again supreme, never being really hard-pressed. Taftville led and tied but two or three times and then for only short spaces while the Academy after finding this difficulty in the second quarter stepped out in the second half and made sure the victory on their last appearance.

Whatever it is that came over the Academy just a little over a month ago, it sure is proving to be no flash in the pan and the brand of basketball that the Academy played Saturday night and in six previous games is as good as any eastern Connecticut and a lot of other state schools showed all this season.

Jarvis Plays Well

career at the local school. Lloyd, besides topping in scoring was immense on the floor, helping his teammates through the thick and thin.

The Academy hopped into the lead on Jarvis' two foul shots and kept it through the end of the first quarter, which found the count at 9 to 4. The Crescents rallied in the second period and about midway took the lead at 11-10 but another foul, by Pingree, knotted things up and then the Red and White swung back into its scoring stride to head at the half by 18 to 14.

The last half soon made the Academy winners without much trouble, although in the early minutes Taftville hung on tenaciously.

Brown Hurt

In a lively scuffle in the third quarter Aubrey Brown, Crescents star was cut over the eye in bumping against the wire netting and two stitches were required to close the wound.

In the preliminary the All Stars beat the Eagles 31 to 17.

PLAINFIELD PROS TO PLAY HARTFORD K. OF L.

For their Wednesday night game at the Plainfield Community house, the Plainfield Pros will meet the Hartford Knights of Lithuania. This teams has a strong reputation, for, although being composed of players just out of high school, it has defeated some of the best clubs in these parts, winning 28 out of 37 games this year. Danielson town team fell before this outfit about a month ago in Danielson, losing 34 to 17. Plainfield will present its strong lineup. In the preliminary the Buddies will meet the Putnam Silk Sox.

PLAINFIELD-NEW BRITAIN DISAGREE ABOUT SERIES

The Plainfield Pros and New Britain Guards, who last Wednesday started a series that was announced as for the state title, now are in disagreement over guarantees and as to when the second game will be played.

Plainfield won the first game. New Britain also is undecided as to whether she will play off her series with the New Haven Atlas for the state league title.

ACADEMY-WINDHAM IN HELLER-YANKEES PRELIM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 1—Arrangements have been completed whereby the Heller Five basketball team will play the Yankees of Hartford at the Willimantic state armory, Wednesday evening, April 11. Although the basketball season is fast waning this attraction should have many fans from this section of Connecticut. As an added attraction, the Windham high school Independents will meet the fast Norwich Free Academy Independents in a preliminary encounter. The rivalry which exists between these schools is ample indication that a fast game will result.

The Heller Five has performed in Norwich on several occasions in the past, and have proven themselves to be a capable group of court performers. Nowich fans will remember the speed and ability displayed by the Heller brothers, who have performed creditably against several of the fastest teams in New England. On meeting the Yankees, the Hellers expect the stiffest opposition that they have yet faced, during their lengthy court career.

Sam and Max will cover the forward positions; Abe will be at center, and "Hy" and Harry will be at guard.

Sam and Hy are now at Brown university. Abe is at Harvard law school, Harry is at Columbia university school of pharmacy and Max is a senior at Windham high school. All of the brothers have seen considerable service on the court, both at high school and college.

In the preliminary, the Windham high school team will use their regular lineup with the single exception of Max Heller, who will perform with his brothers. Windham high Independents will use "Eddie" Nichols and Meikle at forwards; Saba at center, and Tinker and Monast at the guard positions.

AL KOZIOL IS GREAT FAVORITE WITH PROVIDENCE FANS

Al Koziol, local lightweight and champ in that division in Rhode Island, is evidently a great favorite with Providence fans. At Providence he fights out of Cranston. In his last two nights in the capital of little Rhody, he has won seven fights, six of them by knockouts. Al won three fights Friday, the last two by knockouts, the first by decision, being over a tough boy, one rated highly in Providence.

Here is what Frank Wakefield in the Providence Journal had to say of his work Friday night, only his first bout being mentioned:

For the first time since winning the Rhode Island amateur lightweight title, Al Koziol, tireless Cranston slugger, returned to the Arcadia ring Friday night and defeated Johnny Tice of the Newport Naval Training station in three of the greatest rounds ever witnessed in the downtown salon de sock. For the full nine minutes, these two game-cocks clubbed each other all over the ring with vicious hooks and swings while a crowd of 4000 stood on its feet and roared until it was blue in the face.

The Koziol-Tice brawl was the most momentous of an excellent Providence A. C. program that consisted of 26 bouts with all but ten of these winding up via the knockout route. Koziol put up his usual slam-bang exhibition but in Tice met the toughest opposition he has faced in many moons. This bout, the second of the night, started off in a whirlwind of gloves. A right hook dropped the Cranston perpetual motion machine, but he bounced to his feet, disdaining a count. During the first part of this round Tice had a shade, repeatedly hooking to the Cranston blond's bobbing head. Koziol kept ploughing in, however, and at the bell was forcing Tice backward under a steady fusilade of blows.

Koziol started the second round with his characteristic rush across the ring, and although Tice, who is a nice boxer, probably would have liked it better if he could stand off and fight at long range, Al continually kept on top of the Newport sailor and belabored him with vicious clouts. Tice himself got in many a right-hand shot to the chin, but Koziol plunged forward, everlastingly swinging both hands and at the bell was pasting Tice in a neutral corner.

The gob had a slight edge in the third round, but it was not enough to give him the verdict. Koziol tired just a bit and Tice was able to keep him off with left jabs and an occasional right across, but Cranston Al never took a backward step and was constantly weaving in with flying fists.

TUNNEY NOT TO START INTENSIVE WORK FOR MONTH

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., April 1—(AP)—Despite cold water thrown on the idea by boxing experts, three is a distinct possibility that the next heavyweight championship fight will be held in London, Charley Harvey, manager of Tom Heeney, the chosen contender, insisted today.

Heeney, a New Zealander and a British subject, now is in England on a visit, and Harvey himself recently was there looking over the field. The manager today said he was fully convinced that the nationality of Heeney, coupled with the fact that he is the first British subject in thirty years to be given a chance at the heavyweight crown, would put the fight across in England.

With something like 14 weeks remaining before the fight "sometime in July," Gene Tunney said he would not start intensive training for a month or two though he will begin regular light gym work in a few days.

BRUINS AND RANGERS BATTLE TO ONE-GOAL TIE

NEW YORK, April 1—(AP)—The Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, rivals in the playoff series for the Stanley hockey cup of the National league, struggled to a one-all tie in the first game of the American group finals here tonight.

The next movement in Academy court activity is the election of captain for the 1929 quintet, which will be held in the near future.

Spooky Wins

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 1—(AP)—Spooky, a brilliant chestnut daughter of the Preakness winner, Pillory, this afternoon won the 1928 Tiajuana Futurity at the Tiajuana race track. Listo, the outstanding colt of the meeting, was second, one length before Lady Va Va.

Why bother to write jokes when one can get a dialogue like the following, overheard at the bureau of naturalization:

"Where is Washington?"

"He's dead."

"I mean the capital of the United States."

"Oh, they loaned it all to Europe."

"Do you promise to support the constitution?"

"Me? How can I? I've a wife and six children to support!"—Boston Transcript.

IRREGULAR CONDITIONS PREVAILED IN BUSINESS SITUATION LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, April 1—(AP)—Somewhat irregular conditions were present in the business situation last week as the attention of the country was centered on the stock market with its most remarkable "bull movement" in history. Despite spottiness, however, an atmosphere of optimism prevailed, and there were predictions that the year would show that a political campaign need not result in a poor season in commerce.

Secretary Hoover was quoted in one of his characteristically cheerful comments on business prospects, and a statement by Secretary Mellon that the current heavy movement of gold to other markets need not disturb the credit situation helped to create a renewed feeling of confidence in the outlook. The federal reserve bank's review of conditions in the New York district, while cautiously worded as usual, left a feeling that the course of business has been, and will be, conducive to satisfaction.

The "heavy industries," if not striding as powerfully as in earlier weeks, at least were more than holding their own. Further buying by the railroads, and heavy purchases by motor carmakers, particularly one of the largest who has been slow in getting back into heavy production, benefited the steel trade, although some unevenness was seen in steel prices. Steel plants in various centers were reported on an operating scale ranging from 80 to 90 per cent of capacity, but there was some concern lest the March 31 record of U. S. Steel corporation unfilled orders would fall back sharply from the figure of the preceding month-end.

Further increase in employment in Detroit indicated another stepping up of automobile production, while the announcement of new models by some companies added some color to the scene.

The automotive industry during the first quarter was running ahead of last year. Some of the kindred lines, however, were rather slow, particularly rubber, which was marking time pending important developments.

The fuel industry continued to make a poor showing in most areas. Considerable falling off in orders, resulting from the approach of spring, and the failue to reach agreement on wages in the central district were adverse features. Cold weather in the north, however, has given impetus to the fuel business in that section.

Little of importance developed in the petroleum industry in the domestic field, but the settlement of the long dispute over the Mexican oil laws was hailed as a great step forward. Lumber producers gave cheerful reports of current and prospective business, particularly on the Pacific coast. Gradual expansion, and some firming of prices were seen in the Mississippi valley lumber areas. Car loadings presented a less favorable aspect, with a decline in the third week of March from both the preceding period and the corresponding time of last year.

In textiles, there was further movement of unfinished cottons, although orders in the main were small and of a hand-to-mouth character. Woolens were quiet, a condition attributed to recent production beyond the current needs of the world. Silks continued in steady, if moderate, demand.

There was a noticeable tightening of the money market, affecting call and time loans, as well as commercial paper and bankers' acceptances. This, however, was believed to be based upon the usual heavy need for funds to meet quarter-end requirements, and not necessarily indicating any permanent stiffening of rates.

Bank clearings in the principal financial centers fell back materially from the figures of the week before, but recorded a substantial increase over the corresponding six days of 1927.

His father and mother were natives of Plainfield. He was taken to Rhode Island in his childhood and attended the district schools while later he continued his education in the Plainfield academy and at Yale business college in which he studied for a year. Illness, however, obliged him to return home and later he entered the employ of Waldo Tillinghast. He afterward took up farming on his father's land in the town of Plainfield. In 1890 he purchased a farm and raised cattle and horses, being one of the prominent dealers and live stock raisers of this section. Later he opened a garage which he ran for a few years, then established a trucking business, running regularly between Providence and Norwich. October 20, 1902 Mr. Hall married Miss Evelyn A. Harrey. POETRY

Palm Sunday

He comes! The fronded palms shine out
With golden lights; the air
Stirs to the song of triumph, sung
By throngs that proudly wear
The purple pomp of State or else
The garb of fishermen.
All, all are following apace
A Rider, once again
The center of the stage. A Babe
In manger once was He.
While the three kings of Orient low
Before Him bent the knee.

See how the palms are swift cast down
Before Him! Hear the shout
Of multitudes—but high above
The peans what steals out?
A minor chord, a measured beat,
That shrills o'er land and sea;
The prelude, 'tis, of that great theme
The march to Calvary!

Ah, glorious Rider, crowned with palms
And triumphs, this bright day
Your stage is set for greater things
Than this fair palm-strewed way—
The purple robe, the crown of thorns;
Beyond—the accursed tree—
The Saviour bravely taking up
His march to Calvary!

—Helen Chase.

April First

Mabel and I went fishing:
The law was off for trout.
The merry birds were singing,
And flowers were peeping out.

I long had loved sweet Mabel,
But never had confessed
My love; I now determined
To put my fate to test.

I asked her if she loved me;
If she would be my bride;
With trill of merry laughter
"Of course not," she replied.

"We came out here for fishing,
And not for making love;
Oh, see—there is a big one—"
As from the bank above

She made her cast where rippled
The surface of the pool,
Away the trout swam gaily.
I murmured: "April Fool."

Then pretty Mabel pouted:
"I'm not the only one,
To win today that title—"
Then brighter shone the sun.

The birds sang out more sweetly;
Unheeded in the pool
My fishing-rod—I kissed her,
A happy April Fool.

—Anonymous.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

She—You can't blow rings.
He—Can't, eh? Didn't I blow a 12-carat, gold-filled one on you?—Detroit News.

She (archly)—Promise you won't tell anybody we're engaged!
He—I don't know anybody you haven't told already.—Life.

"You and Thompson don't seem to be so friendly as you were. Does he owe you any money?"
"No; he wants to."—Tit-Bits.

"Nah!" the street orator is quoted as saying in London Opinion. "Any more interruptions and I finishes up—leaving yer ignorant of the 'orrible times in which yer lives."
"Isn't that hair tonic in the green bottle?"
"No, that's mucilage."
"I guess that's why I can't get my cap off!"—Washington Cougar's Paw.

Voice (on phone)—Hello! Is this the fire department?
Lieutenant—Yes. What is it?
Voice—How far is it to the nearest alarm box? My house is on fire and I want to turn in an alarm.—Boston Transcript.

Lady—How much are these chickens?
Butcher—A dollar and a half, ma'am.
Lady—Did you raise them yourself?
Butcher—Yes. They were $1.25 yesterday.—Pathfinder.

The eggs he had been carrying home from the store slipped from the bag and crashed to the sidewalk.
"Oh, my poor man!" a woman cried. "Have you dropped your eggs?"
The other sighed, and then:
"Oh, no, lady," he said softly. "I'm an open-air cooking demonstrator making an omelet on the sidewalk."—The Progressive Grocer.

University of Berlin graduates, on passing their examination for doctor of divinity, will hereafter be presented with a special ring. The ring is adorned with laurel twigs and on a flat disk bears the words, in Greek, "Light—Life." On the inside are engraved the words "Ordo Theologorum Berolinensis," and the date of granting the doctor's degree. The ring was in use before the war, but was later abandoned for economic reasons.

Liquid rubber will be carried to market in tanks, like oil, on the newest British steamers built for the rubber trade. The Greystoke Castle, recently launched, will be equipped with huge tanks capable of holding 1,000 to 1,500 tons of latex or liquid rubber. The steamer is 425 feet long and displaces 13,200 tons. In the past, rubber usually has been dried in the tropics and brought to the occidental factories in sheets.

A little tower of Babel is planted in the heart of Paris, in the Latin quarter, where students from all over the world congregate. It is a newspaper kiosk where the wire racks that display papers and magazines do not offer one in French. Papers in thirty languages are taken regularly and there are almost as many others that come occasionally. The old woman who has this polyglot business has come to recognize the titles even which she can't decipher all the alphabets.

A Roman theatre, apparently the largest built in Roman Gaul, has been discovered at Les Andelys, France. By its form and vast dimensions it offers the greatest interest to archaeologists and students of the history of the Roman occupation. Excavations made up to the present show that its diameter is nearly 400 feet, which it is estimated would give a seating capacity of over 40,000. The theatre at Orange, hitherto regarded as the largest in France, has a diameter of only 327 feet, with accommodation for 42,000.

NEW LONDON'S NEW MILK ORDINANCE GOES INTO EFFECT TODAY, APRIL 2

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 1—No milk can be sold in New London, beginning with tomorrow, except that which comes from tubercular tested herds, or milk which has been pasteurised. This is a result of the city ordinance passed last July. Tests among county herds have been going on ever since the ordinance was passed and they disclosed the alarming fact that fully 75 per cent. of the cattle were unfit to give marketable milk. Complete herds in some instances have been wiped out on account of findings from the tests. Owners, however, lost but little money, as they received a compensation of about seventy-five per cent. of the worth of their stock as a result of the condemnation proceedings.

Richards, retired collector, but that he did question the right of Mr. Holt or any other person to increase the expense of collecting delinquent taxes from $8,000 to $18,000; the amount that Mr. Alexander will receive for about 18 months' work. He was ejected and later, both after the train left Providence and again at Westerly, Cox did the same thing, besides abusing the conductor. When the train reached New London, Cox was turned over to Special Agent Anderson, who Cox declared, would be unable to land him in a cell, although he got there. At police headquarters Cox abused the officers in charge and claimed that as soon as his political friends were informed of his incarceration they would obtain his liberty. Up to a late hour tonight the friends of Cox evidently had not been informed of his plight for no one had interceded for him.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

"Resurrection," the picturization of Count Leo Tolstoy's immortal story of love and sacrifice that opened at the Palace theatre last night, is one of the most realistic pictures that has ever been brought to the screen. Congratulations on the film are in order to Director Edwin Carewe, to United Artists, and to Rod La Rocque and Dolores del Rio, principals. The Inspiration Pictures-Edwin Carewe production of Tolstoy's classic is a powerful and entirely worthy one.

Rod La Rocque, in the role of Prince Dmitri Nekhludof, very nearly plays three characters in one, giving the changes that take place in the soul of the prince and their reflection in his physical appearance. As the dashing, impulsive young prince who declares his love for the peasant girl, Katusha Maslova, he is as boyish and innocently carefree as an undergraduate off the campus. Sketching cinematically the transition to the sophisticated, almost-savage courtier of a few months later, La Rocque is another man, a devil-may-care type to whom nothing is sacred, for whom the whole perspective of life is changed. Finally, as the lover, a fine, upstanding and worthy prince whose soul has been purged in the fires of understanding love, La Rocque reaches the peak.

The star is perfectly balanced by Dolores del Rio as the young peasant girl who bears the brunt of the prince's sin. A finished performance by this versatile senora in the famous part of Katusha Maslova proves her dramatic ability and smashes home to the audience the true meaning of unselfish love. Somehow, one does not hesitate to hazard the belief that this is the finest work of Miss del Rio seen to date.

The actine is uniformly intelligent and highly entertaining, with veterans like Marc McDermott, Vera Lewis, Lucy Beaumont, Clarissa Selwynne and Eve Southern in the cast.

Breed Theatre.

No more colorful and picturesque romantic melodrama has been seen this year than Ramon Novarro's "The Road to Romance," which opened yesterday at the Breed theatre.

It is one of the best cast pictures of the year, is lavishly produced and carries a pulsating love romance in a background of color and thrilling adventure.

The story which was based on Joseph Conrad's most famous novel, has lost none of its virile interest in its transition to the screen at the hands of Director John S. Robertson.

The background is Cuba in the early days of Spanish rule when high officials amassed fortunes and stole women because they were able to operate in a high-handed manner as a result of their league with pirates.

The story is laid in a picturesque Cuban village where a crooked Spanish judge awaits only the death of a girl's brother before seizing her in an effort to compel her to marry him.

The estate is a rendezvous for pirates and there are battles galore to seize and to prevent the seizure of the heroine, a role played by Marceline Day.

Ramon Novarro has the gallant role of Jose Armando, cousin and suitor of the girl. Otto Matieson is seen as the dying brother and Roy D'Arcy, screen villain de luxe, is the "heavy."

Robertson has succeeded in getting much colorful acting from the cast and the picture has been produced in a lavish manner which smacks of the Antilles when half of the ships kept a black flag in the hold to run up at a propitious moment for robbery, murder and rapine.

Novarro gives a splendid portrayal of the role of Jose Armando and looks every inch a Spanish caballero in search of adventure. Miss Day looks like she was worth fighting for and gives a splendid performance of a Spanish gentlewoman.

Strand Theatre.

Promise of a delightful romance of middle class life in New York is made by the management of the Strand theatre, where "It Must Be Love," Colleen Moore's starring picture is being shown tonight and Tuesday night. The story deals with the struggle of a middle class girl to live without friction in a distasteful environment. Because she lives in back of her father's delicatessen store the girl cannot invite friends home without a feeling of inferiority. It is a delightful comedy-drama at its best; yet the most attractive thing about this picture is its innate humanness. When Colleen, as Fernie meets Malcolm McGregor, as Jack, for the first time; when Fernie quarrels with "Pop" and he tells her to get out of his home; when Fernie finds that her father is going to buy a bungalow for them to live in, and she can't accept because she has already told Jack she would marry him—these are a few of the high points in the drama. Adapted from Brooke Hanlon's short story "Delicatessen," this picture is full of laughter, love and life.

"Battling Kangaroo" is a snappy Fox comedy, with plenty of action and boasts of a splendid cast of Fox comedians.

"Fisherman's Luck" is a Tiffany scenic which is shown in attractive colors.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Willys-Knight Six.

TOLEDO, O., March 31.—Simultaneously with the announcement that Willys-Overland's business during the first quarter of 1928 was the greatest three months in the company's history John N. Willys, president, announced last night a drastic reduction in the prices of the Willys-Knight standard six models. The new prices bring these cars $150 lower than any previous Willys-Knight six.

At the new low prices the 5-passenger coach will sell at $995, a reduction of $150; the 5-passenger sedan, reduced $150 now sells at $1,095; the coupe, formerly selling at $1,195, is now listed at $1,045. The touring and roadster models have been reduced to $995. All these new prices are effective immediately, Mr. Willys said.

According to Mr. Willys these new low prices are made possible through various manufacturing economies that have been effected and through the record breaking business done by the company in all its models during the first three months of this year.

He said that the reduction follows the policy of the company to give maximum values to purchasers in every price range.

Willys-Overland's business for the first three months shows an increase of 42 percent over last year, while March, which is the greatest single month's business in the history of the organization shows a 25 percent gain over the previous month.

In announcing the reduced prices on the Willys-Knight standard six models, Mr. Willys said that the new low figures will place these Knight engined sixes within the reach of thousands of additional buyers who were formerly prevented from owning a car with this type of power plant because of price consideration.

THERE is nothing quite like Bayer Aspirin for all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it is genuine Bayer; that name must be on the package, and on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine—in red—is on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box when you buy it:

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

FORTY HOURS' DEVOTION OPENS AT ST. PATRICK'S

The devotion of the Forty Hours, commemorating the period during which the body of the Saviour remained in the tomb preceding His resurrection, opened Sunday following the 10:30 mass at St. Patrick's church. The low mass was read by Rev. John J. Reilly; Rev. Myles P. Galvin read the lengthy Passion of Our Lord, Matthew 26-27, at the gospel. For the Forty Hours, the sanctuary was adorned with fan palms; the altar adornment was carnations and spring flowers.

In the procession of the Blessed Sacrament, the canopy over the Sacred Host was borne by Alexander Kilroy, Thaddeus Leahy, Andrew Deneff and Michael J. Murphy. Several hundred little girls in the procession were daintily dressed in white, the younger ones carrying baskets of flowers to strew in the pathway of the Host, which was borne by Rev. Father Reilly. The crucifer and other boys, who carried lighted tapers, as well as the girls, again showed the painstaking instruction given the parish children by their teachers, the Sisters of Mercy. So remarkably prompt and intelligent was the work done by all the children that a New York man in the congregation, a member of St. Patrick's cathedral parish in Manhattan, declared after the service that he had never seen such a beautiful procession of such small children even in that great city parish.

The choruses given by the choir were good and even and the solos added much to the effect of the mass. At the offertory, Mrs. Bernard M. Coyle sang Ave Maria. Organist Henry J. LaFontaine employed the chimes to good effect in his interludes, also while the procession was forming and before the singing of "Pange Lingua" (Sing, oh my tongue, of the glorious Body telling).

The devotion was preceded at the early masses Sunday by an enormous number of holy communions. During Sunday, there were confessions at 4 to 5:30 and 7 to 8:30. Today (Monday) there will be a number of visiting priests to hear confessions in half a dozen languages, hours being 4-6 and 7-9. This (Monday) morning, also on Tuesday, the masses will be at 5:30, 7 and 8 o'clock, the devotion closing at the 8 o'clock mass Tuesday.

BOY'S LEG IS BROKEN, STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Albert Dewitt, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dewitt of No. 322 Central avenue, sustained a broken leg about 9 o'clock Saturday morning, when he was knocked down near the Greeneville car barn, by a machine driven by John Stankiewicz, of No. 32 White street. Dr. E. J. Brophy was called and had the child taken to the W. W. Backus hospital. Stankiewicz claims that the boy ran out from the sidewalk into the machine.

Expect Wage Rate Compromise

Members of Local No. 524, International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' union, will remain at work under the wage agreement drawn up a year ago, pending the compromise which it is expected will be reached this week. The old agreement expired April 1 and in January the union sent to the contractors a new agreement containing wage increases for the hod carriers, building and common laborers, the new agreement to become effective April 1. The contractors refused to sign the contract, claiming lack of work as the reason.

Spoke in Boston Church

At the completion of the series of lectures given by L. M. Crandall of Norwich Commercial school each week, for the past four weeks, before the employes of one of Boston's large selling organizations, he spoke Sunday by invitation of some of the leaders in the club, before the men's class at Calvary Methodist church in Arlington, a suburb of Boston. His talk to the men's class called "The Three Hundred Club," was on "The Value of Faith and Work in Business or the Bible Class."

TAFTVILLE

Adverse weather conditions Saturday afternoon did not stay members of the Taftville skeet club from enjoying a practice shoot at their regulation course in Lisbon. The high winds and occasional snow flurries, which at times were almost intolerable, were braved by more than two dozen members, who shot over the course and made fine scores. High honors went to Theodore Kendall with 17 out of a possible 25, George Kramer, Lawrence Krauss and "Winnie" Smith dogging his tracks with 16. The club has been organized since the early part of February, the members meeting for practice shoots on the first and third Saturdays and Wednesdays.

A small fire in the cellar of the house on Merchants avenue owned and occupied by Arthur Fontaine and family was extinguished by members of the Taftville fire department, who responded to a summons at 7 o'clock Sunday evening. A 1½ inch line of hose was laid and put to service, the blaze being extinguished without any material damage. Several beams were charred by the fire, which started from a short circuit in the electric lighting system.

GOOD FRIDAY BUSINESS DEPLORED BY PRIEST

"The United States is a Christian nation," said Rev. Myles P. Galvin, in making the holy week announcements from the pulpit of St. Patrick's church Sunday at the high mass. "For that reason it is offensive to the majority of people when Good Friday is commercialized, as it is in Norwich. The merchants here will close their stores for the birthday of George Washington—which is laudable, patriotic, fine, but on the day of the year which is solemn and sacred to such a large proportion of the people they keep their stores open, something to which Catholics and many others never take kindly, which has never proved a successful innovation for those who started the practice."

Rev. Father Galvin declared that the only way to convince merchants of the fact that commercializing the sacred day is displeasing to a great proportion of the townspeople is to absolutely buy nothing—except of course reasonable necessities—on any Good Friday.

The rather recent practice of keeping open on the time-honored New England "Fast Day" is equally as obnoxious to many in other denominations; and it has always excited the ill-feeling of the clerks, whatever the religious beliefs of those employes.

The excuse of the merchants has been that they cannot take care of the entire Easter business on Easter Saturday, hence need the Friday trade also. But the clerks claim that if it were known that the stores would be closed Good Friday, shoppers would do thei rbuying on Thursday.

CLOSED SPECIAL SERVICES AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The special lenten services conducted at the First Baptist church during the week beginning with Sunday came to a close Friday evening with a splendid attendance. Rev. E. C. Dunbar, the pastor, had spent the previous week with Rev. Frederick P. Freeman of Ansonia in special work of similar character exchanging pulpits on Sunday, and Mr. Freeman has been assisting here during the week in friendly visitation work and preaching in the evenings.

The plan of exchange which has been in operation among many Baptist churches in Connecticut this year has been most helpful, and the churches and pastors alike have received much helpful stimulus in their work. A large group of members will be received into the membership at the First Baptist church at Easter time and the church has a hopeful outlook for a larger and better service.

Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Service

The Sunday afternoon service at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. was one of real interest. After the opening exercises of singing, scripture reading and prayer, several reels of attractive moving pictures were shown, including "Byrd's Polar Flight," a reel on Nazareth and a Pathe review.

During the service Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk and he spoke in part as follows: "Let us think for a few moments of some wonderful achievements. We recall the great work of George Washington, who is justly called 'The Father of His Country.' Then think of Abraham Lincoln, who was a savior in a sense of the colored race in America, and certainly a savior of his country; we do well to honor him. This picture story of Commander Byrd's great accomplishment in flying to the North Pole, is the story of courage and steadfastness. Charles Lindbergh has become the hero of America, by his unusual achievement. He was called 'the flying fool,' but behold what he has done. We might go on and speak of many others who have accomplished great things, but time forbids.

"Humans have indeed accomplished many wonderful things, but the most significant accomplishment of the ages, was that of the Almighty, when He gave His beloved Son for the world's salvation. See Him as He allows cruel men to nail Him to the cross, and as He hung there, bled there and died there, He accomplished redemption for all who will accept it. Behold how He loved us, and let us learn more and more to love and serve Him."

MRS. GARDNER INVITED TO GIVE RECITAL IN MILAN

Her friends in Norwich and New London are greatly pleased at the news which comes from Milan, Italy, that Mrs. Leila Troland Gardner, of New York, who is a native of Norwich, has been invited to give a recital of her songs and Negro spirituals at the Royal Conservatory, Milan. As Mrs. Gardner, while teaching English diction to pupils studying singing in Milan, the past winter is also taking a course in harmony and composition at the Royal conservatory, it is possible that her recital may be deferred until her next visit abroad, when her days will be less crowded. Maestro Bossi, of the conservatory warmly commends Mrs. Gardner's diligence and progress in the courses of study which she is taking. She was invited to teach a summer class by Maestro Carpi. But business is calling her back to New York and she is planning to leave Milan April 15th for Paris, London, Dublin and Belfast, then to Scotland. It is her plan to sail from Glasgow to Quebec and to visit Montreal and Toronto, after a brief visit to Niagara Falls sailing from Albany for New York. Mrs. Gardner has been successful with her pupils as well as with her studies, during a very busy and profitable winter.

CHILDREN WRITE LETTERS ON TUBERCULOSIS CARE

The following are letters written by Norwich school children upon the subject of tuberculosis to which their attention has been particularly called for the past week:

Thousands of people have tuberculosis and never know it. About two people in every hundred break down with this disease. Even you may have tuberculosis and not know it.

When you feel tired you think it is laziness but it is fatigue. We may have two or three combinations but don't know it.

When you get a cold you ought to look out for it. If it is over two weeks you may have tuberculosis. Go to your doctor and let him decide.

Loss of weight is accompanied by lost of pep or a tired-all-the-time feeling. It may be tuberculosis. Go to your doctor.

JOHN CZWBANSKI,
St. Joseph's school.

Tuberculosis

Tuberculosis is a disease of the lungs. It may be caused by a very minute germ which usually enters the body with the air we breathe. It may come with a cough. Tuberculosis also affects the other organs of the body.

To keep free from tuberculosis we should take care of our bodies. We should get our 11 hours sleep. Drink milk at every meal. Play in the fresh air and sunshine.

If we find we are easily tired, losing weight, we should call the doctor and follow his advice until we are strong again.

ROSALIE CUMMINGS,
Grade IV, Greeneville.

Tuberculosis

This picture represents a man having his lungs tested. If you have a cough more than two weeks you must go and see the doctor and let him decide. It may be tuberculosis. Take no chances, thousands of people have tuberculosis and don't even know it. You must let your doctor decide whether you have it or not. If told by a doctor that there is danger for you to have tuberculosis, you should get proper treatment at home or in sanatorium, and not wait till it is too late. There is a good sanatorium in Norwich where many people were brought back to health after they had been there for a short time.

MABEL GOUIN,
S. H. S., Taftville.

PUTNAM MAN'S MACHINE IN COLLISION IN OXFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

OXFORD, Mass., April 1—Walter Newton Phillips of 91 Bolles street, Putnam, Conn., narrowly escaped injury last week when his automobile was badly damaged as it collided with another car driven by Dr. Robert S. Fletcher.

Dr. Fletcher had just crossed Main street from the postoffice when Phillips, who was going toward Webster, is said to have sideswiped the doctor's car in an effort to cut in around it. The impact turned the coupe over on its side so that it was necessary for Phillips to crawl out through the top, which had been torn off in the mixup. The machine was towed to a garage. The only damage to the doctor's car was a bent mud cap.

CHESTERFIELD STORE IS TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE

A one story frame building, occupied as a grocery store by John R. Kaplan, at Chesterfield, was totally destroyed with a loss of approximately $3,000 by fire which broke out at 5 o'clock Saturday morning and the casino, a dance hall, adjoining the store on the east side, was saved only by the excellent work on the part of the members of Niagara Engine company of New London. When the Niagara apparatus and Deputy Fire Chief Calvin N. Edmonds arrived at Chesterfield after a rapid response to a call for assistance, the store was a mass of flames, and it was at once apparent that the structure was doomed. A bucket brigade was engaged in an attempt to prevent the flames from communicating to the dance hall.

The Niagara pumper went into position at the side of a small pond, located on the opposite side of the street and about 400 feet east of the casino, and through hose laid across the Hartford turnpike tons of water were poured into the grocery store and on the dance pavilion. The cause of the fire has not been definitely determined, but an overheated stove is believed to have been responsible.

HOUSE IS UNANIMOUS FOR POSTAL RATES REDUCTION

Vote Calls For Restoration of the 1921 Charges—Would Establish a One-Cent Postcard and Lower Rates on Second and Third Class Mail Matter—Postoffice Committee Estimated That It Would Cause a Loss in Revenue to the Postoffice Department of $13,585,000 During the Fiscal Year 1929—Measure Now Goes to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, April 2—(AP)—A downward revision of the postal rates, calling for a restoration of the 1921 charges, was approved today by the house by unanimously passing the Greenwood bill. The measure now goes to the senate.

A controversial question for several years, the passage of the measure marked the first house approval of a reduction of postal rates. The measure is the sixth general postal rate revision in the country's history.

The bill would establish a one cent postcard, and would lower rates on second and third class mail matter, including newspaper zone mailing charges and on parcel post matter.

Newspaper publishers, however, who before the committee argued that the 1921 basis was not sufficient, had sought for a return to the 1920 rate level.

The postoffice committee in a report on the bill estimated that it would cause a loss in revenue to the postoffice department of $13,585,000 during the fiscal year 1929. The measure, the committee said, had the support of the postoffice department and was designed to stimulate the postal business by equalizing the rates.

A new postal service, two cent business reply cards and envelopes, would be established by the measure.

On advertising portions of newspapers, a reduction would be provided with a lowering of zones one and two, from two cents per pound to 1 3-4 cents per pound; zone three, from three to 2 1-4 cents; zone four, six to four cents; zone five, six to 4 3-4 cents; zone six, six to 5 1-2 cents; zone seven, nine to seven cents; zone eight, nine to 7 3-4 cents.

Fourth class parcel post zone rates would be lowered from two cents for each two ounces to one cent. On bulk pound rates a new third class service for mailing of lots of 200 pieces of 20 pounds, would be inaugurated, with a rate of eight cents per pound with minimum of one cent per piece for books, catalogues, seeds and bulbs, and on other matter 12 cents per pound with a one cent per piece minimum. On fourth class mail matter including merchandise and printed material a general lowering of one cent on the first pound on all the zone rates would be put in effect.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE TELLS OF "BLACKLIST" OF THE D. A. R

EMPORIA, Kas., April 2—(AP)—William Allen White, Emporia editor and author, today declared that leaders of the Daughters of the American Revolution have been "lured into the red hunting mania by the tea gladiators of Washington."

Mr. White's name is inscribed on the blacklist of the D. A. R., it was revealed in Boston. He said the Kansas D. A. R. had placed him on its blacklist two years ago "and the net effect of the action was to get the D. A. R. laughed at."

"The D. A. R. is all right," declared the editor, "just foolish leadership and a taste for idle, apoplectic old gentlemen in red flannels who escape the boredom of their rich wives by sitting in the club windows of Washington and bemoaning the decadence of a grown world.

"The retired army officers in Washington," he averred, "hypnotize the silver old girls of the D. A. R."

Mr. White said he was down on the list as a socialist, although he had contributed for years to the republican party, was a republican national convention delegate in 1920 and again this year.

"The D. A. R. also blacklists the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the National Federation of Women's Clubs, the League of Women Voters and all the anti-child labor organizations as communistic," he continued.

EDEL TO BE RETURNED TO FACE MURDER INDICTMENT

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 2—(AP)—Federal authorities here decided tentatively tonight that Fred W. Edel, held on postal fraud charges, will be returned to New York to face an indictment charging him with the murder of Mrs. Emmeline Harrington there last December.

Final decision will be made tomorrow, at the conclusion of conferences with John F. MacGowan of New York, assistant district attorney, and two detectives, who came here today to get Edel, if the federal authorities have consent to his release.

Edel is held, unable to furnish $25,000 bond, pending action by the federal grand jury on charges that he raised postal money orders and cashed them in a number of cities from New York to St. Paul. He was arrested a week ago.

Lafayette French, United States district attorney here, and Rush D. Simmons, postal inspector, said tonight the evidence against Edel in the New York case was sufficiently complete to warrant his surrender to that state. No difficulty is expected in the matter of extradition.

REPUBLICANS LOOKING FOR KEYNOTE SPEAKER

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 2—(AP)—Putting their plans upset by the refusal of Charles Evans Hughes to act as temporary chairman of the national convention and keynote speaker, and by more work than expected, members of the republican national committee's sub-committee spent a day in conference here today without having taken any discussion of a keynoter.

Sub-committee members said, selection of a keynote speaker had not been touched upon formally and they could not say when a selection would be announced. J. Henry Roraback of Connecticut said he believed Mr. Hughes refusal was definite and that the committee was left up in the air.

Several names were mentioned today as the possible selection of the committee, those most prominently talked of being Senators Simeon Fess of Ohio, Frederick Gillett of Massachusetts and George N. Moses of New Hampshire. Others mentioned included Senators Arthur Capper of Kansas, Charles S. Deneen of Illinois and Irvine Lenroot of Wisconsin and former Governor Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri.

STORM FAILS TO DISMAY LIFEBOAT OCEAN VOYAGERS

MARGATE, England, April 2—(AP)—The little Dutch lifeboat Schuttevaer, which left London March 19 for a trans-Atlantic voyage with New York as her objective, was in Margate tonight. The crew, including Captain Schuttevaer, the inventor and first helmsman, demonstrated their claim, that the boat was unsinkable, but they were somewhat disillusioned as to traveling power.

Tremendous seas and a fierce gale mauled the craft when she swung into the English channel. The boat managed to get past Dover and Folkestone, but off Eastbourne was forced to drop anchor. The rope soon snapped, and so, battened down tight, the crew rattled around inside the craft while huge billows and a western wind chased them back around Foreland and into the North sea again.

The lifeboat is now undergoing small repairs and will soon be ready to try for Plymouth once more.

"We are going to cross the Atlantic," said Skipper Smit, undismayed, insisting that no sea can sink the bobbing boat. "We are going to prove to the world that we can face wind and seas that no open boat can sail against."

RAIN, SNOW, TERRIFIC WINDS IN NORTHWEST

SEATTLE, Wash., April 2—(AP)—Besieged on land and sea, the northwest today felt the full fury of a parting wintry thrust that lashed the region from Saskatoon to San Francisco with rain, snow, cloudbursts and terrific winds and imperilled shipping along the raleswept coastline.

Swollen rivers caused near flood conditions in some areas, others were beclogged with ice jams and snows blanketed the mountains while in the broad Pacific two ships were known to be in distress.

Both the sailing schooner K. V. Kruse, 117 days out of Australia for Seattle and the steamer Jane Nettleton, southbound from Puget Sound, reported they were in trouble. Five men who Saturday took off in a lifeboat to aid the distressed schooner Helen B. Sterling off the Oregon coast were adrift in the stormy sea.

LENROOT AND SMOOT CONTRADICT A. B. FALL

WASHINGTON, April 2—(AP)—Both Senator Smoot of Utah, and former Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin denied flatly today that they at any time had suggested to Albert B. Fall, former interior secretary, that he write the McLean $100,000 loan letter to the senate Teapot Dome committee.

These two senators, Lenroot as chairman and Smoot as a member of the Teapot Dome committee, called on Fall at his hotel here late in 1923, at the time when the senate oil investigators were seeking to ascertain the source of the funds the former cabinet officer used in extending his New Mexico ranch holdings. They explained then and reiterated today, that the purpose of their visit was to urge Fall to tell the whole story to the committee.

COAT OF ARMS FAILED TO SAVE LIFE OF ATTORNEY

MADILL, Okla., April 2—(AP)—A coat of armor failed to save Franz Kim, county attorney, when bullets were used today to settle an argument between him and Ed Long, the sheriff. Kim was in a critical condition tonight.

The shooting climaxed a meeting of county commissioners of Marshall county, where the sheriffs' claim of $62 for returning a prisoner from another state was being discussed. After some argument, the attorney left, announcing he would return with "the difference," commissioners said.

He reappeared soon in an adjoining office with a revolver in one hand and wearing a steel breast plate and back plate. The sheriff met him, he said, and ordered him to put down his revolver. When he failed the sheriff said he fired three times, one of the bullets grazed the lower edge of the breast plate and seriously wounded him. The commissioner corroborated the sheriff's story.

Sheriff Long surrendered to a justice of the peace and was held under technical arrest, free on his own recognizance.

Michigan Endorses Hoover and Smith

Vote For Presidential Preference Was One of the Lightest in the History of State.

DETROIT, April 2—(AP)—Herbert Hoover, republican, and Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, democrat, were given endorsement as presidential nominees by Michigan voters in a preferential primary today. Unofficial reports indicated the lightest vote for presidential preference in one of the lightest in the history of the state. Neither candidate had any opposed on his party ticket.

It was estimated that fewer than one tenth of Detroit's 463,915 registered voters went to the polls.

While only the names of Smith and Hoover appeared on the ballots voters took advantage of their privilege to scratch these entries and substitute names of other preferred candidates. The name of Senator Thomas Walsh of Montana appeared frequently on the democratic ballots.

Prior to his death, Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris, democrat, expressed his preference for Senator Walsh. The state republican organization has been strongly in favor of Hoover's candidacy.

Exceptions to the generally light vote cast throughout the state, occurred in municipalities and townships in which there were local contests.

Wayne county (Detroit) democrats chose delegates to their county convention.

EXPORTATION OF CAPITAL CAUSE OF UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, April 2—(AP)—A "tremendous exportation of capital to Europe to build up foreign industries during the last few years" was given today by Senator Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota, as one of the reasons for unemployment in the United States.

"I want to call attention to the fact that the shrinkage in wage earners from 1920 to January 1, 1928, has been 32.6 per cent.," he said.

The Minnesota senator quoted figures from the employment index showing that for the period 1920 to 1923, shrinkage in wage earners was 16.8 per cent., or 4,237,420; 1923 to 1925, 8.8 per cent., or 2,219,600; 1925 to 1928, 7.43 per cent., or 1,874,050.

At Odds With Coolidge on the Farm Relief Bill

Senator Watson, Republican, Takes Issue With the Chief Executive and His Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, April 2—(AP)—Issue with President Coolidge and his cabinet was taken in the senate today by Senator Watson of Indiana, a republican presidential candidate, in championing the controversial equalization fee provision of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill.

Opening debate on the bill seeking a solution of the long-standing controversy over farm relief, Senator Watson declared the issue had resolved into the feasibility of the equalization fee by which it is proposed to raise funds for marketing surplus crops.

The Indiana senator, who is opposing Secretary Hoover in his state for presidential delegates, recalled that the republican platform called for farm relief. President Coolidge vetoed the McNary-Haugen bill a year ago because of the equalization fee among other reasons.

"President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon and Secretary Jardine," Watson said, "all admit the presence of this problem and all have suggested a solution, but congress has taken a different view and arrived at a different conclusion.

"However, it is manifest that all persons are anxious to carry out the platform pledge and are willing to go as far as possible toward reconciling their views to achieve the common purpose."

Senator Borah, republican, of Idaho, an opponent of the equalization fee, which he contends is unconstitutional, was somewhat critical of the powers invested in the farm board under the bill to resort to the equalization fee.

GERMAN PRESS FAVORABLE TO THE POINCARE PROPOSAL

Premier of France is Inclined to Permit Germany To Sell Railroad and Industrial Bonds, to Settle Debts More Rapidly—The Bonds Are Now Pledged For the Payment of Reparations and are Not Negotiable in the Open Market—They Represent a Value Approximating $4,000,000,000.

BERLIN, April 2—(AP)—Premier Poincare's Carcassonne speech is favorably received by the majority of the German press, which usually takes umbrage at Poincare's remarks.

Some papers express belief that the speech heralds a change in the course of French foreign policy towards Germany and it is even intimated that American influence is discernible. The Mittag Zeitung says that references by the French premier to Franco-German reconciliation, evacuating of the Rhineland and debt settlement on the basis of revision of the Dawes plan are much the same as proposals made by S. Parker Gilbert, agent-general for reparations.

It also was stated that it was significant that six days ago, just after a meeting between Premier Poincare and J. P. Morgan, a number of American financial experts abruptly embarked for Europe.

The Vossische Zeitung, under the caption "Poincare's Metamorphosis" considers the premier's speech thusly: "For the first time it unreservedly endorses Foreign Minister Briand's policy in a truly European spirit indicative of France's readiness for peace and conciliation" and as a step toward revision of the Dawes plan and evacuation of the Rhineland.

The Nationalist Lokal-Anzeiger, however, fails to agree with the proposal for settling reparations through sale of the German railway debentures as it is "doubtful whether the international, especially the American money market would be able to absorb 16,000,000,000 marks of railway bonds."

The Tageblatt expresses pleasure that "Poincare's deliberations apparently are dominated by regard for a practical peace policy," and described the speech as marking noticeable progress on the long march ahead.

The ultra-conservative Kreuz Zeitung while admitting that the speech is markedly milder than all preceding ones by the premier, expresses belief that it is dictated by the coming elections, while the Boersen Courier, in the same strain, says: "It is a pleasure to watch Poincare's intellect election campaign."

INFERENCE DRAWN FROM THE POINCARE SPEECH

PARIS, April 2—(AP)—Inference drawn in political circles from Premier Poincare's speech at Carcassonne yesterday that he is seriously considering the possibility of making German railroad and industrial Dawes bonds saleable are confirmed in official circles where it was said today, however, that no definite plan has been agreed upon.

In any event, it was said, there is no possibility as has been suggested that banks substitute themselves for the Dawes organization. In carrying out such a scheme their role would be simply to help market the bonds when they are ready for sale.

In his speech yesterday the premier said that with proper regard for French security and right to reparations, France would "willingly accept when the time comes arrangements by which marketing of the bonds will permit our recent allies, Germany and us, to settle our debts more rapidly."

This scheme has been under consideration for the past three years, but the French have felt that while money was high the bonds could not be commercialized without a considerable concession in their market price. Now that money is easier, the French government regards the prospect as better.

The bonds, which are in the form of two pieces of paper whereby German railroads and industries are pledged for the payment of reparations, are not negotiable on the open market at present. They represent 16,000,000,000 gold marks or approximately $4,000,000,000.

A reference by the premier to the question of war debts also was taken in Paris as meaning that at least part of the bond sales would be applied to reducing war debts.

"No nation appreciates more than ours the economic solidarity that binds closely all the peoples of the world," the premier said in the course of his speech. "Far from thinking of isolating ourselves, we are firmly resolved to work more and more for the universal rapprochement of minds which will prepare and some day assure the rapprochement of hearts."

TO ATTEND THE FUNERAL OF FRANK B. WILLIS

WASHINGTON, April 2—(AP)—Eight senators and 17 members of the house left tonight for Ohio to attend the funeral of Frank B. Willis. Detraining at Columbus tomorow morning they will go to Delaware shortly before noon for the services, and will return to Washington tomorrow night.

In the delegation were Senator Fess, of Ohio, who will eulogize his dead colleague at the funeral and Senators Jones and Dill of Washington, Watson of Indiana, Moses of New Hampshire, Metcalf of Rhode Island, Thomas of Oklahoma and McKellar of Tennessee. Senators Curtis of Kansas, Robinson of Arkansas, Bingham of Connecticut and Robinson of Indiana also named to the funeral committee were unable to make the trip.

The house delegation was led by Speaker Longworth, and included other Ohio representatives. Three Ohioans, Kearns, Moore and Tompson were detained here by illness while Representatives Davey and McSweeney already are in Ohio.

Walter F. Brown, assistant secretary of commerce, whose home is in Toledo, also left tonight to attend the Willis funeral. He has been one of the directors of Secretary Hoover's fight for Ohio convention delegates in opposition to Senator Willis.

FIRES IN FOREST RESERVE VIRTUALLY UNDER CONTROL

WALDRON, Ark., April 2—(AP)—Favored by winds that made "back firing" possible, workers believed late today they had brought several scores of fires in the Ouachita National Forest reserve virtually under control. Shifting winds however, might convert the seeming victory into another defeat.

Two Arkansas National Guard planes patrolled the area today in an effort to detect new fires.

Approximately four thousand of the 1,000,000 acres in the reserve have been destroyed with losses exceeding $200,000. Ine timber in the forest has an estimated value of $20,000,000 with the value of millions of feet of potential pine timber unestimated.

Efforts to check the fires by "trenching" were abandoned because of the rocky ground and "backfires" and hand fighting were methods used by the fighters.

A sea of smoke was visible over sections of six counties from the air. At four thousand feet altitude the fliers reported they were still in the smoke strata. Observation towers in the reserve were useless because of the dense clouds of smoke.

No towns are threatened by the fires the area being sparsely settled and rough.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES ARE PLEDGED FOR SMITH

ALBANY, N. Y., April 2—(AP)—Every democratic candidate for election at tomorrow's presidential primary in New York state is irrevocably committed to the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith for president by the democratic national convention, at Houston, Texas.

The plan of the republican leaders is for an unpledged state delegation to the national convention of their party at Kansas City.

Only five contests for district delegates confront the votes of both parties at the polls tomorrow. Three of these fights are in the republican ranks, two in New York city and a third in the Erie-Niagara congressional district. There are two democratic contests upstate.

The democratic delegates-at-large and alternates-at-large will be appointed by the democratic state committee, at a meeting to be held at the National Democratic club, New York city, on April 17.

STEPHENSON PLACES KLAN IN A DIABOLICAL LIGHT

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 2—(AP)—D. C. Stephenson, former head of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, who is serving a life term in the Indiana state prison, charges in a deposition filed in federal court here today that "Imperial Wizard" W. H. Evans of the klan instigated the slaying of Capt. William S. Coburn, Atlanta, Ga., attorney, because Coburn "was going to bring out some embarrassing matters in a suit against the klan."

Capt. Coburn, the deposition said, was actually killed by "Phil Fox," who Evans told me he was filling full of "poisoned meat," elaborating on this statement so that I was given to understand that he was telling Fox that he, Evans, could prove that Coburn was circulating stories derogatory to the character of Mrs. Fox. Fox finally became so incensed that he said he was going to kill Coburn."

The deposition, obtained at the Michigan city prison by Van A. Barrickman, Pittsburgh attorney who is counsel for interests seeking to have the klan barred from functioning in Pennsylvania, also says the klan never had a national policy, its entire ambitions being based on the personal ambitions of Evans. Stephenson said an audit was never made of its fiscal affairs.

The Indiana prisoner charged that Evans "framed" evidence to bring about his imprisonment, and he branded the dying statement of Madge Oberholtzer, for whose slaying he was convicted, as utterly untrue. The girl's deposition played a large part in the former klan leader's conviction.

"None of the facts leading up to the cause of her death are true," he asserted. "She did not die from the causes attributed to her demise but from another cause, the effects of a deadly poison which was administered to her by force at least 15 days after she is alleged to have accompanied me on a trip to Hammond."

He said the jury that tried him was "fixed" by Evans and he added that he did not take the stand at his trial because of threats that he would be murdered if he did so.

All the officials of the Indiana state prison "are dumb devotees of Evans," Stephenson charges.

Stephenson also charged the klan was involved in bootlegging operations; that Evans dominated courts, trial jurors, the legislatures of various states and juggled the funds of states he controlled through the men he had elected.

CONSOLIDATION OF TWO BOSTON TOWING COMPANIES

BOSTON, April 2—(AP)—The passing of the old sailing vessel and the advent of the easily handled steam and motor ship today drove two of the oldest bay and harbor tug boat companies in Boston into a consolidation that will become effective in a few weeks. The merger affects the Commercial Towing company and the Doane Towboat company. Both were founded more than 50 years ago. The new concern will be known as the Doane-Commercial Towing company and will operate a fleet of 11 tugs under the same officials.

JOSEPH VERTEFEUILLE ALMOST INSTANTLY KILLED BY AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 3—Joseph Vertefeuille, aged about 65, of 28 Maple avenue, this city, met with almost instantaneous death about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon when he was struck by a Cadillac coupe driven by Edward Newhall, Jr., of Lynn, Mass., near the Amston Grain mill on the Hebron-Columbia highway. Vertefeuille had gone to Amston for a ride with his nephew, Martin Roy, a driver for the Laramie Bros. Wet Wash of this city. The truck, driven by Roy, stopped opposite the home of Mrs. Ira C. Turnbeu in Amston. The elderly man started across the road with the intention of getting a washing from the Turnbeu house. As he was about in the center of the highway it is said that Roy called out a warning that a car was approaching. Vertefeuille turned and seeing the machine he became confused and stepped backward and then forward again into the path of the car. He was caught in the bumper of the Cadillac and dragged a distance of about 120 feet.

Medical Examiner Dr. Cyrus E. Pendleton of Colchester was summoned by Henry J. Bailey, station agent at Amston, and it was found that Vertefeuille had sustained multiple injuries consisting of fractured ribs, broken leg, fractured skull and a penetrating cut over the left eye. The body was taken in charge by Avery and VanZandt and removed to this city. The Cadillac driven by Newhall was owned by Robert Franzen of Succasunna, N. J., who was a passenger in the car and who, with Newhall and Lucius Stebbins, son of Dr. A. L. Stebbins of Colchester were on their way to Colby college, Waterville, Me. Two officers from the state police barracks from Hartford answered a summons and after a preliminary investigation placed Newhall under bonds of $1,000 on a technical manslaughter charge and fixed a date for a hearing in the Hebron town court as April 20. Bonds were furnished by Dr. Stebbins. Joseph Veterfeuille was born in St. Zepherin, Can., and resided in this city for a number of years. He had retired from active work some three years ago. He is survived by his wife, Delzemire Verterfeuille and ten around children, four daughters and six sons and several grand children.

No action was taken on the matter of improving the fire protection facilities at the annual meeting of the Windham Center district held in the Windham Center school Saturday night. The district committee was chosen to comprise C. Arthur Keeney, Donald MacDonald and J. Raymond Smith. H. Clinton Lathrop was moderator of the meeting and Cassius A. Barstow, clerk. After one hour's debate on the project to improve the road from the green to St. Paul's church an appropriation of $1,000 was voted to construct 800 feet of the road with six inches of gravel and necessary drainage. To meet this appropriation a two mill tax on the grand list of the borough was voted in addition to the two mill tax for the general expenses of the district. The treasurer's report shows a balance of $149.55. The collector reported $470.01 paid on tax collections to the treasurer on the two mill assessment.

JEWETT CITY

HOW ELIMINATION PLAN APPEARS TO ONE READER

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, April 3—A letter signed Citizen, published recently in this column, has evoked the following comment:

The "Citizen" who wrote you in regard to the elimination of the railroad crossing, must know that the people of Jewett City are united in whatever they undertake, whether they live on South Main street, East Main street, or "Tin Pot," or in between. The undertaking may be a Fourth of July parade, a baseball team, the Red Cross, or the buying of a pumper.

The people may differ in method, yet they will act together when it is necessary to accomplish the end desired.

The "Citizen" must know that the approach to Jewett City from the south is one of the loveliest in eastern Connecticut.

If the proposed road moves homes back and makes the back doors of others face the main thoroughfare and leaves other homes on by-streets, (I am quoting) "It will ruin the lovely approach to their town and will turn back the hands of progress for many years."

The "Citizen" must know that the curtailment of business would be a serious affair to many, especially garage and gas stations.

The "Citizen" must know also that the danger from swift moving automobiles is one hundred times greater than the railroad crossing, as it now stands. Of course there is often delay at the crossing and we may get impatient if we have to wait a few minutes, especially those who drive machines; but we had better wait a few minutes than disroll the beautiful homes in Lisbon and on South Main street.

There are some things that even the great commonwealth of Connecticut cannot buy—it may destroy, yet it cannot buy hope or happiness, or the love of home. Public necessity or convenience may demand that homes be given up; but is this a necessity? It may be a convenience, nevertheles the price paid is far and away beyond the value of the convenience.

If this hearing to be held in Hartford was held in Jewett City, business in Jewett City would be at a standstill until it was over.

To the people of Jewett City I would say that I do not believe Mr. Finn ("Dan") or Mr. Jodoin or Mr. French or any others that are in power, want to sacrifice the homes (beautiful or humble) for the convenience of the public that are rushing through Jewett City.

I would urge all that can go to Hartford to this hearing to do so and say if you want to sacrifice your friends and neighbors homes, and if not to say No!

The Romance of Gas ...THE BETTER FUEL

GAS is rapidly becoming the fuel of the nation. During the past twenty-five years while the population of the United States has increased 50% the sale of manufactured gas has increased seven times as fast—or 352%. For more than a century the gas industry has gone ahead quietly and steadily—inventing, perfecting and producing. Today it is realized more than ever that gas offers many conveniences to our health, comfort and well-being, not alone in the home but in all industrial and commercial fields as well.

In the majority of American homes gas is performing services that spell the difference between toil and comfort . . . confinement and leisure. More and more are recognized the unsurpassed facilities that gas offers for cooking, water heating, home heating, incineration and refrigeration. Gas has been found to be a fuel entirely free from inconveniences—clean, always available, adequate, requiring a minimum of attention, no storage or handling.

The gas industry is highly appreciative of its obligations to serve you in every possible way. It maintains laboratories for the testing of processes and appliances—that your interests may be safeguarded. It recommends the most efficient and economical equipment for the use of gas for whatever purpose you need it in your home.

Call on your local gas company for demonstrations of cooking, water heating, house heating, refrigeration, incineration and other uses for GAS—THE BETTER FUEL.

For the benefit of the people of New England a series of messages, of which this is one, is being published by the gas industry of New England. They contain interesting information about GAS—THE BETTER FUEL—and its importance in your home.

DANIELSON

STATE OFFICER IS FINED FOR BREACH OF PEACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 2—Out of Sterling comes a story of the fining in a justice's court, on a charge of breach of the peace, of State Officer Emil Castagna of the Danielson barracks. In itself a very minor matter, a check-up of the case shows, it takes on general interest because it involves a state officer with a splendid record of efficiency. Other than the acknowledgment that the officer had been presented before Justice Byron Young of the town of Sterling and fined $5 on the charge mentioned, no information was available about the case at the barracks here today.

This may be said about it, however, on other sources of information: Officer Castagna demurred to the complaint when he was presented in court, but the demurrer was over-ruled and he was found guilty, whereupon an appeal of the case to the superior court was taken. It appears that it is not so much that a small fine was imposed, as that a major principle is involved, and this pertains to hailing state officers into court on charges such as are involved in this case.

It appears that an overloaded truck carrying stone in connection with operations of the Marriott Granite Works of Oneco was halted last week by state officers and the driver subsequently ordered to appear in court. The truck, it is understood from Sterling sources, was not owned by the granite people.

What brought about a subsequent interview between Officer Castagna and Fred Marriott of the granite works also remains obscure, but the upshot of it was the filing of a charge of breach of the peace against the officer, presumably on the grounds that the officer had talked in some unwarranted way to Mr. Marriott, which the officer tacitly denies, it may be assumed, through the fact that he ignored the opportunity to contest the case in the Sterling court, preferring to demur, be found guilty and have the matter brought to the attention of the superior court.

The case is the first of the kind developing in this state police district. Naturally, department regulations prohibit the state officer from giving any interviews for publication, so his version of whatever may have occurred between himself and Mr. Marriott must await the presentation of the case in the higher court. It may be said, however, from all that can be unofficially learned about the case that the entire issue involves no more than a conversation between the officer and the Sterling man, and the nature of that conversation.

The Killingly Trust company, Danielson, Connecticut, is offering to the public on behalf of the syndicate the new preferred stock of the Powdrell and Alexander, Inc., and would be pleased to receive the orders of all those interested in purchasing the stock—adv.

One of the largest funerals at St. James' church in a long time was that of Patrick F. Murray, held from his home on Academy street this morning with services at 9 o'clock.

A large number of relatives and friends was at the church including representations of Rose of Lima council, K. of C., and Putnam lodge of Elks.

Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., was celebrant of the solemn high mass of requiem with Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., and Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., as deacon and sub-deacon.

Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery at Wauregan, the committal service conducted by Fr. McCarthy. The wealth of magnificent floral tributes attested the esteem in which Mr. Murray was held. The bearers were James R. Walsh, John Weaver, Daniel O'Connell, John Govern, James Ward and Edward A. Sullivan. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

There was a few minutes Saturday evening when the Congregational church at Wauregan was threatened with destruction by fire. A janitor who had built a fire in one of the furnaces to heat the church for the Sunday morning service and was in the basement waiting to check it at the proper time was surprised when the electric lights went out. Glancing up he discovered that floor boards were in a red glow, and the indications were that the fire had burned off the electric light wire. Summoning help the fire was quickly subdued with extinguishers and without any serious damage to the building.

This afternoon the horizon to the westward was blurred with billowing smoke rising from forest fires that apparently were several miles distant from Danielson. At the present time woodland and grassland territory all through this section are particularly dry and the danger of forest fires imminent at all times. In this connection it is recalled that forest fire wardens recently requested all who frequnet the woods or fields to be particularly careful to guard against the setting of fires.

Hardy of the Worcester police. Detective Hardy and his prisoner were passengers on the liner "Carinthia" that docked in New York Monday. County Game Warden J. Frederick Ash and his deputies are now keeping an extra vigil over the streams throughout the county to prevent any of the non-resident sportsmen taking fish from them. The law was changed at the last session of the general assembly and went into effect this year. Warden Ash stated Monday that he had found many out-of-state fishermen out early Sunday for the season's first catch, but after an explanation they had decided to wait until the law lifts its ban. The warden said that no arrests had been made for violation of the game laws up until late Monday afternoon.

REMAKING THE SENATE

Death plays an important part in changing the rank and file of the members of congress. It strikes hard and there for different reasons. It takes the aged and it takes those in their prime. It makes possible changes in the political strength of one or the other political parties.

Last month two of the well known senators were taken. Each had won his seat in the senate through recognized ability and attainments at home. In the case of one a democrat who was taken, in the other a republican. The late Senator Ferris had announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election at the expiration of his term next March. Senator Willis was pushing his candidacy for the presidency as the favorite son of Ohio.

Both senators came from normal republican states, yet the former was a democrat whose election had been made possible by the conditions which prevailed in Michigan at the time he was a candidate. The latter was a republican chosen because he had a strong backing. And yet the vacancies caused by their deaths do not mean that they will be followed by senators of their same political faith.

The filling of those unexpired terms rests upon the governors of their respective states. In Michigan the governor is a republican. In Ohio a democrat is in the chief executive's chair. The result is that there will be a republican and a democrat who will take the senate seats of a democrat and a republican. This means that the political balance of the senate will remain as it has been.

The choice of temporary senator from Michigan, A. H. Vandenburg, would probably be the choice of the people of that state if they were given a chance to express themselves, as they will be for the term following next March. His candidacy had already been announced.

The Ohio selection has not as yet been made. Whether the one who is to get the unexpired term would be the choice of the people can be judged later, yet republican Ohio will have a chance to speak for itself later on. Strange death seemed to work in such a way as to give an advantage to the republicans one day it restored the equipoise the next.

ENCOURAGING CRIMINALITY

Accusations which are made by agents of law enforcement may be given no small. It is to be expected that justice will be administered. But there are times when leniency is justified and there are times when it demands no consideration.

Take the idea of giving another chance to the wrong doer is overdone and illustrated by the case of a Norwich man who was brought into the police court charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated after his license had been revoked.

In that particular he may have been different than a lot of other people in that there was a man who had a record of 27 arrests and 24 convictions, ranging from intoxication to disorderly assault and robbery, and in connection with such a record he had received eight suspended sentences.

Strange enough.

If we are to judge by such a record these suspensions of sentences did that man no good. It seems highly probable that if he had been required to serve his sentences, following the disclosure that his first suspension was not appreciated, his whole attitude toward the law might have been changed. He was encouraged to think that he could do about as he pleased with the law, and escape the penalty. Just what sort of a pull he had is not known. Perhaps he had a facility for telling a weepy, hard-luck story and getting it believed. Certainly he got assistance from the courts in his disobedience of law and there was little wonder that he gave little heed to legal restraint.

This is by no means the only instance of the gross miscarriage of justice. It is to be found in the case of the man who shoots down his wife, is found not guilty because of insanity and then in a few weeks is ordered discharged because he is sane. It is illustrated in the conviction of a man for killing his paramour and getting a term in jail and in the treatment of a drunk hold-up man who drew a $5 fine or a minute in jail. We hold up hands in horror at the large number of crime and yet we sympathize with the criminal, send flowers to him and give every possible encouragement to such a class.

CURBING THE SCALPERS

Because New York has made futile efforts in the past to overcome the practice of theatre ticket scalping interest will be attached to the new move which has been made for the purpose of endeavoring to place restrictions upon it through legislation.

The hold-up game whereby certain ones get control of large blocks of tickets and demand any price they believe they can get has developed no small degree of resentment on the part of the long suffering public. Legislation has already been tried. The idea of price fixing for agencies was carried to the courts with the result that it was found to be unconstitutional. A move for the relief of the public was upset and it became necessary to tackle the evil from a different angle.

Now the legislation has been put through which compels all ticket agencies to post in a conspicuous place the regular box office prices of the tickets that are being sold there, the tax on theatre agencies and sub-agencies has been doubled and the sale of theatre tickets is forbidden at any place which is not a regular agency. Any agent or broker who pays any gratuity to any theatre employe subjects himself to the liability of being found guilty of a misdemeanor. The new law does not attempt to fix the price at which the tickets must be sold at the agencies or limit the amount of profit that may be made upon them.

The purpose is to protect the theatre going public against the exaction of unwarranted prices. That a certain number of the public is responsible for the gouging practice is fully recognized. They are ready and willing to pay anything that is asked for the sake of getting tickets at short notice when they want them. Others are subjected to the same methods, when they are not willing to stand the big tax and they are frank in their admissions that they do not like it. The plan of permitting an increase of a half dollar a ticket to the agencies which it is admitted render more or less accommodation was regarded as one that would meet all requirements and it would but for the fact that it couldn't stand the test of the law. Whether the new move fares any better will be disclosed upon trial.

GARDEN PLANTING

Probably no one will be surprised when the New England Homestead, a paper devoted to farm interests, advocates planting a garden. It points to such a move as the means of reducing the doctor's, dentist's and grocer's bills and it is certain that it would mean more enjoyable meals, plenty of fresh vegetables and those mineral salts which the human body needs.

There is no getting away from the fact that there is merit in the suggestion. There isn't the same need for planting the home gardens now that there was during the days of the war but the advantages which lie in such work still hold good.

There are those who never think of letting a summer go by without raising more or less of the vegetables that will be required for the table and those which can be put aside for the winter's needs. They know what it means to be able to step out and pick what is wanted. It not only means a certain satisfaction from personal efforts but it also means more enjoyable meals when there can be a quick transfer from the garden to the kitchen.

But there are also other benefits to be attached to the planting of a garden. It means a different kind of work, work in the open air, and there are plenty who are in great need of just such exercise. The spending of a short time each day or a few hours each week in the raising of fresh vegetables has many compensations. It would be well if more would occupy their time in some such manner instead of fritting it away in ease and complaining about physical disabilities which in many instances are possessed because they have been invited, or because they haven't been guarded against.

BIDDING FOR SUMMER VISITORS

When legislatures are in session efforts are being made for the purpose of overcoming certain injustices. Massachusetts has been wrestling with the matter of registrations for summer visitors with automobiles and presented a bill to the governor by which it would be possible for a person to operate a car in that state for a period of six months without getting a license in that state.

This was regarded as particularly favorable to the summer visitors, and it was. It was intended to restore that $25,000,000 worth of business which the hotel men think they lose each year because of the prevailing requirements that a special license must be obtained after a month. The governor has applied his veto and there is no certainty that it will be overridden.

But while Massachusetts, or any other state, has a right to establish such laws as it pleases in this respect it is evident that these special provisions, which seems to be retarded as disadvantageous, might be eliminated to a large extent if there were the will on the part of the states to come to some uniform understanding. No many visitors are staying for a period of six months. Perhaps there are as many from one state summering in another as there are from the latter state putting in their vacation period elsewhere.

Vehicles which go from one state to another daily are licensed in both states and it seems not improbable that the unfavorable features of the special summer licenses might be eliminated if all states were ready to get together on the matter.

States are supposed to welcome the summer visitors because of the dollars they spend, but not all the laws made are regarded by the summer visitors as real enticements.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Well another winter has passed without any horse racing on the Thames.

Of course the New York exchange could curb the amount of trading by going in for shorter days.

With a few less than 2,000,000 out of employment in this country is the number going to be increased by strike activities?

Because of the surtaxes it is expensive these days to become millionaires as so many have been doing through the stock market, but there are a few more who might be more willing to meet the tax than the market chances.

In Virginia a young man involved in the robbery of a bank was fined $5 and sentenced to a minute in jail. Such a powder puff application of the law must have made a serious impression on the youth and those criminally minded.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, April 3.—When does a vice president of the United States become "acting president" is a much debated question. The correct answer is brief and comprehensive. It consists of just one word "Never." Under the Constitution a vice president automatically becomes president in his own right through the death or disability of the president, but under no other circumstances can he ever act as president." Much was said and written about Vice President Dawes having been "acting president" during the few days absence of President Coolidge in Havana last winter during the international conference held there. But Vice President Dawes did not for a moment take that point of view. He knows the Constitution too well.

Asked to comment on the matter a few days ago, the vice president smiled, refilled his up-side down pipe, and remarked "What is the use of discussing something that isn't?" Authorities on the Constitution agree that absence from the country does not constitute disability and this was forcefully shown when President Wilson spent many months abroad, using special messengers to voyage back and forth carrying papers of state for him to sign.

Later when Mr. Wilson was paralyzed and unconscious for many days and weeks, undoubtedly Vice President Marshall was authorized by the Constitution to become president of the United States, but he declined to consider taking that step, through political and personal reasons, and the country drifted along between "hay and grass" so far as having a president was concerned. How official papers were signed during that interim, has been publicly revealed.

States have in their Constitution provision for acting governor but the United States has no such provision concerning its president.

Up to 1886 there was no provision for automatic succession to the presidency beyond the vice president. Then an amendment was added that provided for presidential succession, in case of death or disability of both president and vice president. It then fell to the secretary of state and so on down the line of cabinet officers in the order of their official ranking.

There have been several instances where, on account of the 4th of March falling of Sunday, the United States was without president or vice president for the space of 24 hours. In 1821 James Monroe and his vice president Daniel D. Tompkins, allowed Sunday to pass before they took their oath of office; again in 1849 Zachary Taylor and Vice President Millard Fillmore waited till Monday for their inauguration, although their attention was called to the fact that 24 hours would intervene between the out going of their predecessors and the taking of their oath; "Old Rough Neck" as was the nick-name of Taylor at that time, promptly determined that no oath would be taken until noon Monday the 5th—and there the matter ended.

Again in 1887 the 4th fell on Sunday, but President Hayes took a private oath that day, to prevent possible complications, and on the following day, Hayes and his vice president Wheeler, were inaugurated at the capitol with the customary ceremonies.

Referring to Vice President Dawes, we can say that he has a very cordial smile and a sense of humor. The former came near being the undoing of this writer and the latter saved the day. It came about this way: Gen Dawes stopped in the corridor to smile a greeting, whereupon it popped into the head of your correspondent to ask the vice president if he had ever been called on to break a tie, entirely forgetful for a moment of that famous "Dawes nap" the day following his inauguration, when the tie vote in the senate caused the downfall of a presidential nomination of importance. The question was begun, but before it was finished a night-mare recollection of the incident came to mind. The vice president smiled broadly, "Oh, go right on", said he and the question was somewhat lamely finished by an embarrassed correspondent.

The vice president laughed and lit the famous pipe, and remarked: "Yes I had one opportunity, and slept through it. And that's the reason I sit in the chair day after day, instead of calling on some one else to preside. You don't think I like to listen to all that talk, do you? Not a bit of it. I'm just watching for a chance to vote, and be caught napping. And I'm going to keep right on doing it till something happens". And the way Gen. Dawes accented the word "like" told the story in one word.

Then with another cordial smile, a friendly wave of the hand and with that upside down pipe once more in his mouth, the vice president strolled into the senate chamber and resumed his seat as presiding officer.

Congressman Tilson predicts the session will end late in May. He also feels that the passing of a flood control bill by the senate will not speed up legislation, as the house had a bill practically framed that it will rush in the place of the senate bill. That means delay, conferences and debate.

Among the many adverse comments on the senate bill, as heard from the lips of house members, was one from Col. Tilson, who remarked in reply to a query about "the house bill just passed." "That was not passing a bill it was passing the buck," as now the house will have the work to do over again.

There were many calls for "lower berths" on night trains to Ohio, the past week, for members of the house of the house were rushing home to Ohio to take a hand in the primary fights in that state, between the Hoover and the Willis factions for control of the state legislation.

lines for members of the house whose reelections may depend on the faction they tie up with.

No one here for a moment believed Willis had a chance for a vote other than that of a favorite son, but even that could have so strong an influence as a trading power at Kansas City, that the house candidates were running home to look after their own fences.

Even standing room is at a premium in hotels here now. Easter crowds, school vacationists, and people returning from Florida and other southern points are filling the city to the brim. Senators and congressmen are sending constituents to the white house in swarms and the president is cordially greeting three or four hundred each day, getting aside a short time at noon for that purpose.

The White House grounds are all ablaze with early spring flowers, and magnolia trees and forsythia in full bloom.

HAM AND EGGS

Upon Bob's breakfast plate reposed a slice of deliciously browned ham and two golden eggs. Six years of culinary efforts had enabled Dot to produce such perfection.

"And yet," she thought darkly, eyeing her husband from her vantage point across the table, "he will consume it all and not offer one word of praise."

True to form, Bob pitched into his breakfast with heathenish disrespect. And not until he had finished the operations of mastication did he gravitate toward conversation. But all he said was:

"Now I've got to beat it. G'bye, Twinkles." Whereupon he tendered Dot a rather bulky kiss and left her stranded in a maze of platitudes about ungrateful husbands and sacrificing wives.

"It's the same now as it's always been," she thought disgustedly. "A kitchen is to a woman exactly what a hitching post is to a horse. If I had indulged my artistic inclinations all these years instead of my sense of duty I might amount to something today. From now on Bob Perkins can eat fodder and milk for breakfast. I'm going to discover myself."

But discovering oneself is not always a simple occupation. Dot thought for five whole minutes and then remembered Helen Darmody. Helen leaned toward art, had a studio, did plaques and illustrations. Dot told herself that he should really have kept in touch with Helen because of the stimulating influence that is bound to come from such an acquaintance. Perhaps the best thing that she could do now would be to look up this old friend of hers.

Two hours later she climbed the stairs of a weather-beaten apartment house and was met at an open doorway in the top corridor by a young woman wearing a smock and a frown.

"Helen Darmody."

"Of all people, Dot Perkins." Helen drew Dot into a room cluttered with papers, easels, portfolios and palettes. Dot was in a mood to be thrilled and considered this effect of copious arelessness an adjunct of the artistic atmosphere.

"Excuse this mess," begged Helen. "I have been working like Christopher on a set of illustrations. It is amazing what you have to do in art before you can collect more than verbal gratitude. You don't know what it means, my dear, to slave away your time and live on luck. Sometimes I think I ought to acquire a husband who is a bricklayer or a truck driver. It would be such a relief to be sure of one's ham and eggs."

"Ham and eggs," murmured Dot, sinking limply into a chair. Helen, stooping up papers, continued:

"I've been up all night working. If you will excuse me, I'll wash up a bit. On this stand are some things that you might like to look at in the meantime."

Dot drew a booklet from the pile that Helen had indicated and leafed it over absently, thinking of what her hostess had just said. Helen's wanting to marry a bricklayer or a truck driver because ham and eggs went with him—Helen working all night long. If that was the sort of thing that praise-winning people ran into she was not so sure that she envied them after all. She turned over another page in the booklet and started—a reproduction in color of a plate of ham and eggs!

This morning Dot had literally run away from ham and eggs, yet here they were bobbing up again among the shrines of the aesthetic. What a queer predicament; she herself arriving at art by way of ham and eggs and Helen arriving at ham and eggs by way of art.

"And to think," she sighed, "that years were spent learning how to make an imitation, and now all anybody can do with it is to look it over; while I can make the real thing even days out of every week, look it over, and eat it besides!"

"S'matter, Twinkles?" asked Bob the next morning when the last mouthful of ham and eggs had vanished. Dot, smiling oddly, replied:

"I was thinking what a connoisseur of arts you are." For a moment there was silence, and then Bob, never guessing by what a close shave he had arrived at his customary breakfast, said:

"It beats the deuce what funny things a woman will say early in the morning."—Chicago News.

Tuesday
"God Our Refuge"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "I will say of the Lord, he is my refuge and my fortress" (Psalm 91:2).

Read: Psalm 91.

MEDITATION: In a recent number of the Atlantic Monthly there is an article called "The Brink." A group of climbers found themselves as darkness fell in a very dangerous situation where they could apparently neither advance nor retreat. A mother in the company occupied herself during part of the time of waiting in writing to her son. "I know you would be praying, boy, if you knew. Because, Billy, there has to be a God. We mortals are too weak in physical and moral and spiritual strength to cope with this." Religion gives us the sense of Another and a Greater to whom we can flee and from whom we may expect aid. This keeps one from ever feeling utterly hopeless.

"Let us learn like a bird for a moment to take "Sweet rest on a branch that is ready to break.
"She feels the branch tremble yet gaily she sings,
"What is it to her, she has wings. She has wings!"

—Hugo.

PRAYER: O Thou who dost neither slumber nor sleep and who givest Thine angels charge over us to keep us in all our ways, send out Thy light and Thy truth, and help us so to live in reliance on Thee that even the night shall be light about us. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

Roman Grease.

By Robert C. Bryan, M. D., Richmond, Va., member Gorgas Memorial.

Rameses rode on an elephant, Attila rode on horseback, Caesar rode in a chariot, George Washington rode in a four horse coach—practically the same method of getting about the country in the days of Caesar and George Washington! Lindy rides a plane. Who doesn't ride in an automobile now? Transportation in the last hundred years has developed more than in all the preceding centuries.

Grinding, rattling, whirring wheels are heard day and night everywhere, and all these wheels are greased regularly. The Romans had grease and used it; they knew the value of taking care of their machinery, but they did not know about appendicitis, diphtheria, pneumonia, erysipelas, Bright's disease, scarlet fever, gallstones, and the thousand and one ailments that we now have and which have been segregated, identified, and studied, and are well known and fairly well understood. I wonder what an old Roman senator did for kidney colic! And I wonder what Michael Angelo, 1400 years later, did for high blood pressure. They did not know what to do. We've got it on the Romans, we do know what to do, and we know, furthermore, how to prevent a large number of these diseases.

Black death in the seventeenth century killed one-half the population of London; this disease, which was so fatal then, is prevented now from developing; it is never allowed to catch hold; it is stopped before it starts! Can you imagine a Roman gladiator showing a complete X-ray picture of his stomach and intestines, by the light of a Grecian urn, to some of his intimate friends, and describing the exact location of an ulcer at the outlet of his stomach, and further discussing with them the proposed operation to cure this ulcer and to prevent possible cancer? Or can you picture John Smith of Jamestown James showing a bottle of antitoxin for diphtheria to some Pamunkey Indians and telling them about its uses, or pulling from his doublet some fresh vaccine points to prevent smallpox decimating the Indian village? I reckon the Indians could hardly take the fact in that the disfiguring, pitting scars of the face, the hot fever, and the gackache which they had seen so much of could be cured by a scratch on the arm with a clean white needle.

Did you ever see a case of smallpox, lockjaw, typhoid or beri-beri? These and many other diseases are being stamped out, slowly but surely, and it is all done for you, to help you, to prolong your life, to save you pain and distress. The Roman greased his chariot. Are you going to have your body machine overhauled and repaired, and fixed in good, healthy running order at regular intervals, or do you prefer six horizontal feet of darkness to six vertical of sunshine?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sustain American Culture

Mr. Editor: We have two recent estimates of the United States' present Mexican population. One is three millions. The other is four millions. Even the lower one is alarming if we remember we fought a civil war over another color problem that, most students agree, remains still unsolved.

To the timid who ask, "Who will dig our ditches if immigration be restricted?" the Scientific American answers convincingly. It declares one old-time intelligent American on one big ditch digging machine, does the work of 400 men. It is estimated that our country with only one-tenth of the world's population, is doing half of the world's work. That tenth, however, is highly intelligent. This efficiency enables us to maintain the best wage standard in the world. This makes prosperity, for, not only wage earners, but farmers, professional men, business men.

The great menace to its continuance is the possible impairment of that very intelligence. The intelligent Mexican of white stock does not come here. The peon, who is an Amerind, has an average intelligence quotient of only 60. Unfortunately he multiplies rapidly. If old time American families average 3 children and Mexican peon 7, one American couple will be represented in the 5th generation by only 243 children. One Mexican couple in the same time will be represented by 16,806 children. Thus American culture will disappear. Greece and Rome both decayed by not grasping this biological law about such differential birth rates.

Therefore, even the three million peons already here should be sufficient to stimulate the immediate passing by congress of the box bill. This will place all Latin America under the quota.

Very earnestly,

Stories That Recall Others

Skeptical

Three year old Mary doesn't like to go to bed early. She is where she can hear the even test of the fire alarm at 7.30. One evening her mother said to her, "Now hurry up and put the toys away when the alarm strikes. It will then be time to go to bed."

Soon she heard the sound she dreaded to hear and she remarked very casually, "I hear the bell, but I don't believe it."

The Driver Retired

The old sedan was ambling along the street when suddenly one of the rear tires severed connection with the car and went rolling drunkenly along of its own accord, with no place special in mind. The sedan went rattling on for a few feet when the driver apparently realizing that his sedan was not all there stopped, stepped out and inspected the wheels. It could readily be seen that his first fears were well grounded. There was no left rear tire and no tire in sight. He searched the road without success.

What of the tire? Well it went crazily on its way until, tired of its course, it rolled over toward the curb and picked up a carrier very similar to the one it had divorced, lodged, contentedly, between the rear fender and body of a parked car. The parked car looked like a five legged calf.

Even a retracing of the street where the car had so recently gone did not give trace of the errant tire to the driver. There was nothing else to do so the driver climbe dinto his old sedan with a sigh, deciding it was time to retire and chugged on his way.

Banana Bill

You think me odd, I plainly see,
But you are just as odd to me.
—Banana Bill.

"Who is Banana Bill? Is he a relative of mine?" demanded Bobby Coon of Scrapper the Kingbird.

Scraper's bright eyes twinkled. "Have you any relatives with wings and feathers?" he asked.

"Of course, I haven't," retorted Bobby Coon indignantly. "Is this Banana Bill a bird?"

"He certainly is," replied Scrapper, "and he is some bird!"

"Well, why didn't you say so to begin with?" snapped Bobby Coon crossly. "I'm not interested in birds."

"You would be if you ever saw Banana Bill," replied Scrapper. "Of all the feathered folk I know, and I know a lot of them, there is none more interesting to me than Banana Bill."

"What's his other name?" Bobby asked.

Scrapper chuckled. "I had forgotten," said he, "that I hadn't told you his real name. His real name is Toucan, but he is called Banana Bill. And if you could once see him you would understand just why he is called Banana Bill the Toucan."

"Who does he look like?" asked Bobby.

Scrapper laughed right out. "He looks like no one but himself," he declared. "I don't know of anyone else who looks the least bit like him. Up here in the Green Forest he would look queer, I suppose, but way down there in the jungle, where winter never comes, he somehow seems to fit the Jungle wouldn't be the jungle without Banana Bill around. I love to watch him every chance I get."

"Is he pretty?" demanded Bobby.

Scraper looked puzzled. He was puzzled. "That depends on what you call pretty," he said slowly. "He has some bright colors, and bright colors are pretty. But he isn't exactly what you would call graceful. In fact, if you didn't see his bright colors, you would probably call him homely."

"Doesn't he ever come up this way?" inquired Bobby.

This time Scrapper shook his head vigorously. "No," said he, "he never CUT HERE leaves the jungle. The jungle is his home and I live heard him say that he couldn't understand how some of the rest of us could leave the jungle to come away up here. When I get down there on the way to that far-away winter home of mine, I never quite feel that I've reached the Tropics until I see Banana Bill. When I see him, I know I surely have arrived. Did you ever see a banana, Bobby Coon?"

His real name is Toucan, but he called Banana Bill

Bobby shook his head. "No," he said, "I never did. What is a banana?"

"It's one kind of fruit," replied Scrapper promptly. "It grows down there where Banana Bill lives. Farmer Brown's Boy knows what a banana is, for I've seen him eating one."

"How could you see him eating a banana if it doesn't grow up here?" demanded Bobby Coon suspiciously.

"Oh, I suppose it was sent up," explained Scrapper. "I've seen bananas being sent away from the Tropics and I suppose they get away up here. Anyway, if you had ever seen a banana, you would know why Banana Bill is called by that name. His bill always reminds me of a banana."

Worn Out This Spring?

You Can't Feel Well When Kidneys Act Sluggishly.

SPRING find you stiff, achy—"all worn out?" Feel tired and drowsy—suffer nagging backache, headache and dizzy spells? Are kidney secretions too frequent, scanty or burning in passage?

Know, then, these are often signs of improper kidney action. Sluggish kidneys allow waste poisons to remain in the blood and upset the whole system.

If your kidneys act sluggishly, assist them with Doan's Pills. Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increase the secretion of the kidneys and aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Users everywhere endorse Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say Connecticut Folks:

Mrs. H. Anderson, 40 Sperry St., New Haven, Conn., says: "My kidneys didn't act right and I had a dull ache through the small of my back. Mornings I could hardly straighten and when I stooped, sharp pains shot through my back. I felt tired and my back seemed to give out easily. Finally I started to use Doan's Pills and three boxes rid me of the trouble."

A. B. Munson, 9 Pond St., Milford, Conn., says: "A heavy cold was the cause of my kidneys becoming disordered. A dull backache kept me miserable and I felt so tired I could hardly get about to do my work. Then my kidneys didn't function right, either. Doan's Pills entirely rid me of these annoyances and made me feel like a different man."

ACADEMY RAISES TUITION FOR OUT-OF-TOWN PUPILS

At a recent meeting of the trustees of the Norwich Free Academy it was voted to charge $150 for tuition of out-of-town pupils for next year. The charge previously has been $120.

This action was deemed necessary because the increasing number of Norwich pupils is already taxing the capacity of the school, enlarged at an expense of over $90,000 in 1923.

Following a partial trial in the court of common pleas here Monday before Judge Charles B. Waller the $300 suit brought by Lawrence and Florina Collins of this city against John Morrell, also of this city, was settled out of court and the action was withdrawn without costs to either party.

Prior to the commencement of the trial Judge Waller, with counsel for both sides visited the premises in dispute which are on Buckingham avenue. The trip was made in automobile of Clerk Lewis Crandall, who also went along. The papers in the suit claimed that by means of unlawful acts of the defendant by allowing water to run down on the plaintiff's property, a dividing wall was so undermined and weakened that the plaintiffs claimed that they were put to great expense in rebuilding the wall.

They were shown under the auspices of the Goldberg Rubber Tire company, with Samuel G. Kent, local Firestone representative, as the speaker. He was introduced by Monarch Fred G. Prothero.

The pictures showed the Firestone rubber plantations in Liberia, the Singapore buying office and receiving plant, and the last two were on the factory at Akron, Ohio, both the pneumatic and solid rubber tires and the steel products. Mr. Kent spoke of rubber, its sources, its collection and its treatment and showed what Mr. Firestone is doing in promoting his idea that America should grow its own rubber.

COUNCIL ADOPTS NEW AGE LIMIT FOR SUPERNUMERARY APPOINTMENT

A new ordinance governing the appointment of supernumerary and regular police officers of the city police department, was adopted Monday night at the March meeting of the court of common council. The new ordinance provides that no person less than 21 years of age nor more than 30 years of age shall be appointed to the supernumerary list and that a supernumerary officer must serve in that capacity at least 6 months before he can be appointed to the regular force. The old ordinance, which was repealed Monday night, provided that no person over the age of 35 years could be appointed to the regular force. This shut off from appointment several of the present supernumeraries, which, although they were considerably less than 35 years of age, when appointed to the supernumerary list, could not be named to the regular force at the present time, as they have passed the 35 year mark. The new ordinance opens the way for the appointment of Supernumerary Officer Eugene Calkins, first on the supernumerary list. Mr. Calkins has been a supernumerary for several years but when, two or three months ago, he came up for appointment as a regular, the police commissioners could not recommend him to the court of common council as he had passed his 35th birthday.

The council meeting was called to order at 8:20 o'clock by His Honor Mayor Milo R. Waters and the minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading, according to custom. City Clerk Weston C. Pullen read his certificate of publication of the new police ordinance, after which Mayor Waters declared the hearing on the proposed ordinance open for remarks. No one opposed the ordinance and the only person who commented on it was Attorney Thomas J. Kelly. Attorney Kelly said that he appeared in behalf of the supernumerary officers who are unanimously in favor of the adoption of the ordinance. The merits are in the ordinance itself, said Attorney Kelly.

Alderman Richard Gregson moved the adoption of the ordinance and it was unanimously adopted and ordered published according to law. The ordinance becomes effective five days after adoption.

Petitions Received

Petitions were received and disposed of as follows

From Elizabeth M. Thumm, et. al., asking that an estimate be placed in the estimates of city expenses to be acted upon at the city meeting in June, to provide for the improvement of Spruce street by the removal of part of the ledge between Winchester and Center streets. Referred to the finance committee to be placed in the estimates.

Asking that arrangements be made with the police commissioners to have the night police officer on the Falls beat to report for duty at 7 o'clock instead of 10 o'clock from April 1st to October 1st. Referred to the police commissioners with power.

Five petitions from George E. Pitcher were received and acted upon as follows:

Whereas, we find by the city treasurer's report the overdraft of the outside work account is the largest so far of any appropriation for the fiscal year ending May 15, 1928, and said appropriation was made at a city meeting, June, 1927, to the department of public works; therefore the undersigned taxpayer hereby petitions your honorable body to request the committee on public works to make a detailed report of the outside work account, and also report where there was $11,647 worth of work done for the Connecticut company and to make said report at the next regular meeting of the council May 7, 1928.

Referred to the public works committee on motion of Alderman Henry Gebrath.

Whereas, the undersigned taxpayer applied on March 19, 1928, to the chairman of the public works committee, the street commissioner, and the city engineer's office for the street line on the southerly side of Main street, in front of the Bailey property, and has not received it as yet after calling up the city engineer; therefore the undersigned taxpayer hereby petitions your honorable body to order the city engineer to stake out the same at once, as it is holding up a building.

Councilman Nicholas J. Spellman said there is some difficulty in finding the line. I suppose Mr. Pitcher knows that himself, he said. All we can do is report progress. We haven't found the line yet.

Whereas, the last report of the city treasurer, Harold S. Burt, shows in the column of appropriations the amounts returned in a great many places, the undersigned taxpayer hereby petitions your honorable body to instruct somebody that knows when there was a city meeting held to authorize said returns, and to report at the next regular meeting of your council to be held on May 7, 1928.

I don't know what he means by "returns" said Alderman Gebrath. I suppose that is aimed at the public works committee. I move it be referred to the public works committee for report at the next meeting. It was so referred.

Whereas, the finances of the city of Norwich in all the different departments are very much confused, and do not balance or agree; therefore, the undersigned taxpayer hereby petitions your honorable body to appoint a committee of five taxpayers of said city, not members of your committee, to investigate said finances.

A motion by Councilman Aldrich to receive the petition was adopted.

Whereas, a communication of great importance to the taxpayers of said city was referred to the finance committee at a meeting of the council held Sept. 6, 1927, said communication being published in the council journal for the fiscal year of 1927 and 1928, on page 159, and as we have had no report from said committee, the undersigned taxpayer hereby petitions your honorable body to instruct the finance committee to make a report on said communication on the 7th day of May, 1928, to the court of common council at a regular meeting to be held that date.

With regard to this petition Mayor Waters spoke of a member of the state water commission requesting the employment by the city of a sanitary engineer to study the pollution of waters in Norwich and said that an appropriation of $5,000 had been asked for this work. Mayor Waters said that the appropriation will come up for action at the next city meeting.

Other petitions were disposed of as follows:

From Joe Canette, et al., for a bug light on Lincoln court. Referred to the police committee with power.

From John F. Sauter for the removal of a tree at No. 472 Asylum street, referred to the public works committee with power.

From Homer J. Monty and about 100 others, asking that a sum be placed in the estimates to be acted on at the city meeting in June to provide for tar-bound macadam on Asylum street from Newton street to Starr street. Referred to the finance committee to be placed in the estimates.

For Building, Plumbing, Wiring Code

The following petition for a building, plumbing and electrical code, signed by Edwin W. Higgins and about 30 others, was received on motion of Councilman Spellman:

"We, the undersigned, citizens of Norwich, respectfully petition the court of common council to enact a building, plumbing and electric wiring code for said city in conformity with the best practices of modern scientific and efficient city government and in response to the indictment made in the recently published survey of civic conditions that it is a disgrace to Norwich to lack so many of the modern provisions against disease.

"We would respectfully urge a most careful study and review of the Babson report recently submitted to the chamber of commerce of this city and a full consideration and analysis of its recommendations with a view to forthwith placing the affairs of the city in a most favorable light before competing cities.

"We earnestly petition and urge your honorable body that there may not be at the close of the present fiscal year of the city a deficit anything like approaching the sum of $54,000 which marked the close of the last fiscal year and would respectfully call your honorable body's attention to the provisions of section 58 of the general statutes of the state."

After the above petition had been read by the city clerk, Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney said he would like to know just what the signers of the petition want in the way of a building code. I think our buildings are all right, he said. The alderman said that fireproof roofs might be required for buildings. The motion to receive the petition was then made by Councilman Spellman.

The monthly reports of the street commissioner, city treasurer, and the quarterly reports of the fire marshal and chief of police and the quarterly cash statement of the water department were all received and accepted.

The police commissioners reported that the petitions of John S. Huggard for a bug light near his home on Hillside avenue and of Lillian Rogers for a bug light on Pratt street, which had been referred to them by the council, had been granted.

Deeds for Land for Streets

An administrator's deed from John P. Huntington, administrator of the estate of Joseph A. Cloran, of land for highway purposes on Ore street, was received and accepted by the council and $40 fixed as the consideration for the transfer of the land to the city.

A deed of two tracts of land from Gilbert S. Raymond to the city, the land to be used for highway purposes, was also received and accepted and $1 set as the consideration for the transfer. One tract is to be known as Golden street extension and the other as Howard street.

Five additional deeds of land to be used for highway purposes on Garfield avenue were received from the following, the consideration for each of the five transfers being set at $1: Frank Cranska, Owen S. Smith, Bernard, Joseph and Mary Ring, William H. Baker and Herbert W. Lumis. All five deeds were received and accepted. All deeds accepted at the meeting were ordered recorded in the town land records.

Settlement for $200

The council then adopted a resolution authorizing the payment of $200 to Edwin W. Higgen, counsel for Mary Suplicki, in full settlement of her claim for damage by water to her property on Cliff street and for which she has brought suit against the city.

Another resolution, authorizing the city treasurer to pay to F. L. Maples the sum of $30 in payment of his claim for potatoes spoiled by a stopped sewed, was adopted by the council.

Makes Claim for Fall

A notice of a claim for damages from Alice M. Jenkins of No. 38 Summer street, was received and referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel. Claimant represents that on March 13 she suffered a fall on Main street, in front of the Jordan Auto company's agency, due to the defective condition of the sidewalk. Her ankle was sprained and she was otherwise injured.

Park Commissioners Reappointed

Mayor Waters announced the appointment of John M. Lee and H. D. Johnson, as park commissioners, to succeed themselves, for terms of three years. No action on the appointments by the council was necessary.

Mayor Waters also announced that he had received the resignation of City Treasurer Harold S. Burt, who was recently appointed town clerk. "I state with regret that I have received the resignation of City Treasurer Burt," Mayor Waters said. He has been an able, efficient and courteous official, the mayor added, and then announced that he had appointed Charles Colt as successor to Mr. Burt and that Mr. Colt will qualify Wednesday morning. Mr. Burt's resignation becomes effective at the close of business today (Tuesday).

Department bills were approved as follows: Police department, $6,352.35; recreation department, $216.35; park department, $2.43; water department, $2,402.06; Deep River reservoir, $1,625.25; gas and electric department, $45,314.09; department of cemeteries, $384.25; public works department, $6,949.39; finance department, $17,847.16; fire department, $5,431.14. The council adjourned at 9 o'clock.

THOS. ADDISON GETS AWAY WITH TREASURY FUNDS

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Thomas Addison, 45, of Norwich, on a charge of theft of funds from the treasury of the Taftville Mule Spinners' union. Addison has been missing since last week and so far there is no clue as to his present whereabouts. Not only are funds of the mule spinners' union gone but $600 is reported missing from the treasury of the Central Labor union and money is said to have disappeared from the treasury of Hugh Osgood lodge, No. 6920, I. O. O. F., M. U. Addison has been secretary of the Taftville Mule Spinners' union, secretary and treasurer of the Central Labor union since 1920 and treasurer of Hugh Osgood lodge for ten years.

It is alleged that on March 23 Addison drew a bank order for $600 on the Central Labor union, bearing the names of several trustees. He cashed the order at the Thames National bank. At the last meeting of the union Addison presented his financial report for the quarter and it was found to be correct.

The funds taken from the mule spinners' union are said to be dues amounting to $45 collected from members during the past two weeks. Addison had been in the habit of turning the money in at the end of each week. For the two weeks previous to his disappearance, he had not turned in any money to the treasurer, Peter McKelvey.

The remainder of the loss suffered by the spinners was through checks. On March 21 he is said to have issued a check for $200, and on March 27 another for $25, both payable to himself. On each check it is alleged the signatures of Treasurer McKelvey and Trustees Jonas Eastwood and Thomas Watts were forged. The loss did not come to light until last Friday when a question as to the collection of dues arose. A check-up then revealed the forgeries.

ENJOYED FINE PROGRAMME BY TENOR SOLOIST

The Norwich Music association enjoyed one of its most delightful evenings of the season in the appearance of John Parrish of New York, tenor, as the soloist for the meeting Monday night at Slater hall annex.

Mr. Parrish has one of the most pleasing tenor voices heard in this city in a long time, a pure tenor of beautiful quality which he handled in a way that showed his careful training and at the same time his rich endowment of temperament. His audience showed their warm appreciation by spontaneous applause for his artistic work and he generously responded with several encores. After his second group of songs he gave Zueignung (Strauss), after the Mozart number Songs My Mother Taught Me and after the final group two encores, The Second Minuet and an Irish song, My First Love (Lehr).

The programme was given as follows:

Takes Lead

Girls like this who have learned the art of keeping themselves always attractive usually lead wherever they may be. She follows the rule. She's Carlotta Marino, of 57 West 58th St., New York City, much admired in the Vanities, the Follies and George White's Scandals, and feminine star of the movie hit, "No Trespassing." She says: "When people admire my complexion or my hair, I tell them they can easily keep theirs the same way by simple care. The new way so many of us here in New York are doing our hair is especially easy. All we do is put a few dashes of Danderine on our brushes every time we use them.

"Its marvelous to see how beautifully clean and shining this keeps your hair. I don't have to shampoo half as often now. I set my waves with Danderine, too, and it holds them ever so much longer. All dandruff disappeared with a few applications and my scalp always feels fine, now."

Danderine removes that oily film from your hair and gives it new life and lustre. It isn't oily and doesn't show. It gives tone and vigor to the scalp. The generous bottles are just 35c at any drug store. A delicately fragranced toilet necessity for the well-groomed girl.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

TWO-HOUR WORKOUT FOR ACADEMY BASEBALL SQUAD ON OPENING DAY

Thirty-five players received uniforms and participated in the first real workout this season for the Academy baseball squad Monday afternoon at the campus. Although a chilling wind blew the candidates went through a workout that lasted nearly two hours and gave all of the players a chance to display their wares.

Four Teams Play

A practice game, with frequent substitutions, occupied practically the entire afternoon. Four teams in all cavorted during the session, and, although no score was kept, still the going was pretty even.

First two teams that had in their rosters most of the veterans took the field and played for about an hour. With the pitchers throwing nothing on the ball, there was plenty of heavy hitting. There were many of the Red and Whitesters, who looked good on the hitting end taking healthy swipes at the ball but it remains to be seen what will happen once the hooks start coming up.

Coach Brigham lined his first two teams up with a mixture of lettermen and newcomers. These teams were as follows: Pepin, c, L. Greene, p, Bergstrinzo, 1b, Kendall, 2b, Tombari, 1i, Lo-

Lloyd Jarvis and Johnny Grene, veteran pitchers, who are expected to carry a big part of the burden for the state champions this year, warmed up a bit in the early part of the session and then repaired to the outfield for the rest of the d y.

Today's workout is expected to be of much the same nature with plenty of hitting at straight balls. This will probably continue until the latter part of the week when infield practice and curves will start.

Vacation All Next Wek

The school vacatino starts Friday and continue until Monday, April 16, so that there will probably be many hours of work ahead for the boys during these days. A long midday drill, such as was held last year, will probably be the program.

The field is in poor condition and it will take several day's of sunshine to dry out the dampness. Work on getting it in shape will start shortly so that it ought to be in condition for the opening game, a week from Saturday, April 14, with the Alumni.

FINALISTS BATTLE TONIGHT FOR HOCKEY GROUP TITLES

NEW YORK, April 2—(AP)—Finalists for the world's professional hockey championship will be determined at Montreal and Boston tomorrow night when the second games of the two-game final series for the Canadian and American group championships of the National Hockey League will be fought to a finish.

It is an unprecedented situation that finds the contenders in each group deadlocked with only one game to decide which will battle for the classic Stanley cup. Montreal Canadians and Montreal Maroons played to a 2-2 tie in the first game at Montreal on Saturday night, and the Boston Bruins and New York Rangers engaged in a 1-1 drawn struggle at New York. If the teams are still tied at the end of the regular 60 minutes play tomorrow night, overtime will co played until a team has scored the deciding goal.

HEENEY CONFIDENT ABOUT TUNNEY BOUT

PARIS, April 2—(AP)—Tom Heeney, the brawny New Zealander who is to meet Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship of the world some day, is convinced that his chances are better than even to win. This is the customary attitude of the fighting men, anyway.

Heeney might have said that he was "delighted" at the chance, but what he did say was: "Sure, I'll fight him, and he and everyone else will know there has been a fight going on."

"I have always given American fight fans the best there's in me," continued Heeney. "They can't call me a horizontal fighter. I won't be bombastic and say that I will knock Tunney for a goal, but anyone, after 15 Tunney-Heeney rounds, will be convinced he has seen a real fight."

ACADEMY TO HAVE "WILDCAT" INSIGNIA FOR THIS SEASON

On the sweaters of the first team members of the state championship Academy baseball squad as they trot out for their games this year will be the head of a wildcat, the animal which has come to be the Red and White's. Bulkeley has its Tiger, etc., so now with the Academy Wildcat preparing for battle, what a one it should be in their coming diamond tilts.

HIGH SCHOOL PROSPECTS

Windham High

Windham has never made baseball its chief sport, although some good baseball players have come out of the Willimantic institution. Instead, attention this school year was centered on basketball, at which Windham did mighty well, having one of the best records in this part of the state.

When the team was not picked for the Yale tournament it peeved somewhat its followers but there was nothing to do but wait. Now the next sport season, being baseball, naturally ought to find plenty of enthusiasm thrown in by Windham and her many ardent rooters and for that reason, this year's Windham team will probably do better work and generally have more success than any of late years.

Coach Tom Callaghan has none too promising material with which to work, but he never has in baseball. Windham does not plan an awfully hard schedule but still it is one that will test the squad to the utmost, at times.

Windham figures to be a bit better than her usual self this year but should not break many records. Windham ought to be as good as the average school of her size in the state, although N. F. A., Bulkeley and teams of this caliber should prove too strong. No captain has been elected at the Thread City school as yet but Saba seems likely to get the post.

Windham has a lot of pitchers around but none have ever been under strong fire; the infield is just ordinary while the outfield will be composed of nearly all veterans and the catching department, terribly weak last year, should show some improvement this year and stop some of those games that were lost by that route.

Tomorrow—Putnam high.

'BOUT SPORTS

Local sports are very much at a standstill this week. Basketball has ended it syear, boxing is resting, as it were, while baseball is just beginning to pep out from under the sod.

However, ere another ten days passes we ought to feel the first actions of spring and renewed activity all around in the world of sport. Norwich will have the Academy opening April 14, the Pastime amateur sho wagain, April 13 with the Duwell show to follow on the 20th.

When Sunday ball here will start is not known as yet. Neither Riverview nor Taftville, local semi-pro diamond strongholds, have made any noise about the coming campaign as yet. Riverview usually opens the second or third week of April while Taftville, ordinarily follows ron after but that does not seem to be the case this year.

Interscholastic Sports

Windham is to attempt to revive track this spring. A meet between her own students is planned for today.

The Academy baseballers sure make an imposing appearance in their uniforms, which are the same as last year's.

Practically all of the state high schools have now started on their training grind.

Chapman Tech closed its basketball season Saturday night by beating the Rutland (Mass.) Y. Boy's club, 31 to 11.

The Academy track squad is out in force each afternoon.

However, their first meet does not come until next month.

Windham's football schedule was announced yesterday and includes games with Putnam, Chapman Tech, Westerly, Bulkeley (N. L.), Stonington, Bristol, Manchester and the Academy.

Windham, for the first year in some little time is entered in a league this year, new eastern Connecticut-western Rhode Island conference.

The "Big Six" this year is official, being composed of Windham, Westerly, Chapman Tech, Bulkeley, Westerly and N. F. A.

That Academy-Windham Independents game a week from tomorrow night at Willimantic ought to draw plenty of interest.

Glimpses of Sports of Other Days

JACK M'GRATH, WRESTLER.

Jack McGrath, who used to startle local fans with his wrestling forms the subject for this week's Sports Glimpses. While little is heard of this game nowadays it once used to flourish hereabouts.

The following is a review of his work taken from The Bulletin of Jan. 1 1910:

Wrestling events have been taken care of by Jack McGrath, the Irish

JACK McGRATH
The Irish Giant

Giant, who came here from Worcester, Mass., about two years ago. He holds the county and eastern Connecticut championship in his class. The following is a glimpse of his record:

McGrath's first entrance into the wrestling game was when he was in an amateur tournament for boys under 15 at Worcester. Carl Busch was the first man he met in Norwich after having great success in the Bay State city. It was McGrath's decision, as Busch could not throw him as he had agreed to do. Other men McGrath defeated here in 1908 were Strangler Coleman, Peter Jack, the Greek, and Oscar Samson of Pittsfield, Mass.

In the last year McGrath has participated in the following local matches: Won from Ed Lebarre two out of three; won from Chief Fighting Bear, who got one fall, but failed to get two in an hour; lost handicap match to Jim Barnes at Westerly. Lost two out of three falls to Chief Fighting Bear; won two out of three from Chief Fighting Bear; won from Capt. Charles Clayton on straight falls; threw Abe Pirolo, Abe the Newsboy and Bill Collins in an hour; defeated Ed Anderson in Cambridge, Bill Collins in Willimantic, Jim Barnes in Westerly, and Chief Fighting Bear two straight falls in Norwich Christmas afternoon.

In the course of the last four years the Irish Giant has done much wrestling in 15-minute bouts, meeting all comers and beating about 150 men at the game.

On a wrestling tour in the central part of New York state this spring the results were as follows: Won from Miller, Max Strauss, George Stape, Jack Lynch and Bowser, all in straight falls. At Oswego he wrestled Kaiser and Bulldog Clayton, agreeing to throw both twice in an hour. Won two falls from Kaiser and only one from Clayton. Later he beat Clayton in an even-up match in straight falls. He also threw three amateurs in Oswego inside of an hour.

On a wrestling tour of Pennsylvania he beat George Holland at Jersey Shore, then met all comers for a week at Williamsport, Pa. He threw Fred Pineault three times in four minutes, and beat John Streal, Michigan champion, in straight falls.

MUCH INTEREST IN Y BASEBALL MEETING

Much interest has been attached to the meeting tonight at the Y. M. C. A. for the purpose of stimulating interest in this year's local baseball league. The starting time has been set for 7:30 o'clock.

The meeting is intended merely for the purpose of getting the views of local fans and players as to what will be done this year to provide the annual diamond loop for the city.

Norwich has had a twilight baseball league now for something like six years and interest seems to remain at a high pitch. Last year an industrial league was formed and proved very successful, being under the supervision of the recreation commission.

Now, this year it is expected that the loop will be something of the same character, or at least, a number of shops will be entered. The Y is reported as being ready to stand back of such a league in case no other body makes any move in that direction but it is also said that the Y will not interfere with any other plans but will, on the contrary, enter a strong team, itself.

Norwich fans want their twilight ball and tonight's meeting ought to go a long way toward getting ready for a league.

W. R. Hastedt wasone of the best supporters of the league last season. Because of his previous handling of teams he will be a big assest to the Thermos team this season.

Everett Peckham who handled the team in great style last season, will no doubt be of great assistance to Mr. Hastedt.

Plans are now being formed to organize a "Brothers Club" at the plant The aim of this club is to increase cooperation and spirit of officials and employees of the plant in all lines of athletics.

A schedule is now being formed, and the team would like to hear from any team. Especially the Richmond Radiator. Address all communications to Mr. W. R. Hastedt.

DELANEY WON'T SIGN FOR SHARKEY NOW

NEW YORK, April 2—(AP)—The U. S. mail will deposit with the New York state athletic commission tomorrow Gene Tunney's formal acceptance of Tom Heeney as challenger for the heavyweight title, Tex Rickard told his associates at Madison Square Garden today over the long distance telephone from Miami, Fla.

The match, which already has the personal sanction of James A. Farley, chairman of the commission, was announced by the promoter Saturday. The probable date was set for July either in London or somewhere in the United States.

At the last meeting of the commission, the boxing fathers notified Tunney that his original answer to their "request" that he name a challenger for a bout this summer was inadequate. The champion was given until tomorrow to name his man on pain of indefinite suspension.

The commission is not expected to act against the titleholder tomorrow, however, even though he fails to reply, in view of Rickard's formal announcement of the Heeney match. No protest is expected by the board from Johnny Risko, the Cleveland baker boy, who fought through to the final of Rickard's elimination tournament along with Heeney.

Joe Jacobs, manager of Jack Delaney, declared today he would not sign for a match with Jack Sharkey here on April 30 until assurance was given both fighters that the winner would meet Tunney in September.

PROPERTY VALUATION TOTAL REACHES $9,010,800

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 2—The total valuation of ratable property in the Westerly fire district as found by Assessors Walter C. Hiscox, Oliver P. Crandall and D. Harold Rogers, who completed their work last week, totaled $9,010,800.60. On the ownership of this property as it stood at 12 o'clock, noon, Feb. 16, 1928, a tax of $60 on each $100 worth has been laid by the assessors which tax amounts to $21,-546.06, and is due and payable before April 30th. The tax levy and assessment was voted at the adjourned annual meeting of the Westerly fire district from the last Wednesday in August, the regular date, and that meeting was held in the Westerly town hall on Dec. 6, 1927. Postponement of the tax levy was made because of the uncertainty of the required indebtedness which the district world be put to in replacing property and equipment lost in the fire of April 30, 1927, when the fire station was burned.

Treasurer and Tax Collector Everett E. Whipple will be receiving taxes from April 15th to April 30th, inclusive, and during this period there will be no discount as ordered in the vote passed. After April 30 tax payments will have a penalty of 12 per cent attached.

The increase in the total valuation of $516,800 over that of last year is accounted for in a large measure by the addition of the village of White Rock to Westerly fire district and that with the raising of the tax rate from 15c to 35c a $100, accounts for the raise or increase in tax assessment amount over last year of $18,795.80. Total valuation figures for 1927 were $8,493,900, for 1926: $8,298,900 and for 1925, $7,-019,300. The total assessment figures for 1927 weer $12,740.25; for 1926, $12,-448.34 and for 1925, $10,528.94.

THE NOVOGROSKI PLAN NOT FAVORED BY COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, April 2—At the April session of Westerly town council, called to order at 9.30 a. m. Monday by Council President Horace E. Burdick, Councilman Isaac G. Smith was the only absentee. The session lasted until about 12.30 p. m. and on motion of Councilman Farquhar Smith was followed by a half hour's executive session. At this time it was reported that the council went on record as sustaining the town councils of the previous six years in their opposition to Max Novogroski being granted a permit to construct a business block out over the Pawcatuck river from the Connecticut shore, supported on four columns in the center of the river bed. Although strongly urged by Solicitor Ferguson in the open session the council refrained from taking any action and on motion of Councilman Farquhar Smith passed over it to pass a vote rescinding the order of the previous council requiring all dogs to be muzzled, which has been in effect in Westerly for the past thirty days.

Geoffrey L. Moore, commodore of the recently organized Westerly boat club, appeared before the council, to secure, as directed by the U. S. Engineers' office in a letter addressed to him, a favorable opinion from Westerly authorities on the boat club's proposed erection of a fifty foot dock with T head, 12 by 10 feet at the site of the club house at Thompson's cove, on which work was started Monday.

On motion of Councilman Broughton seconded by Councilman Trainer the petition was warranted.

The report of Building Inspector Thomas Wills showed 40 permit applications received for wooden frames 13 and 11 granted, for brick and stone 23 and 28 granted. A total of 39 permits was granted for March and twenty inspections made. A sample of "steeltex" or metal wire sheathing on which cement or stucco could be poured, regarding which Inspector Wills had asked for council action, as it was wanted in the construction of a house at Shelter Harbor by a Springfield, Mass., man and which did not come up to building specifications of 7-8 inch sheathing, received no favorable action by the council.

The following milk dealers' licenses were voted granted:

Daniel Cronin, Stonington; John R Healey, 63 Franklin street; James Lafone, Bradford; James Schofield, Canal street; Walter C. James, Bradford; C. B. York, Stonington; Herbert H. Crandall, Potter Hill; Antonio Morrone, 88 Liberty street; Alonzo S. Wilkinson, R. F. D. No. 2; John Ulles, 134 Main street; J. T. Edmond Co., High street; Lyle C. Mr. Ferguson was instructed to secure all that he was able in the nature of release from the public service company before the town entered upon private land to construct a drain for surface water.

NOANK

Noank Crescents basketball teamers played their last game of the season with the fast-going Leather Pushers of New London, before a handful of fans Saturday evening in the village hall. Referee Fitzpatrick seen get both teams going. The Pushers were out to win, for early in the season the Crescents sent them back to the city on a short end of the score. Speed Risch was not long in finding the hoop, then Dash Patterson was making long shots for the Crescents. Coach Billie Crane sent in the mystery man from the Bean Town, Jake Dunn, in the place of Giant Sweet to hold Speed Risch; but, playing only for five minutes, he sprained his left ankle and had to leave the game. The crowd gave him a big hand as Fast Jake left the floor. Sure Shot Morgan was put in guard with Giant Sweet at center. The first half ended Leather Pushers 2, Crescents 9. Noank was off in shooting and near the end of the game had enough shoots to win a dozen games but the round ball would not stay in the hoop. It was the greatest finish of any village basketball team in the history of the Indian town, for the battle was slow, like winding up a watchman's clock. But keeping right on to the last whistle were the fighting Crescents and when Scorer Bracci read the end news the final score was Leather Pushers 35, Crescents 30. The star for New London was Speed Risch with 18 points, while Dash Patterson added six field goals to his credit for Noank. Now the curtain is pulled down for the season of '27. It has been a fair season, but the games were not well attended as, on account of having two teams in the village, the fans lost interest in the sport, but they saw some of the fastest teams around this section come to the fishing village. The referee Saturday was Fitzpatrick, scorer Bracci; timer, Chesebro. Attendance, 40.

He was well liked by all and had a pleasant, genial way, which made many friends. He was a member of St. Joseph's church. Mr. Gaudet is survived by nine children, and several grandchildren. So another old shipyard worker has gone to join his comrades. The shipyard workers are getting fewer, not many left now in the village.

Mrs. L. Fish, after spending the winter in Florida, has returned to her home in Noank.

Alden Brocky was at Block Island over the week-end, with relatives.

On April Fool's day Sunday, many tricks were played. Candy with pepper and bits of wood in it was passed around. One fellow was looking for a balloon to go up at 4 o'clock and soon found out it was the first day of April. He was telling them all about the balloon. When the church bell rang for morning services at 8:30, one fireman, Trim Mack, beat it for the fire, but found out it was Sunday and the April fool joke was on him.

John! You Old Scout! You're Growing As Thin As a Rail

He used to be such a manly looking fellow with good features and a fine figure, but now his meagre flesh hardly covers his bones—He is absolutely skinny.

Pretty tough on John to have his friends talking about him that way, but the health resorts and the Mountains are populated with just such John's who kept getting thinner and thinner without trying to help themselves.

"Well," he said, "one is born every minute."

Hammer Nine baseball team members are house carpenters for Eugene McDonald, at Groton Long Point. Manager Paul Sullivan called his men out for a five-inning game Saturday afternoon at Dunn field. It was with Greenmanville Giants and Coach Foxy Billie McDonald had some new men to try out. Smokey Joe Walsh went to the hill to do the pitching and Lefty Bennett to catch for the carpenters and Turk Brown, a right-hander, with Peter Balerstracci behind the plate. The cold March wind did not bother the players and the heavy hitters of the Hammer team soon got on to Brown's ball. Spike Panciera, who hails from a league out west, made a good showing at the dizzy corner and a second Babe Ruth put two balls out of the lot for two home runs. Big Billie Mallory, a center fielder coming from Canada, knows plenty about baseball and can cover some ground; also he is mean on the bat, got a home run and two two-base hits. It was an easy victory for the Hammer Nine team. Score, 13 to 0, only two hits for the Giants, while Brown was sent to the showers early, getting 11 hits off two pitchers. It looks as though the Hammer Nine will have a fast team. Coach McDonald was well pleased with their work.

STOCK PRICES WERE REACTIONARY IN CORRECTIVE REACTION IN THE MARKET

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Stock prices turned reactionary today after an early period of strength. While a corrective reaction was logical after the recent sustained advance, heavy liquidation undoubtedly was stimulated by the marking up of the call money rate to 5 1-2 per cent., the highest charge of the year. Final quotations disclosed a long list of net declines ranging from 1 to nearly 9 points, interspersed with a sprinkling of rather sizeable gains.

Trading failed to maintain the terrific pace set last week, although the day's sales ran above 3,000,000 shares for the 17th consecutive full session.

The advance in the call money rate followed the calling of about $35,000,000 in loans, presumably to meet the heavy demands for funds in connection with quarterly settlements. There was no change in time money and commercial paper rates.

Highly erratic fluctuations took place in some of the high price specialties. Radio, for instance, opened 8 points lower at 178, made up its loss before the end of the first hour and then shot upward to a new high record at 196 3-2. It then dropped to 183 and snapped back to 187 for a net gain of 1 point for the day. General Motors sold down to 184 in the early trading, rallied to 187 3-4, slipped back to 183 and closed at 183 1-4, off 3 3-4.

Selling pressure was quite persistent against such issues as General Electric, Montgomery Ward, Allied Chemical, Brooklyn Edison Case Threshing, Greene Cananea Copper, Union Carbide, Timken Roller Bearing, Vanadium Steel and Sears Roebuck, all off 2 to nearly 6 points.

Oils presented several points of strength on buying influenced by reports of improving trade conditions. Houston was the outstanding individual feature feature, soaring 11 3-4 points to a new high at 161 3-4. Atlantic Refining was bid up nearly 6 points to a new high at 121 3-4, but slipped back to 113 at the close. General Asphalt preferred jumped 8 1-8 points to a new top at 138 1-8 and the common closed a point higher at 90, after having touched 93. Sinclair, which was under heavy accumulation last week, reacted 1 3-8 to 27 1-4 on realizing. Pan-American Western B touched a new high at 28 7-8.

Nearly two score specialties were marked up to new high records in the early trading. Wright Aeronautical jumped 9 points to a new high at 102, and then sagged to 100. Other issues to establish new peak prices were American Bosch Magneto, Archer Daniels Midland, Curtis Aeroplane, Eisenlohr, Fairbanks-Morse, Ludlum Steel, Public Service 8 per cent. preferred, and Weston Electrical Instrument.

Rails yielded with the industrials, although independent strength was shown by the Western Maryland issues, the common closing 2 1-4 point's higher at 45 1-2 an dthe second preferred jumping 7 3-8 to 47 3-8. St. Paul common and preferred and Great Northern preferred attained new high prices in the early trading but they lost all their gains on profit taking.

Commodity prices were mixed. Grain futures yielded slightly despite the publication of private crop estimates indicating the lowest winter wheat condition on record with but two exceptions. Cotton rallied nearly $1.50 a bale on buying influenced by better trade news. Coffee and sugar quotations showed little change.

Foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits. Sterling cables held firm around $4.88 3-16.

POETRY FOR WIDE AWAKES

To a Lily.

Go bow thy head in gentle spite,
Thou lily white.
For she who spies thee waving here,
With thee in beauty can compare
As day with night.

Soft are thy leaves and white; her arms
Exist whiter charms.
Thy stem prone bent with loveliness
Of maiden grace possesseth less:
Therein she charms.

Thou in thy lake dost see
Thyself; so she
Beholds her image in her eyes
Reflected. Thus did Venus rise
From out the sea.

Inconsolate, bloom not again.
Thou rival vain.
Of her whose charms have thine outdone,
Whose purity might spot the sun,
And make thy leaf a stain.

—James Matthew Legare.

My Squirrel Friend.

A whirling form, now here, now there,
Unconscious of his charming way.
He frisks about with dapper air
A lamb or kitten at his play.
And when he hears some noise, he'll stay
Just long enough to list with care.
Then up a tree and out of sight
He whirls, this busy, lively sprite.
The acrobat of his small world.
Head down, and bushy tail in air,
Or on his back so deftly twirled—
His clever ways my heart ensnare.
In velvet garment he is dressed.
And limpid pools are his bright eyes;
I love this nimble, happy elf,
So gentle, yet alert and wise.
Eager for some adventurous quest.
He makes each day a new delight.
And keeps my spirits gay and bright.

—Elizabeth Voss.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES.

With the arrival of warm spring weather the small boys will be soon heading for the swimming pool and for the seashore. Many people, even those accustomed to swimming do not realize that it is dangerous to bathe until at least two hours have elapsed since they have eaten their last meal. Many boys and girls lose their lives every year simply because they do not know the danger they are running into when they take a plunge shortly after they have dined.

It is also dangerous to go bathing in water of a pool with which one is not familiar. A stretch of water may look attractive but it may, and oftentimes does, have unsuspected currents, cold springs or hidden weeds. Another good thing to remember is that it is never wise to go bathing alone. Some accident that will render one helpless may occur, and if one is alone in the water, with no one in sight to help, death by drowning is very likely to occur.

A very important thing for the bather to learn is when to leave the water. Don't stay in until you feel chilled through. Never dive into water of unknown depth. If it should be necessary for you to go into water of unknown depth, for instance to save a life, it is far safer to jump in feet first. If you should happen to be taken with a cramp in deep water, keep cool, call for help and paddle to safety with such limbs as you can use. For beginners who wish to master the art of swimming the best way is to make some attempts at floating. This will give you confidence and teach you a good deal about the correct position of the body in swimming.

To start, sit in the water where it is about one and a half or two feet deep. Then, stretching the hands beyond the head, and bending the thumbs, lean gently backwards until the ears are immersed and the arms are floating on the surface of the water. The head will not sink providing that it is thrown back so that the chin is high and the chest well opened. Next, still very gently and gradually, stiffen the trunk so that the stomach rises to the surface and the whole body becomes straight. This will leave only the heels touching the ground. And then, if you are not too slimly built, the feet themselves will slowly drift upwards so that you will be actually floating. In sea water this will be very easy.

Those sometimes find their feet floating readily that they have some trouble to stand up when they want to. You may, therefore, specially practice this getting the feet down onto the bottom from the floating position. All that is necessary is for you to draw your knees up towards your chin, and at the same time to strike outwards against the water with your hands. You will then be able to drop your feet without trouble.

Your first attempt at swimming should be by means of the dog paddle. This is the simplest of all strokes. It is not fast nor can it be kept up over long distances, but it is an extremely simple matter to keep afloat by it.

The actions are almost exactly similar to those you would make when crawling along the floor, so that you had better begin by doing this latter thing in order to watch your movements. There is one important difference. In the dog paddle each arm, as it is thrust forward, is raised to the level of the shoulder just beneath the surface. From this point the hand proceeds to scoop the water down and backwards, forcing it beneath the body. Each foot, as it is driven back, is held flat so that the sole presses against the water.

Besides learning floating and dog paddling your first few days or weeks should be occupied in gaining confidence in the water, for that is the real secret of swimming. To do this you will need to jump into the water, instead of creeping down steps. You should, too, get used to putting your head beneath the surface, and then opening your eyes. This will soon become quite a natural thing to do.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

A Composition.

Dear Editor:—In school we had to write a composition about Rip Van Winkle. This is mine. In a little village at the foot of the Catskill Mountains lived Rip Van Winkle and his wife. Rip was a kind obedient, henpecked husband but he was very lazy and would not work on his farm, so his wife was always dinning in his ears about his laziness and the only way he could escape his wife's tongue was to take his gun and go up to the mountains.

One day as he was sitting on a rock over looking the lordly Hudson he heard a voice calling, "Rip Van Winkle, Rip Van Winkle." He turned around but he saw no one. Then he started to descend the mountain when he heard the same voice calling Rip Van Winkle, Rip Van Winkle. Rip turned around and he saw a well built man with long bushy hair with a keg of liquor on his back toiling up the mountains. He motioned to Rip to help him. Rip did. They walked on and soon they came to a group of odd looking boys playing nine pins. Each of the boys took a flagon of liquor, and when no one was looking Rip took a drink also.

This was the last he knew for he fell asleep. When he awoke he was stiff in the joints. "It is not possible that I have slept here all night," he thought. What will Dame Winkle say to me when I get home?

He went down into the village and an important little man came up to him and asked him who he was. He said "A poor man, and a native of this town and a loyal subject of King George. God Bless Him."

When the people heard this they cried "A tory, a spy, away with him." A lady who was sitting near by said to her baby, "Hush Rip, he won't hurt you." When Rip Van Winkle heard this he said to the lady, "What is your name?" She answered "Judith Gardiner." "And your fathers name," Rip Van Winkle she replied. "You are my daughter," he said.

She took him to her home and they lived happily together.

Saving Their Pennies.

Dear Uncle Jed:—For the past two years the Chelsea Savings bank has awarded us a thrift banner. Now we are striving to win this year's. Several children have not saved the necessary dollar yet, but we expect them to reach the goal.

The last report from the bank shows we have saved a goodly sum. The boys and girls are anxiously awaiting the next report.

STELLA BARRON, Age 12.
Preston.

History for Girls.

Dear Uncle Jed:—Our teacher thinks boys are better in history than girls. And I know the reason why. If you would look through the history books, you would think that there wasn't any women in the world at all. I wish someone would write about women what they did in America. Then I guess the teacher would find the girls just as smart as the boys.

Stung By a Hornet.

Dear Uncle Jed:—Last year while I was picking huckleberries, I heard a buzzing and humming above my head. I looked up and saw a large hornet's nest. Right under it were some nice ripe berries. I thought if I didn't disturb the hornets, they would not harm me. So I kept on picking and, when my pail was nearly filled, I felt a sting right on my nose. I screamed. My sister went home empty-handed, because she spilled all her berries trying to get where I was. I have found out that hornets are not very neighborly.

GLADYS PERKINS, Age 12.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

Trapping.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second story to you. I set a few traps last winter, and every morning I went to look at them. But never was there anything in them. At last I grew tired and was going to take them in. When I came to the first trap there was nothing in it. I walked on picking up the first trap. When I came to my second trap there was nothing in it. When I came to my last trap I was surprised to see an unlucky rabbit had been caught. I took it home. But one day its cage door was left open and it escaped.

JOSEPH MICHELSON, Age 12.

A Hungry Cat.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. One day as I was playing out doors I saw a poor little kitty crying. He was crying so loud that he scared me. I thought he must have been very hungry. So I ran in the house and said, "Mother, please give me some milk for a starved cat." She did so, and that poor kitty drank a pint of milk. He looked so plump and comfortable after his meal. He looked at me as if to say, "You have saved my life." I think he will be my my friend for the rest of his days if no one claims him.

JEAN LAURENCELLE, Age 8.
Norwich.

My Cat.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I am writing to you and I hope you will enjoy my story. I have a little cat. It is gray. Under his chin it is white and his paws are white also. I call her Pussy Willow because it is almost that color. When I hold up my hand she jumps up and scratches my fingers. When I go to school if I say good-bye the cat says meow.

Whenever I take out my doll and carriage she jumps in the carriage and goes to sleep.

Once when I went out in my shed to play I heard a noise. I looked around and saw my cat playing in some of my toys.

RITA GODEK, Age 10.

Better Citizens.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to you and the Wide Awakes to tell you about better citizenship. We need better citizens in the United States. You pick up a newspaper and all you see is crime. Teachers and supervisors are teaching in schools better citizenship throughout the United States. I don't see how anybody can be so heartless as to do some of the crimes I've read in the papers. I think no matter who it is that does the crimes, they should be punished.

If a small child steals a pencil or any little thing and is not taught better, when he gets older he will do some awful crime like rob a bank, murder a child or some other heartless thing. We need better citizens, the kind like Charles Lindbergh.

IRENE SPOONER, Age 13.
Sterling.

Prince Edward's Pet Frog.

Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written so please do not use it for food for the waste basket.

I want to tell you about a little boy who was confined for days in a sick room. Now there was a little girl of his acquaintance who was also sick but who bore the affliction like an angel.

This boy said he was going to send that girl a present. He thought for a moment or two then went on musing. "What shall I send grandma?" I should give a present of the thing I am most fond of. Well he said, "I like my book of Lord Roberts."

Then came another period of deep thought and then with a decisive nod of his head "I like Bobs very much but I like my pet frog better. That sensible little girl shall have my pet frog." This was Prince Edward's pet frog.

BEATRICE ADAMS, Age 12.
Norwich.

Montreal.

Dear Uncle Jed: Now that we have studied Canada, I thought I would write to you and tell you what city I like best. This is Montreal.

Montreal is on the St. Lawrence river. It has a wonderful situation. Montreal is a thousand miles from the Atlantic ocean and is on a great navigable river which is the outlet of the Great Lakes. The river is frozen from the middle of December till the end of April.

Logs are drifted down the Ottawa river and made into lumber and wood pulp which are exported to various parts of the world.

Wheat is sent to Montreal from different parts of the country. The grain coming into this city has led to the building of flour mills and breweries. Montreal is the metropolis of Canada.

FANNIE WEBER, Age 11.
Norwich.

Benjamin Franklin.

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story. Benjamin Franklin is often called the "Father of Americans." He was born in Boston on January 17, 1706. After learning the printer's trade he left Boston at the age of 17 and settled in Philadelphia. He was the publisher of "Poor Richard's Almanac." By means of a kite with a common iron key attached to the string he proved in a thunderstorm that lightning and electricity are the same. He died in Philadelphia on April 17, 1790.

ROLANDE GAUVIN, Age 11.
Baltic.

The First Snowfall.

Dear Uncle Jed: The first snowfall came in January. It snowed briefly all night, but in the morning when I woke up, it had stopped. The boughs of the trees were bent to the ground with the weight of the sofest snow. Every branch and twig wore ermine. As Lowell said in his poem, "The First Snowfall." When the sun shown on the snow, it sparkled like diamonds. We have had several snowfalls since but none so beautiful.

CLARA BOGUE, Age 11.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 6.

My Sister's Fright.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you how my sister was frightened. She is three years old and her name is Laura.

My brothers, sisters, and I went and got some nuts and put them in the sun to dry. Laura went out to get some. About in a minute she came in all out breath and her eyes were so big. She said, "Oh, mama, there's a little dog eating the nuts." Mother went out and there was a grey squirrel. Laura has often looked to see the little dog as she called it.

HAZEL CONGDON, Age 11.
Plainfield.

Two Pets.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write to you and tell you about Purina. She is my little calf. Purina is black and white. I like to feed her. I also have a dog. My dog's name is Ginger. He is eleven years old. When he was a puppy he was the color of ginger and so we named him Ginger. He can do a few tricks. This is my first letter with ink. I am left-handed.

William Boyd and Marguerite De La Motte were cast for the leading roles in "The Last Frontier," a big Metropolitan picture which will be on view at the Breed theatre Friday and Saturday. RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

April 2nd, 1928.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of The Uncas National Bank, held this day, the following resolutions on the death of Henry L. Frisbie were adopted and ordered spread upon the records:

In the passing away of Henry L. Frisbie, the Officers and Directors of this Bank have suffered a great personal loss, the Bank a valuable asset, and its patrons an affable, kindly friend.

He had been in the employ of this Bank for nearly 20 years, and for more than half of that time had been its Cashier. During that period he had devoted himself untiringly to the welfare of the Bank, and being endowed with an affable and agreeable personality, yet firm, fair and capable in all transactions, he made hosts of friends.

We mourn his loss, not only because of his ability and service to this Bank, but more particularly our personal loss of a man of his integrity and character in the community.

It was Voted: To devote a page in our records to his memory, and that this minute be spread thereon, and a copy sent to his family.

By order of the Board of Directors,
CHAS. D. GREENMAN,
Secretary.

POETRY

When April Comes

When April comes again, with all its gay
And gold of tears and laughter, with its long
Dim twilights, sweet with twittering voices gay,
The owl's, tu-whit, the frog's deep basso song,
How many are the memories it brings
Of you, O love, how we with ears attent
And eager eyes together noted spring's
Mysterious unfolding, as we went Along the dusky woodland's winding trail
Like happy children in our joyous quest
Of early violets and windflowers pale,
And as the sun sank down the purpling west,
With what delight we heard the carolling
Of the first-coming hermit thrush of spring.

I love your very name, O April dear,
There is the trill of robins in the sound;
With misty eyes I note your message clear
Written in emerald green upon the ground;
"There is no death," you seem to say, "behold
The babbling brook now scampering on its way,
From icy fetters free!" O days of gold—
Yet not all gold—sweet April, gold and gray,
When new life stirs among the whispering trees,
Dearest of all the months, of all the year's Recurring twelve, so rich in memories,
So full of sunshine and so full of tears,
Welcome, thrice welcome, to my heart again;
You bring great gladness though 'tis half a pain!

—Louella C. Poole, in Boston Transcript.

A Glance

As I walked by a wood on a morning of Spring,
I saw with delight this gay delicate thing—
A spray of young larch teasing bravely on high,
Fresh, sunny and green on the blue of the sky.

The wind in a tree-top—the flash of a wing—
What painter can paint them? What singer can sing?
And how shall I treasure, to show by-and-by,
The tone of green tassels against the blue sky?

—W. Kersley Holmes, in "In the Open."

NEW LONDON MAYOR ALONE OPPOSES TAX COLLECTOR COUNCIL FAVORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 3—Mayor May found himself in opposition to five members of the city council tonight, at a meeting at which it was proposed to employ an additional tax collector. The meeting was a lively one and lasted until 10:15. The finance committee, Councilor Murray, brought in a report recommending an additional tax collector. Mayor May claimed that the matter was not properly before the meeting. Councilor Murray held that it was properly before the meeting and said that the same action had been taken scores of times. He held that he knew what he was talking about, while the mayor held him to be in error and said that it was time that such abuses were corrected.

The resolution provides for setting aside $8,000 for the balance of the year and 4 1-2 per cent on the collection of back taxes. Mayor May claimed that expenses of the tax office were now $16,400 and that they would go to $30,000. He said that other officials would demand an increase in salary and he didn't blame them if they did. He said there was abundant help in the city hall to collect the taxes and that the employment of an additional tax collector was an injustice to the public. He advised waiting for a public hearing tomorrow night, to get the attitude of the public toward this increase and held that the employment of another tax collector was an evidence of official incapacity.

Mayor May had previously stated that the tax would be 30 1-2 mills, while Councilor Murray denied that any such figure had been set. He said those figures were never mentioned in committee. That 30 1-2 and 31 had been mentioned, but no decision was reached.

Councilor Scott held that $150,000 had been set up in the tentative budget for the finance department and said that that department had the right to use it for the employment of a tax collector if it was decided upon. Mayor May held that no salary not definitely set up in the budget could be paid, and that if the director of finance gave his warrant for the payment of any such salary the director and his sureties made themselves responsible.

Sam Kaplan of New York opposed the idea of employing a tax collector and said that the man employed would audit his own accounts. Harry A. Gordon presented a petition signed by himself and 98 others, objecting to the employment of the additional tax collector; he was given the privilege of the floor and spoke upon the matter. Edward Gates, who requested the abatement of taxes because of military service, was denied such an abatement. Petitions to erect four billboards on Rosemary street, Jefferson avenue, Hamilton street and Connecticut avenue were denied. Mayor May favored the granting of these petitions and said that denial of the petitions would bring mandamus proceedings in the court. The council told him to go ahead and bring the mandamus proceedings. It would not be an easy road to travel. Mayor May said he wouldn't want the billboards near his own home, but said that the petitioners had a right to ask for them, as they complied with all the provisions of the building code. Pointing out that the state had ordered the removal of billboards from street highways, the mayor claimed that this was done for purposes of safety.

There were applications for 30 building permits tonight. The hearing on the appropriation ordinance, which includes the employment of a tax collector, will be held tomorrow night; there is considerable opposition to it.

The bearers were Joseph, Gerville and Emil Hodges, Joseph Lake, Burton Nagle and Gaston Larmalni. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The funeral of McGregor will be held tomorrow or Wednesday and if his brother does not put in an appearance and claim the body, it will be buried in Potter's field, Waterford.

That College Choosing day struck a responsive note in the lives of hundreds of high school students was evident at the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. buildings Friday afternoon, where about four hundred availed themselves of the opportunity to interview college representatives who were in the city for this purpose. The special committee of the Boys' Work committee of the Y. M. C. A., headed by Rev. Arthur F. Wagner, had arranged the affair. F. S. Hitchcock of Chapman Tech and Homer K. Underwood of Bulkeley were back of the movement and arranged the schedules of the schools, so that pupils could get to the buildings shortly after one, for the beginning of the conferences. Opportunity was allowed to move from conference to conference, and many were thus able to obtain information from a number of colleges.

COX ARRESTED ON WAY TO AID BROTHER—FREED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 2—Love of luxury brought grief to a young man in this city last night who gave his name as John W. Cox, claiming to be the son of James M. Cox, ex-governor of Ohio and one-time democratic presidential nominee. Cox boarded a train at Boston for New York, purchasing a ticket that called for a seat in the day coach. Just after the train left the city of beans he went into a parlor car and took possession of a chair there. He was noticed by the conductor who escorted him back to the place he belonged.

One try after a cosy plush covered seat was not enough. After the train pulled out of Providence young Cox again repeated his tactic and was again stiffly reprimanded by the conductor. Not to be outdone by the failure of his first efforts the young man for the third time, sneaked into the same car. This was too much for the patience of the conductor and he accordingly ordered his arrest as soon as the train reached here.

He was taken into custody by Railroad Detective John Anderson who turned him over to the local police. The nerve of Cox was supreme; he insisted to the officers that he could not be arrested for the offense against the railroad and threatened quick vengeance from "high political friends" should he be locked in jail. The threats were not taken seriously by the local police and Cox spent the night in jail. His trial was held this morning and was discharged with a suspended sentence.

Cox was on his way from Boston to New York to aid his brother, James M. Cox, Jr., a Yale student, who was under arrest in the latter city charged with assault, leaving the scene of an accident, and driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Both men are sons of James M. Cox of Dayton, Ohio, former governor of Ohio and former nominee for the presidency of the democratic party.

John Gilbert began his duties as turnkey at the New London county jail this morning. He succeeds William A. Gilbert, whose resignation took effect yesterday. The two men are not related as the similarity of names would infer. Mr. Gilbert has been employed for the past several years at the plant of the Babcock Printing Press Co. He was born in Deep River, Conn., is a bachelor of 43 years. The retiring turnkey moved today to a farm he recently purchased, near Uncasville.

A pretty wedding was solemnized Saturday night at 8 o'clock at the parsonage of the First Baptist church when Mrs. Lavinia Clark of 26 Blackhall street became the bride of Edward F. Prevost of 36 Howard street. The Rev. Chester H. Howe performed the ceremony. Attendants of the couple were Miss Katherine Prevost, daughter of the bridesroom and Theodore Ivers. After a wedding trip to New York the couple will reside at 36 Howard street.

The first act of Mr. Alexander will be to install a new system for keeping the accounts of the office. He will also take a vigorous campaign to collect money due the city from delinquents.

Dr. Benjamin N. Pennell, local health officer, reported four new cases of scarlet fever in this city today, bringing the total number being treated up to [illegible]. The new cases are as follows: Clinton Burrows and his sister Margaret at 34 Howard street; Albert Post, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Post of 79 Goodridge street and Ross Dierdoff son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dierdoff of [illegible] Broad street. Three members of the Burrows family have been ill with the disease for several days and with the two new cases the total is brought up to five.

Alec Rancaria, of Westerly, charged with reckless driving, which charge was amended to speeding, was fined in Groton town court $10 and costs, the latter amounting to $12.55. The automobile he was driving collided with a car on the Old Mystic road last August, the case having been continued from time to time until today. Pancaria, through counsel, entered a demurrer, which was overruled and the penalty was imposed.

But one arrest was made today and that was not by the New London police, but by the railroad police. A sailor, who had been drinking persisted in loitering about the Union station and refused to leave the premises when ordered to do so, with the result that he was taken into custody by Special Agents Swanson and Peabody of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning or it is possible that the bluejacket will be turned over to the shore patrol because of the charge against him being of a minor nature.

The funeral of George W. Lee was held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the residence of his mother, Mrs. Annie Lee, 72 Baker avenue, Groton. Rev. Frederick W. Haist, pastor of the Seabury Memorial Episcopal church, officiating. The bearers were George Coe, Edward F. Walsh, and Frederick Sweet, members of Fairview lodge, I. O. O. F., and Emerson Coe, Youngs Morgan and William H. Coe, Nantucaug Engine company. Burial was in Colonel Ledyard cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Louis Cromwell, acting noble grand of Fairview lodge, and Francis Strickland, acting chaplain.

GAVE WIFE A JOY RIDE AFTER SHE HAD BEEN BEATEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 2—Walter Charbonneau, of High street, Groton, was in the Groton town court this morning charged with breach of the peace. He pleaded not guilty. However, the evidence was so conclusively and convincingly against Charbonneau that Judge Cornelius C. Costello found him guilty and imposed a fine of $25 and costs. Charbonneau and his wife were found on Thames street shortly before 3 o'clock this morning and Mrs. Charbonneau's face showed plainly that she had received a beating. When questioned, Mrs. Charbonneau told how her husband had beaten her and that the couple had taken an automobile ride in an endeavor to revive the woman, who was left in a weakened condition as a result of the beating that she had received. When arrested Charbonneau was only partially clad. Mrs. Charbonneau's injuries were such that she was treated by a physician.

John Visconi, proprietor of the drinking resort, 7 Richards street, was in the police court today charged with violation of the liquor law. The case was continued to Wednesday next. He furnished a surety on his bond of $100 for his appearance on that day. Visconi was arrested Saturday evening when a raiding force went to the Richards street house. They found three men drinking and Visconi in charge. The officers found 25 cases of home-brew, 10 quarts of whiskey and several quarts of alcohol. This was seized as evidence against Visconi.

Another liquor trial resulted in the prosecution of Fadey Rotsko, 24 Grand street, employed as cook at a restaurant and speak-easy, 101 North Bank street. He pleaded not guilty of charges of transportation and after testimony had been taken, Rotsko was found not guilty. Rotsko was arrested early Sunday morning, when it was claimed he had taken several gallons of alcohol to his home, and left them in the hall. It was further claimed that Rotsko intended to deliver the alcohol at the North Bank street restaurant, but only in such quantity as was needed to take care of the patronage, for the entire amount was not wanted there because of evidence against the proprietor of the restaurant in the event of a raid. When Rotsko was walking through North Bank street shortly after midnight, he was held up by Patrolman Dennis Murphy, who searched him and finding a pint of alcohol in Rotsko's possession, arrested him. Naturally Rotsko claimed to have the liquor for his personal consumption and that it was given to him by a friend.

The other cases heard and there were nine of them altogether. Most of the accused were discharged, but one was given a 10 days' jail sentence and another was fined $5; in each instance however, there was a suspension of judgment.

Dr. Walter L. Douglass of Hempstead street, today was ordered to present himself in the police court tomorrow and defend a charge of violation of the city's traffic law, in passing intersecting streets at a high rate of speed and not sounding his horn. Dr. Douglass was ordered into court by Patrol Officer Clarence Martin, who claimed that the physician drove his automobile on Montauk avenue at reckless speed from School street to Bank street.

Firestone Tires

Racing history repeats itself.

Firestone Gum-Dipped tires, winners of every national championship for years, are again shattering all world's records on the great speedways of the country.

The story has been the same at every important race in years. Firestone equipped cars win all national championships.

The average man who owns a car necessarily should be assured of the same tire safety and dependability as the racing drivers who entrust their personal safety to Firestone Gum-Dipped tires.

Veterans of the speedway understand the extra strength and speed built into a tire by reason of the exclusive Firestone Gum-Dipping process. They know that this method impregnates and insulates every cord of the carcass with live rubber, reducing the possibility of internal friction, and unifying the whole structure of the tire.

Moreover, the Firestone scientifically designed balloon tire tread provides driving dependability and long mileage at low cost.

Palace Theatre

Of all the great novels of Leo Tolstoy, "Resurrection" is best known. Others nearly as well known are "Kreutzer Sonata" and "Anna Karenina." "Resurrection" was written by Leo Tolstoy at Yasnaya-Poliana, Russia, in the years from 1895 to 1899, when it was published for the first time in "The Niva," a magazine. Two years later the play based on Tolstoy's novel ran more than 100 performances in Paris, and in 1903 Sir Herbert Beerbohm-Tree in England and Blanche Walsh in America created sensations with the play. In 1904 Franco Alfano wrote his operatic version of "Resurrection," introduced in America by Miss Mary Garden at the Auditorium, Chicago, Dec. 31, 1925.

"Resurrection" will be shown for the last times at the Palace theatre today.

Tomorrow a double feature program will be presented. "The Siren" with Tom Moore and Dorothy Revier is an intriguing mystery story which will steal your attention, absorb your interest and hold you breathless in suspense until the final fade-out. Stark realism of a kind that makes you forget it's a picture. You'll live every foot of this film.

Barbara Bedford and Robert Ellis have the leading roles in the co-feature entitled "Marry the Girl," a pulsating drama of modern life centering about a young widow and her son.

Wednesday night as usual will be Gift night at the palace and twenty-five dollars in gold and ten valuable presents will be given away absolutely free.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

White House Coffee

We think of coffee today only as a delicious beverage. But what ill, mental or physical, has not coffee been prescribed for?

The English Publick Advertiser in 1657 says that coffee "is good against coughs or colds, rhumes, consumptions, headaches, dropsie, gout, scurvy, kings evil," etc.

Peter Altenberg, the Vienna poet, recommends a trip to the coffee house person wishing to commit suicide to him who desires to be seen in a new suit.

Now we find such statements amusing, yet there is not one of us who can deny the bracing relief of coffee after a hard day's work or its refreshing eye-opening effect in the morning.

But half the zest of coffee is often missing, though the blame for poor coffee does not always rest on the housewife.

Flavor and fragrance are the qualities that a cup of coffee must have to be tempting, and the development of these starts in the roasting of the green bean. If care is not taken, these two vital elements will escape in evaporating oils.

The Dwinell Wright company has found the best method of preserving these volatile oils and "roasting the flavor in." Today White House Coffee is the result of over 80 years' experience. The least possible aroma is allowed to escape in the roasting. Even the sealing in stout packages is done in such a way that the greatest possible flavor is retained in White House Coffee.

Certainly, with such improvements as this, making coffee today is a far cry from grandmother's time, when the process started with roasting the berries in an open pan in the oven and ended more often than not with a good boiling over on the top of the kitchen range.

Anyone who has been aided by, or who has come in contact with, this bureau, will testify to the truth of that statement. Help a worthy cause and buy a ticket. Use Vigoro

Are your plants, flowers and vegetables on the right "diet"? Nurserymen and professional gardeners say that the choice of the right kind of nourishment for all growing things is just as important as our selection of health-giving foods for developing sound bodies.

The prime essential, say experts, is to provide a plant food that will give quick vigorous growth from the first seeding to full maturity. It is the proper balance of plant foods that makes for a thick velvety lawn, hardy, full colored flowers, leafy shrubbery and crisp succulent vegetables.

Most soils, we are told, lack certain plant foods. But these must be supplied for best results in growing. Thanks to modern garden experts and plant food chemists, this is no longer a messy troublesome process. It is now possible to get clean, odorless plant food that can be supplied by hand, just like grass seed.

Garden authorities recommend this new kind of plant food. They have found that it combines in concentrated form all the elements needed for rapid, luxurious growth. By selecting a brand put out by a reputable concern one can have added assurance of enjoying a successful, profitable season with lawns and gardens, flowers, trees and shrubs.

Strand Theatre

Should a girl put love of a sweetheart above love of parents? In "It Must Be Love," showing for the last time tonight at the Strand, this is one of the puzzles which Colleen Moore has to work out. This production presents a cross-section of the kind of life we all know, centering in the situation a girl finds herself in when she gets a beau and is ashamed to bring him to her home in back of a delicatessen store. Because of this environment and her own pride, many heart-breaking moments follow her taking up of a new home away from her parents. Malcolm McGregor plays the role of the sweetheart and Jean Hersholt as the father and Bodil Rosing as the mother make a marvelously effective pair in their German characterization.

"Fisherman's Luck" is an attractive color scenic.

"Battling Kangaroo" is an exceptionally good Fox comedy with plenty of pep and action, and has an excellent cast.

New England Gas Assn.

One of the greatest movements in the history of New England industry from the co-operative point of view is that just launched by the leading gas companies of the six New England states. Subjecting all personal competitive problems to the main purpose of the industry the officials of these co-operating companies are sending out a series of messages to New England people that are designed to tell the story of gas development of the past century in the United States, the advantages it offers consumers of today, and what the future promises. These messages will appear in 82 newspapers in 66 New England cities and towns. Among the officials of New England gas companies and gas appliance manufacturers who have been working on this co-operative plan for the past several months are G. Warren Stiles, president, Portland Gas Light company; C. D. Williams, National Refrigerating company; M. B. Webber, governor, sales division, N. E. Gas association; Alexander Macomber, Charlestown Gas & Electric company; Davis M. DeBard, sales manager, Stone & Webster, Inc.; Frank D. Cadwallader, vice-president, Boston Consolidated Gas company; Frank L. Ball, vice-president, Charles H. Tenney & company; David Daly, president, Blackstone Valley Gas & Electric company; A. M. Barnes, president and general manager, Cambridge Gas Light company; Guy K. Dustin, president, Gas & Electric Improvement company; E. E. Eysenbach, president and general manager, Hartford Gas company; F. H. Golding, N. E. Gas & Electric association; J. J. Quinn, president, Citizens Gas & Electric company, Quincy; M. E. Abbott, Glenwood Range company.

The history of the gas industry of the United States since its incepti[illegible] 10 years ago is filled with romance. A steady growth, without any spasmodic gains or losses, shows an increase of 352 per cent, just seven times the increase in the population of the country over the same period. The crude plant that first produced gas from coal has become the highly-developed chemical institution that not only produces a commodity of particular service for domestic and industrial consumption in the most efficient and cleanest way, but utilizes all of its by-products in the elimination of waste.

"Old Dog," Dodge Car

The "Old Dog" like the "Old Guard" never surrenders. Neither will it die.

It has 370,000 miles behind it and refuses to stop going. Today, it has a permanent home in the plant of Dodge Brothers, Inc., at Detroit, where it left 13 years ago as a five-passenger touring car. Still in fair running condition, it was driven back to the factory this month as a delivery truck, the gift of the Simmons Bed Co., at Kenosha, Wis.

So many drivers have kicked this Dodge Brothers car around that it has been nicknamed the "Old Dog." Its serial number is 2,422, one of the pioneers still in service as an example of quality in workmanship and materials. It was bought in May, 1915, by the Simmons Co. and has been owned and operated by them since.

In its years of service, the "Old Dog" has been under the supervision of the same garage foreman who has made a sworn statement that the car has used 18,500 gallons of gasoline, averaging 20 miles to the gallon, and 500 gallons of oil. During the 13 years, repair bills have amounted to approximately $1,000.

When first purchased, the car was used for carrying passengers and mail from railroad stations. During the World war, it was enlisted in the service to transport nurses on visits to influenza victims. After the war, it was used to carry equipment of the factory baseball team.

In 1922, the tonneau was removed and a truck body substituted. The car then was used for hauling castings. In this role loads of three and a half tons were successfully carried by the "Old Dog."

"No car was ever more abused," said Mr. Z. G. Simmons, president of the company, "and it simply refused to be killed. We must have broken a good many spring leaves, but otherwise it is practically the same car that was delivered to us 13 years ago."

HOLLYWOOD ECONOMY MOVE CUTS HUGE CLOTHES BILL

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.—A million dollars a year is being saved in wardrobe expenses in Hollywood's great studios, by one simple economy move, according to studio officials here.

Seeking a method of cleansing expensive costumes and fabrics for sets, which would keep them new-looking during months of hard wear in producing a picture, the studios discovered that with Lux they could keep washable fabrics like new more than twice as long as with other methods.

All the big studios, therefore, now insist upon Lux for cleansing millions of dollars' worth of clothes and materials—everything from negligées to camping togs.

Paramount, Metro-Goldwyn, First National, United Artists, Universal, Fox, DeMille, Warner Bros., all use Lux. Like millions of women, they find that Lux is so pure, so mild, that it keeps silks, chiffons, rayons, woolens, colored things like new twice as long.

JOHN JENCKS DIES IN SLEEP AS FAITHFUL DOG WATCHES BY BED

John Jencks, about 63, well known Norwich sportsman, and for over 29 years employed as chauffeur by Dr. James J. Donohue was found dead in bed, about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at his home, No. 22 Lake street. Mr. Jencks had evidently retired as usual Sunday night. Dr. Donohue missed him Monday morning and, during the afternoon, when he learned that there was a light burning in Mr. Jencks' room, he went to the house to investigate and found the body. Mr. Jencks was lying on his left side in a very natural position and beside the bed, keeping silent watch over the body, was Mr. Jencks' dog, of which he was very fond. Mr. Jencks had been ailing recently, suffering from heart trouble and had been under Dr. Donohue's care.

Mr. Jencks was always greatly interested in hunting and fishing. He was well acquainted with favorite streams not only in this section but for miles around. He often accompanied Dr. Donohue on hunting and fishing expeditions. Not only was he an ardent sportsman; he was an excellent camp cook. For some years Mr. Jencks had served as cook for the Norwich Boy Scout camp and also served as cook for private camping parties. He was extremely popular with the Boy Scouts and was universally liked by all who knew him. His genial and optimistic nature won him numerous friends who were shocked and saddened by the news of his sudden death.

Mr. Jencks, in past years, was greatly interested in billiard playing and was considered an expert player. Surviving him are a brother Henry Jencks of Montville, one sister, Mrs. William A. Frazier of Fowler avenue and several nieces and nephews.

GAVE SHOP MEETING TALK ON "OPTIMISM"

Under the Y. M. C. A. auspices, the weekly noon meeting at the plant of the Richmond Radiator company was held Monday at 12:30.

Rev. C. H. Ricketts gave the address and selected for his topic, "The Ground for Optimism." Mr. Ricketts spoke in part as follows: Yesterday in most of the churches what we call "Palm Sunday" was recognized. It is a recognition of a unique incident in the experience of Jesus. The triumphal entry was the only attempt on the part of Jesus to assume His kingship. To all intents and purposes it was a spontaneous outbreak. The people had heard Him speak of the kingdom, and they knew that there could be no kingdom without a king. It was a great crowd of people coming to Jerusalem in the beautiful season of spring when the birds were singing and the palm trees were reveling in their beauty. They believed that He was the predicted Messiah. He was to be prophet, priest and king, and it was time to make some show of His kingship. But what has all this to do with optimism? It has everything to do with it. Optimism means to be one's best and Jesus was the best, and no one can be at his best without religion. The opposite of optimism is pessimism, and pessimism means that everything is going to smash. There is only one ground for optimism and that is religion. Power is not the ground of optimism, for many who have power use it wrongly, oftimes in a cruel way. Power alone is certainly no ground for optimism. Intelligence is no ground for optimism, for at times the more highly educated a man is the meaner he can be; he often uses his intelligence in the wrong way, to the detriment of others. There is no ground for optimism in wealth, for it does much harm at times. We cannot find a ground for optimism except in religion. A man of great power who has great religious principles governing his life is a real blessing, and one whose intelligence rightly is guided by true religious ideals is a great asset. The question, what kind of religion produces optimism? Religion must be practical and not merely a creed; creeds are all right but if our religion is nothing else it is not practical. The longer I live the shorter my creed becomes. A religion to be practical and to produce optimism must be a religion of the heart and life. Our religion to be of the right sort must keep in contact with its author. I knew of an instance where all the electric lights of a community suddenly went out and the whole place was plunged into darkness. They found that between the power house and the darkened buildings there was a break, and it was necessary to make a connection before light could be obtained. We must keep in touch with the spiritual power house. We do not keep our electric lights all bottled, but we let them shine, and so if we are to be the right kind of Christians and of use to the world, we must live in daily contact with the Christ, and let our lights shine in the world."

WITHDRAWAL IN SUIT FOR AUTOMOBILE CRASH

The suit of Bertha M. Robinson of Sprague against Kenneth H. Doyle of the same town and Whitney M. Prall of New London has been withdrawn without costs from the superior court. She brought the suit in December for $2,000 damages for injuries she received July 16, 1927 while riding in Doyle's automobile when it was in collision with Prall's car on Pequot avenue, New London, at a point about opposite the lighthouse. The collision occurred, it is claimed, when Prall pulled out to pass a car ahead of him and ran into the right hand side of Doyle's motor car which had turned to the left of the highway.

Senator From Ohio Will Deliver the Keynote Speech at Kansas City in June—Fess is Assistant Republican Whip in the Senate—Has Been a Strong Advocate of Legislative Policies of the Coolidge Administration—Chairman Butler of the National Committee Declared the Selection of Senator Fess Had No Political Significance.

KANSAS CITY, April 3—(AP)—Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, one of the stalwarts of the Coolidge administration today was chosen to sound the party keynote as temporary chairman at the republican national convention here in June.

Announcement of the selection of Fess by unanimous vote of the subcommittee on arrangements of the republican national committee was made late today by William M. Butler of Massachusetts, national chairman.

Butler would not discuss what went on behind the closed doors at the subcommittee's session, but it was understood the Ohio senator's name was presented by the national chairman, who was requested by the committee members to name his choice.

Prior to the vote Butler declared that no political significance could be attached to the selection, adding that the committeemen were interested only in choosing the best man available for the role of keynote speaker.

Half a dozen candidates were considered but the final choice narrowed down between Senator Fess, Senator Moses of New Hampshire and Senator Gillette of Massachusetts. Opposition by Senator Moses to several administration measures was understood to have been a point raised against him.

Senator Fess had been one of the leaders of the Coolidge administration, acting as assistant republican whip in the senate. He is known as a forceful speaker and has been a strong supporter of the president.

Chairman Butler denied that the white house had been consulted, saying that the selection of a temporary convention chairman was "not a question to bother Washington with."

As a delegate at large from Ohio, Senator Fess was pledged to the presidential candidacy of the late Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio and in filing for the post he named Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas as his second choice. While he has made no announcement, reports have been circulated that Senator Fess felt that since the death of Senator Willis he would be bound to throw his support to Senator Curtis.

The subcommittee adjourned after disposing of the temporary chairmanship and probably will not meet again until just before the convention opens June 12.

Chairman Butler said there had been no discussion of a permanent chairman. He will return to Kansas City the last week in May.

Headquarters of the national committee will be opened May 1 on the the second floor of the Security building at 11th and Main streets, four blocks from Convention hall. Quarters will be found for the credentials and other subcommittees at another location. It is planned to begin the hearing of contests two weeks before the convention starts so that this business can be wound up by June 9.

Nothing was done by the committee on ticket distribution or the granting of applications of newsreel companies for the right to film the convention proceedings.

Contracts for hotel rooms for delegates and convention visitors will date from June 11 on a five day basis and the hotels will not be permitted to collect a deposit of 25 per cent. in advance for the reservations as had been planned. The local arrangements committee announced it would protect the hotel against loss through cancellation of room contracts.

MEAGRE RETURNS FROM WISCONSIN PRIMARY

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 3—(AP)—Scattering returns from 88 precincts out of 2,746 from the primary election showed a close contest between the two factions in the republican party for control of the state's delegation to the national convention at Kansas City.

Walter J. Kohler, and Andrew L. Kreutzer, republicans, were running a close race with Senator LaFollette and Blaine, heading the opposing progressive slate, for the four seats in the convention as delegates at large. Returns from 88 precincts gave LaFollette 2,494; Kohler 2,456; and Kreutzer 2,258; Blaine 2,242.

Senator Norris, whose name stood alone on the ballot for the preferential vote had 2,104, with Herbert Hoover 520; Lowden 101 and Dawes 210. The names of the others had been written in on the ballots.

Twenty six delegates to both democratic and republican conventions were being elected.

The fight in the democratic ranks for delegates at large appeared to be between the two factions of Al Smith delegates, on the basis of returns from 25 precincts. Candidates pledged to Senator James J. Walsh were far outdistanced. Candidates aligned with the Callahan faction led the state conference delegate slate, John Callahan, national committeeman led all candidates with 448 with his three running mates following close behind.

PILGRIMS TO JERUSALEM VISITED DOME OF THE ROCK

JERUSALEM, Palestine, April 3—(AP)—Delegates to the International Missionary council, representing Christian sects in 51 countries, today visited the dome of the rock, the spot sacred alike to Jews, Christians and Moslems. It is the legendary location of Abraham's offer of his son Isaac as a sacrifice. It is also the historic site of King Solomon's temple and of the temple of Herod from which Christ drove the money changers. Now the mosque of Omar stands upon it.

The visitors were received at an unusual hour by special permission of the Mosel Grand Mufti. They made a colorful picture, their costumes ranging from the plain garb of men like John R. Mott of New York and Bishop McConnell of Pittsburgh, through the Episcopally gaitered and aproned British bishops of Manchester and Salisbury to turbaned East Indians and their flowing Sari clad women, silk robed Chinese, brightly garbed Koreans, fezzed Syrians and Egyptians, dignified South Americans and blacks from Africa.

At today's session of the council Fay Campbell, of the Yale student Y. M. C. A., said that students today were not interested in youth but in truth movements, and were closely watching the lives of their elders.

FAILED TO CLEAR UP BOMBINGS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 3—(AP)—While one group of federal agents attempted to link recent bombings and liquor murders with a man they arrested last night, another group was resisting the city efforts to obtain custody of a prohibition operative accused of assault to kill.

After 24 hours questioning Lorenzo Juliano, whose apprehension was expected to clear up the bombing of the homes of Senator Charles S. Deneen and John A. Swanson, Deneen candidate for state's attorney, was released on bail. George E. Q. Johnson, federal district attorney, said he had nothing definite to back up his expectations.

Arthur Forsham, a former prohibition spy, who also was arrested last night, was held for further questioning. He had been sent into Chicago Heights, where Juliano is said to have directed an alcohol ring, to do espionage work. The government claims he instead supplied information to the bootleggers.

Johnson said Juliano is under indictment at Indianapolis for a prohibition violation.

The youths are: Joseph Kovacs, 22, of 359 Nichols street; John Macejonus, 17, of 244 Hamilton street, and Andrew Fusco, 18, of 194 Hallett street.

They were arrested charged with stealing an automobile owned by Detective Sergeant Walter Auger while it was parked in front of his home on Williams street. They were riding in the car when halted by the police of Jersey City. In the city court today their cases were continued until April 6 under bonds of $1,000 each.

RUMOR THAT TROTZKY WAS SHOT IN THE BACK

PARIS, April 3—(AP)—The Paris Herald tomorrow will say that Leon Trotzky, deposed Russian leader, was shot in the back by an Armenian supporter of Joseph Stalin four days ago in a remote section of Turkestan.

The paper says that reports of the shooting reached Paris by wire and that Trotzky's condition was stated to be desperate. Soviet authorities are making strenuous efforts to prevent the news from getting out.

The paper does not specify where the reports came from nor by whom they were received and the heading of the story calls them "unauthenticated."

The Herald's story was not confirmed by any other source.

Western Senators Split Over Farm Relief

Brookhart is to Present a Substitute For the McNary-Haugan Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 3—(AP)—The rift in the ranks of western senators over farm relief stood out in bolder relief today when Senator Brookhart of Iowa, one of the independent republicans, launched his expected offensive against the McNary-Haugen bill by putting forward as a substitute the farm relief bill of his own.

Senator Brookhart and Senator Capper, republican, of Kansas, were the only speakers in the senate today, the agriculture committee having given way during the afternoon to the banking and currency committee for hearings on the Glass-Wilcox District of Columbia appropriation bill.

Mayfield declared the proposal would go a long way toward putting the farmer on a permanent stable basis; Brookhart contended it was inadequate and would fail in its purpose.

The Iowan advocated his measure which would have the treasury bear the cost of marketing surplus crops up to a limit of $600,000,000. This limit, he said, equaled the subsidy given by the government to railroads after they were returned to private ownership. In fact, he declared that if the government went as far for the farmer as it had for the railroads since 1920, it would pay out $3,000,000,000.

Brookhart would establish a farm board, nominated by farm organizations, with power to fix a price for products when surpluses arose. He would have this price based on cost of production plus a return of 5 per cent to the farmers on capital invested.

His bill does not include the controversial equalization fee provision and Senator Brookhart made it clear that he had no sympathy toward this feature of the McNary-Haugen bill, which also is opposed by President Coolidge. He branded the fee as "unsafe and unsound."

Mayfield, on the other hand, defended it, declaring it had been grossly misrepresented and differing with the Iowan in his contention that it would prove unpopular among cotton producers. The Texas senator declared the bill afforded adequate machinery for stabilization of cotton prices.

NEGRO WOMAN WAS REFUSED DE LUXE SUITE

NEW YORK, April 3—(AP)—The only active Negro woman lawyer in New York has filed a $500 suit against the Eastern Steamship Lines because she was refused a de luxe suite on a steamer plying between here and Norfolk, Va.

She is Ruth Whitehead Whaley, who charged in a brief filed in the supreme court that the company violated the civil rights law by declining to provide her and her husband with a suite on the salon deck and gave them passage in a segregated Negro section of the vessel. Mrs. Whaley said her action was merely to test the constitutionality of the law on the ground that a state law cannot govern interstate commerce.

This constitutionality was questioned for the first time in the answering brief of the defendant company. The civil rights law provides "free and equal accommodations in public conveyances on land and water."

VATICAN ORGAN EXPLAINS POPE'S RECENT ADDRESS

ROME, April 3.—(AP)—The Observatore Romano, the vatican organ, appeared with an explanation today of the pope's recent address to the Roman diocesan board, in which the pontiff expressed views contrary to those held by the fascist state on education of youth, and also upbraided the national Catholic party for its failure to go to the vatican to pay homage to the holy father on the occasion of its recent convention in Rome.

The article, which is signed with the initials of Count Della Torre, director of the paper, declared that the pope's pronouncement "was confined solely to a moral plane, and was in no wise politically inspired and did not constitute intervention in the affairs of the state."

Clean Republican Victory in Hartford

Batterson, For Mayor, Had Plurality of 264 Votes Over Gaffey, Democrat.

HARTFORD, April 3—(AP)—Walter E. Batterson, republican, was elected mayor of Hartford by a plurality of 264 votes over John F. Gaffey, democrat, in the biennial election today. The vote, 20,721 for Batterson, and 20,457 for Gaffey, a total of 41,178, is more than [illegible] per cent of the city's registered vote of 52,120.

With the mayoralty candidate the entire republican city ticket was swept into office, as well as majority candidates for elective boards and 10 of the 15 aldermanic candidates.

James T. Farrell, veteran democratic assessor, making what was asserted to be his last appearance as a candidate for that office, was defeated for the minority place on the board by George F. Kinsella. It was Farrell's third defeat in 30 years since he was elected assessor for the first time in 1898.

Dr. James H. Naylor, another veteran democratic leader, who was candidate for the high school committee, also was defeated, losing the minority place on the board to Timothy A. Meehan by 129 votes.

Five appropriations questions all were voted, the closest vote being on the $1,995,000 for widening North Main street between Windsor street and Pleasant street, which was carried by 170 votes. The largest vote on any of the questions was cast on the meadows diking, on which 16,000 electors expressed their opinions, the ratio of those in favor being more than 2 to 1.

CONN. TRUST COMPANIES IN "FAVORABLE CONDITION"

HARTFORD, April 3—(AP)—The "favorable condition" of trust companies in Connecticut is shown by a report released today by State Bank Commissioner Lester E. Shippee for the trust companies as of the close of business on Feb. 28. An unexpected call was sent out by the comptroller of the currency for reports from all banks and trust companies at the close of the first two months of the year instead of at the close of March when the customary quarterly call is issued.

The report shows that the banking houses were required to meet the usual withdrawal of general deposits after the close of the year, this withdrawal in Connecticut's trust companies amounting to over six and a quarter millions. To meet this, and the further withdrawal of nearly three and a half millions in certificates of deposit, the Connecticut companies were not compelled to borrow to any material extent. The nine millions, approximately, withdrawn were offset by a similar decrease in bills discounted, collateral loans, and cash due from reserve agents, banks and bankers.

COURTMARTIAL CONVICTS BRITISH COMMANDER

GIBRALTAR, April 3—(AP)—The first courtmartial growing out of the Royal Oak affair which has stirred the British navy ended today with the conviction of Commander H. M. Daniel, on charges of conduct prejudicial to discipline.

The court, after deliberating one hour and ten minutes found him guilty on all charges and sentenced him to dismissal from his ship and a severe reprimand. The sentence did not imply dismissal from the service and means that the commander will remain on half pay until it pleases the admiralty to appoint him to another ship or another post.

The court was immediately dissolved and a courtmartial on Captain Kenneth G. B. Dewar, also of the Royal Oak, will open tomorrow.

Rear Admiral Bernard St. G. Collard who was the center of controversy that developed about a now famous dance aboard the Royal Oak at Malta leading to the courtmartial of the two officers, was not present when the verdict was returned against Commander Daniel.

TAX REDUCTION MUST NOT EXCEED $201,000,000

WASHINGTON, April 3—(AP)—Faced with a warning from Secretary Mellon that tax reduction must be limited probably to $182,000,000 and not more than $201,000,000, the senate finance committee started work today with some apprehension on the $290,000,000 measure passed by the house.

The $182,000,000 limit must be adhered to, Mr. Mellon said, if flood control legislation is enacted. It has already passed the senate by unanimous vote and soon will be acted on by the house. Before going to the senate, he laid the treasury position before President Coolidge, who agreed that $190,000,000 was the outside limit of reduction which the administration would sanction.

Income tax collections and other government receipts will hold up next year, on the basis of present indications, the secretary informed the committee, but increased expenditures necessitate a paring down of the original limitation of $225,000,000 set by the treasury last fall.

EFFORT TO POSTPONE THE TRIAL OF HARRY SINCLAIR

WASHINGTON, April 3—(AP)—An effort to postpone the new trial of Harry F. Sinclair on charges of conspiring criminally with Albert B. A motion was filed asking that, instead of beginning tomorrow as scheduled, the opening of the trial be set for Monday. Simultaneously notice was given that the motion would be called to the attention of Justice Jennings Bailey, who is to preside, shortly after court convenes.

UNITED L. A. W. CORPORATION IS BROUGHT INTO HEARING

Evidence Given Tends to Show That Arthur K. Reading, Attorney General of Massachusetts, Used His Office to Force an Accounting Between the L. A. W. Corporation and Its Subsidiary Companies—Jacob Asher, a Worcester District Court Judge, Testified That Reading Had Threatened Louis A. Wolfe.

BOSTON, April 3—(AP)—Evidence tending to show that Arthur K. Reading, used his office as attorney general to force an accounting between the United L. A. W. Acceptance corporation, of Worcester and its subsidiary companies, of which he was counsel, was introduced into the hearing today on Reading's conduct in office before the special legislative committee conducting the inquiry.

Jacob Asher, a Worcester district court judge, testified that Louis A. Wolfe, president of the Worcester company, told him Reading threatened to indict him for larceny unless he agreed to an audit of the company's books and an accounting between the parent company and the subsidiaries should it be found that Wolfe was not dealing fairly with the branches.

This second day of the hearing was devoted to the affairs of the L. A. W. corporation and the bank accounts of Mr. Reading. No reference was made to the Decimo Club, Inc., of New York whose alleged payment of a retainer of $25,000 to Reading started the steps toward his impeachment.

Judge Asher, counsel for Wolfe, said the latter told him a "Mr. Mitchell accompanied him to the office of Reading at the state house. There Reading is said to have charged that representatives of the subsidiary companies felt that Wolfe was withholding money from them and unless the audit and settlement was made Reading would take the matter before the grand jury. Reading was quoted as saying "Mitchel is outside ready to do my bidding." Wolfe soon after signed a contract to permit the audit.

Previous to Judge Asher's testimony, John F. Mitchell, and inspector of the Boston police department, assigned to the attorney general's office, testified. He said he was instructed by Reading to go to Worcester, November 11, 1927, and to tell Wolfe to call Reading by phone. He said he delivered the message and Wolfe, Mitchell and Joseph A. Lincoln, vice president of the Worcester firm, went to Reading's office at Boston by automobile. Mitchell denied having told Edward T. Estey, one of the committee's counsel, that he told Wolfe he was from the attorney general's office.

Harold J. Rogers, auditor of the Old Colony Trust company, Boston, presented transcripts of Reading's personal account and his account as an attorney. The personal account showed that it was started September 7, 1927, and closed December 16, 1927. During that time, a total of $32,402.59 was deposited and withdrawn. The attorney's account was opened January 31, 1928, and closed March 10, 1928. During that time $205,264.24 was deposited and withdrawn.

One of Reading's attorneys said the account was closed with a check for $150,000 to Alexander Whiteside, one of Reading's counsel.

A $30,000 check said to have been given Reading after the settlement between the Worcester L. A. W. corporation and the subsidiaries and which was referred to during yesterday's session, was touched on during the early minutes today. Edwin L. Pride, public accountant who audited the Worcester books, testified he did not see the check and of his own knowledge did not know there was one. In answer to a question by Starr Parsons, one of Reading's counsel, Pride said he knew that Reading, previous to the settlement, had not agreed with the subsidiaries companies as to his fee for representing them in the accounting with the Worcester company.

CONGRESSMAN GALLIVAN DIED OF HEART ATTACK

ARLINGTON, Mass., April 3—(AP)—Congressman James A. Gallivan, of Boston, who had represented the 11th Massachusetts district since 1914, died at the Ring hospital here early today as the result of a heart attack. He was 62 years old.

Congressman Gallivan came to Boston on Saturday from Washington, making the trip against the advice of physicians who had been treating him for throat trouble. On Sunday he attended the installation ceremonies at the Boston lodge of Elks in honor of a friend, George E. Curran, who had been elected exalted ruler. Yesterday, on the advice of his Boston physician he went for rest and observation to the Ring hospital, choosing that institution to avoid the publicity which would attend his entering a Boston hospital. Early this morning a nurse found him dead in bed.

For many years a leader of his party in congress as well as in Massachusetts, Congressman Gallivan was one of five three democratic representatives of the state out of a total delegation of 16. On his last election from the 12th district, which is entirely within the city of Boston, he was unopposed.

He was born in South Boston in 1866, the son of Irish immigrant parents, and educated at Boston Latin school and at Harvard, excelling in scholarship and athletics.

He was the star second baseman of the Harvard baseball team of 1888, later refusing an offer to enter "big league ball." For some years after graduation he worked as a reporter on the staffs of the Boston Herald and Boston Globe.

He began his political career when in 1895, he was elected to the state house of representatives, serving terms in both branches of the legislature. He held the post of street commissioner of Boston for 14 years, until he was elected to congress in 1914 from the 12th Massachusetts district.

INTERESTING DISCLOSURES AT THE TEAPOT DOME INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, April 3—(AP)—Some interesting disclosures of events following the lease of Teapot Dome were made today before the senate oil committee, which reopened its hearings for an hour and a half, but no new light was shed on the missing Continental Trading company bonds.

Former Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin, revealed that Will H. Hays, one time postmaster general, had visited him here late in 1923 to discuss the status of Albert B. Fall about the time Lenroot, then chairman of the oil committee, and Senator Smoot, of Utah, a member, had called on the former interior secretary to urge him to tell all in the oil investigation.

Birch Helms, a New York banker, but a Texas oil operator when Teapot Dome was leased to Harry F. Sinclair on April 7, 1922, disclosed that he had protested to President Harding and three of his cabinet officers—the late John W. Weeks, Harry M. Daugherty and Herbert Hoover—against the lease, but without avail.

FUNERAL OF SENATOR WILLIS AT DELAWARE, OHIO

DELAWARE, Ohio, April 3—(AP)—Ohio's senior senator, Frank B. Willis, was buried here today in Oak Grove cemetery with the honors of a first citizen, while those of opposing political faiths mingled at his grave side with his family and friends.

Down the same throng-lined street through which he rode in triumph a short while before he died Friday night, Senator Willis rode in solemn triumph again today, his flag-draped casket escorted by a battalion of the Ohio National Guard.

But the street that was joyous with gay flags and bunting when the senator came home to speak in behalf of his presidential candidacy today was sombre with the purple, black and white crepe that adorned the building.

The brief services at the grave were preceded by the funeral ceremonies in Gray chapel, on the campus of Ohio Wesleyan university where the senator was stricken.

In the chapel, as his body lay on its flower-banked bier, his friends—political and persona ialike—paid him tribute.

The junior senator from Ohio, Simeon D. Fess, prophesied that "his career will be a ladder of fame upon which young men and women of spirit will aspire to climb." Senator Fess, who was one of Senator Willis' professors at Ohio Northern univeresity, traced the life of his colleague from a Delaware county farmer boy to his high position as a statesman.

TWO NEGROES KILLED IN COLLAPSE OF BUILDINGS

WASHINGTON, April 3—(AP)—Two Negro workmen were killed in the collapse today of the old Franklin Square hotel, which was being dismantled. Five were injured. A search of the ruins several hours after the crash revealed the body of one of the victims while the other, previously reported injured, died at a hospital.

The men were engaged in tearing down a wall when the floor on which they were standing gave way and precipitated them into the basement under a torrent of bricks and plaster. Six injured workmen were extricated almost immediately, but a checkup revealed one missing. A half hour's digging brought his body to light.

The Franklin Square was located at Fourth and K streets, in the northwest residential section.

WASHINGTON, April 3—(AP)—An investigation by the administration into charges that federal employes in Georgia, particularly postmasters, are forced to contribute money to politicians to hold their jobs was promised today by Postmaster General New, coincident with a demand for such an investigation by Senators George and Harris, democrats, Georgia.

Inquiry by the senate into the Douglas, Ga., postoffice case, which was revealed in a letter from L. S. Peterson, former postmaster, who committed suicide last Sunday, to his brother, charging that his action was due to forced contributions to the state republican organization, was threatened by the Georgia senators if the administration investigation does not satisfy them.

USED DYNAMITE TO BLOW UP HIS BOARDING HOUSE

McMECHEN, W. Va., April 3—(AP)—Incensed because his boarding house keeper, with whom he was infatuated, threatened to return to her estranged husband, John Sebert, 50, tonight set off several sticks of dynamite in the home of Mrs. Julia Karp, 42, killing himself and Mrs. Karp's 13-year-old daughter, and wounding Mrs. Karp and three other persons. The explosion wrecked the Karp dwelling and a house next door.

Mrs. Karp, suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, and other injuries, told Coroner D. B. Ealy that Sebert tried to prevail upon her to remain away from her husband, but that she refused.

When he entered the house tonight she said she noticed a battery in his pocket and a dynamite cap in his hand. Sensing what he intended to do, she said she ran for the door but did not escape before dynamite placed under the kitchen table had been set off by Sebert.

Sebert was killed instantly and his hand, clutching a dynamite cap, was found later by police. Stella, Mrs. Karp's daughter, died at a hospital. Three young Karp children escaped.

WATERVILLE, Me., April 3—(AP)—Maine's 12 votes in the democratic national convention will be cast as a unit for Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, on every ballot, "so long as his name shall be before the convention as a candidate for the nomination for president."

Delegates favorable to Governor Smith were so instructed at the biennial state democratic convention today by a vote of 489 to 174, following an hour's exciting debate and a prolonged demonstration for New York's chief executive, and after an amendment merely endorsing Governor Smith and recommending that the delegates support him for the nomination had been defeated.

LIVE TROLLEY WIRE ENDANGERED MRS. COOLIDGE

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who came here a week ago to be near her mother, Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, who is ill at the Dickinson hospital, walked unwittingly into danger today. While crossing Main street the president's wife passed within two feet of a live trolley wire which lay along the pavement.

Mrs. Coolidge went to the hospital at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, remaining an hour and a half. Her second visit, lasting an hour, began at four o'clock.

HOOVER AND SMITH ABOUT 4 TO 1 IN MICHIGAN

DETROIT, April 3.—(AP)—Unofficial returns compiled late today from 2,355 of 2,897 precincts in the state showed that Herbert Hoover, republican, outran Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, democrat at the ratio of about 4 to 1 in yesterday's presidential preferencial primary.

The vote was: Hoover 191,444; Smith 56,200.

Despite the fact that neither candidate was opposed on the official ballot and interest was lax, many outstate republicans and democrats showed disclination to follow their party organizations by writing in the names of their favorite for president, scratching the party approved candidate.

This process resulted in 2,053 votes being tabulated for former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois; 1,212 for President Coolidge and 206 for Vice President Dawes, for the republican nomination. Smith's chief sticker opponent among the democrats was Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, who received 624 votes, principally from outstate drys who advocated his candidacy as an opponent of Smith.

There were scattered votes for various other "candidates" including one vote for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

MATE LINCOLN WILCOX THRILLS WITH HIS SEA TALES

Lincoln Wilcox, second mate on U. S. steamer Mexico has arrived from the Pacific coast after a three months' trip on the ocean. Mate Wilcox was telling several young fellows around the whittling room Monday evening of his trip. He said it was the worst time on the salt water since he went lobstering out of the village when 14 years old. The waves were big as a house; many times the side of the ship went under. Seaman Joe McNulty was seasick for several days, the first time in his life. Never again, if that is the way the storms make you feel in sunny California!

On Main street, after attending a seamen's ball he ran across Edward Jensen, a Noank boy taking in the sights. Many things were talked over about the fishing village. Eddie Jensen wanted to know from him how was the Sardine club coming along and was John Ashbey still mayor. Wilcox said he had not been in Noank for a year, but everything was all right at that time. He also met a former Noank boy, Fred Durham, who has not been in the village for 20 years. He asked all about the shipyard was it still running or gone under. Taking from his pocket a scrap of paper he gave it to Durham to read. It was the big fire at the shipyard several years ago and he was surprised to think so many buildings could be afire at once. Then Durham wanted to know if Stretch Morrison was still the funny man on Pearl street always making some one laugh with his jokes. "Fellows," he said, "I want to tell you all in this large room that a plate of mother's corned beef and cabbage was good to me!" After his long talk every one gave him a cheer and a big hand the Sardine band members heard that Mate Wilcox was home from a long trip on the ocean and played several welcome home selections. In the mean time it proved a trained rooster. For Capt. Franche went to bed as he is an early riser. As the clock hit 4 Mr. Rooster gave the call. As he did not hear the alarm go off, if it had not been for the rooster he would have slept over so he is going to throw away the alarm clock for the train bird is just as good. It will roll over for its breakfast also do several other tricks. It came right into the kitchen, not afraid of anyone, looked round and walked out again. Capt. Franche is well pleased with his gift from New Jersey and says the bird will almost talk.

Roger Lemay in the pigeon hole worked the spot light on every one and made fun for young and old. A wild west dance was next on the list, eight sets were on the floor, Prof. Carl Asheraft of Prospect Hill called off, when he called out "Wild West!" it was get anothre girl or try to get your partner back. Eddie Ellis slipped in the change, fell and broke his watch. The crowd on the side seats had a good laugh. It was like Charlie Chaplin in the circus. SHAREHOLDERS RECEIVING CHECKS FROM B. AND L. A.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 2—Checks were received today by those who were among the original shareholders of the Danielson Building and Loan association on the maturity of the first series of shares, issued in the early part of 1914. The happy recipients of these checks received $201.75 per share. This represents payments of $1.00 a month per share with interest at 5 per cent., compounded semi-annually.

It was during the hectic days of the World war, but before the United States had entered the great conflict, that the demand for more homes in Danielson brought about the proposal that a building and loan association be organized, that thrifty and ambitious people might be given an opportunity to own their homes under an easy payment arrangement.

The plan was taken up with enthusiasm, the first series of shares issued and the wheels set in motion for the fine success the local organization has since achieved. Regularly new series of shares were put out until today the assets of the association run well toward a quarter of a million dollars. In the years that have since elapsed the early borrowers who wanted money to buy or build homes have gone on with their payments and in some instances are on the verge of liquidating them and obtain clear titles.

From now on other series of shares will come to maturity regularly and those who own them can have their cash or paid up certificates. It was indicated today that much of the money now being paid out to owners of the first series of shares will be put back into the new series of shares that the association is issuing at this time.

It has been the experience of the local association that the demand for loans is always greater than available of funds of the association to meet them. The usual procedure is to place the applications on file and advance the money as soon as it is available.

There are numbers of homes in Danielson today that are in the hands of their owners through the good offices of the association.

It was pointed out today that quicker maturity of shares may be brought about by making one complete payment on a share. For instance, $111 will become $200 in 12 years and so on up to a payment of $156.55, which will become $200 in five years.

The demand for additional homes in Danielson continues, and the association is one important factor in helping meet it.

Attorney Louis A. Woisard said today that a meeting of representatives of various towns of Windham county is to be held in Danielson in the near future to organize the county unit of the French Republican clubs of Connecticut. It is possible that the meeting will be called for a week from Sunday, but this has not been definitely decided. There are to be town clubs as well as the state and county organizations. Killingly is expected to have an especially numerous club because it has such a large percentage of French-speaking voters in all of its communities.

This morning the funeral of Mrs. Louise Quintal was held from the home with services at St. James' church. Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., was celebrant of the solemn high mass of requiem, Rev. James McCarthy deacon and Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., sub-deacon. There were many relatives and friends in attendance. The bearers were Robert Ressette, Leodore Quintal, Alphrie Quintal, Arthur Seguin, Eugene Seguin, all grandsons, and Albert Jarvis. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, the committal service conducted by Fr. Demers. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Added to the inmates of the county jail at Brooklyn today were Stephen Shea and Szamund Liskiwicz, both of Norwich, in default of fines imposed upon them in a justice's court in Woodstock, following their arrest last night by Constable Johnson of that town after they had been chased for nearly 40 miles by Rhode Island state troopers who followed right across the border into Connecticut to get them, and who fired several shots at the fleeing men during the course of the pursuit. Shea and Liskiwicz were carrying intoxicating contraband when arrested. There hope at the jail today was to raise the $200 each that will be required to pay their fines. There were 47 held at the jail today, seven of them bound over to await trial at the superior court.

Hebrews of Danielson are not to have any services here in observance of the feast of the Passover. This year those of Danielson and surrounding territory who annually observe this traditional celebration are to attend services in Norwich, or Providence or some of the other cities in southern New England.

Tax Commissioner W. H. Blodgett tonight addressed members of the Danielson chamber of commerce and citizens who were invited to hear him at the April meeting of the chamber in the Attawaugan hotel. Commissioner Blodgett, in discussing taxes and taxation methods, covered much of the ground that he has gone over in other recent addresses in different cities of the state, the address being highly informative and of peculiar interest to local people just now when the matter of revaluing the town's property is being considered.

A checkup establishes that Danielson has lost very few families through removal as a result of the closing of the Connecticut mills. Some few families have gone to other towns to make their home, but the number is surprisingly small, all things considered. In many instances workers who were at the closed plant have found work elsewhere in town or in nearby towns. The prospect that the closed plant will be taken over by Powdrell and Alexander is encouraging to the community as a whole. Some decision relative to this may follow today's meeting of the stockholders of the Connecticut Mills in Boston.

Mrs. William A. Burrows was reported very seriously ill at her home.

The morning service at St. Alban's church Holy Thursday will be at 10:30 o'clock.

My, how things are growing this spring, including stories! This morning came a report of the forced landing of a plane in a field west of Maple street, of its being wrecked and the occupant injured. This yarn grew out of the fact that Alanson Colvin had taken the plane out of the garage where he has kept it on Maple street all winter and rolled it down in a field nearby to reattach its wings.

In observance of Good Friday banks in Danielson will be closed on that day.

The retreat being preached this week at St. James' church by Rev. F. T. Ledwith for the English-speaking members of the parish is being well attended.

There was an increased attendance this morning at the Holy week services being sponsored by the Tri-Y girls and held in the Baptist church. Miss Florence Moran presided, assisted by Miss Cora Browne. The brief address was by Rev. Albert Abbott. Thursday morning the address is to be given by Rev. George Nesbitt McClusky, Hartford, state director of religious education.

The first of the union Holy week services was held this evening at the Methodist Episcopal church. Wednesday evening the service is to be held in the Westfield Congregational church, and Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church will be the speaker.

Everett Pellett has purchased a home on North street, and is to remove there from his present residence on North street.

Mrs. James Burlingame, who has been seriously ill at her home in the Mashentuck section of the town, is gradually improving.

Warnings for the annual borough meeting issued today contain no clauses dealing with special matters, the business to be transacted being routine.

Easter eggs, if such they may be termed, are cheap and plentiful in this territory as the festival approaches. They were being quoted at poultry farms hereabouts today at as low as 31 cents a dozen.

LIBERTY HILL

When friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Peckham assembled at Liberty Hill church rooms to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary after a social hour and congratulations, Mrs. J. George Clark voicing a hearty welcome, presented Mr. and Mrs. Peckham a sum of money represented in gold coins and with it the best wishes of friends for many more happy anniversaries. This was followed by 4 o'clock tea which included a large bridal loaf which was cut and passed by the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Peckham are 74 and 72 years old respectively. They have three sons living, Myron C. of Manchester, Kenneth of Vermont and Edmund J., of Willimantic. They have nine grand children. Their married life has been spent in the town of Lebanon but their birthplace was Rhode Island. They have followed the vocation of farming, although Mrs. Peckham has been a successful school teacher in the town of Lebanon for 25 years. It is a rare occurrence when two golden wedding anniversaries have occured in so short a time and the same section of a town, these being Mr. and Mrs. J. George Clark the 14th of last November 1927 and Mr. and Mrs. Peckham, the 28th of March 1928.

PUTNAM

FISH AND GAME CLUB ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 3—The annual meeting of the North Eastern Fish and Game club was held Monday evening in Odd Fellows hall on Pomfret street. The members of the club re-elected the following officers to serve for the ensuing year: President, F. A. Maryott; vice president, Ernest C. Morse; secretary, George Whitney; treasurer, Stanley F. Bacon. The secretary and the treasurer were the only newly elected officers. Secretary Whitney will succeed Prosper Vegiard in that office and Mr. Bacon will take over the duties of Carl M. Sharpe of Abington as treasurer of the organization. The following were elected to serve on the executive committee: Samuel Rich, chairman; Irving Paine of Woodstock; E. C. Botham of Pomfret, George Whitney of North Grosvenordale and Carl P. Lathrop of Phoenixville.

About 45 members of the organization sat down to an oyster stew supper that was served by the committee in charge. At the business meeting the members voted to buy 2000 bass and some trout to stock the lakes and brooks for the sportsmen in this vicinity. A committee was appointed to make plans for a field day to be held in the fall, jointly with the members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club. Reports of the officers and committees showed that the club has accomplished much during the year past.

The members of the hook and ladder company were called from the central fire station Tuesday to extinguish a chimney and roof fire at the home of Judge M. H. Geissler on South Main street. The fire had spread from the chimney and was threatening the entire house when the firemen arrived, but was quickly overcome with the use of a number of gallons of chemical. Little damage was done to the property by the blaze. This was the thirty third alarm of the year answered by the fire department.

Recruiting in the headquarter company still continued when Captain John J. McGarry enlisted four new members of the military unit at the regular weekly drill, Monday evening. The applicants enlisted were: Thomas D. Beradinis, Arthur Kilbourne, Evance LeDoux, and Adelard Houde of Putnam. The drill Monday was confined to close order drill and interior guard duty. Captain McGarry stated Tuesday that the company is nearly up to full strength and that he now must have executive permission to enlist the additional soldiers. Every possible military facility is now provided in the company's new quarters on Harris street and the new armory has induced many boys to join. Captain McGarry said that he was pleased with the attitude that Putnam people are no wtaking towards their military organization and he hopes that it will continue.

Social activities in the company are strong. The enlisted men are to hold a military dance soon and it will be open to the public.

Captain McGarry stated Tuesday that the annual fifteen days active training of the company at camp Trumbull in Niantic will be held for August 5 to 19 inclusive.

An automobile driven by James McBriety of Pomfret crashed into another car driven by Norman Cheesebro of Springfield, Monday evening near the Putnam Auto station on School street. Sergeant George Liard of the Putnam police investigated the accident. McBriety of Pomfret told the police sergeant that he was turning into the garage and he ran into the Springfield machine causing it to turn over. The driver of the capsized machine was slightly injured and two other occupants of his car were shaken up from the collision. Two occupants of the Pomfret auto were not injured. Some person who witnessed the accident became excited and called the ambulance from the Day Kimball hospital to the scene. McBriety admitted to the police that he was to fault. He settled for the damages caused the Cheesebro car. No arrests were made.

MOTOR VEHICLE LIGHTS

It can be easily appreciated that those who are working in Rhode Island for a law that will so regulate the headlights on automobiles as to cause greater safety have good reason for it. The state which does not call for the use of lenses that will eliminate the glare and the adjustment of the lights so that they will not throw their beams into the eyes of other drivers has failed to give proper consideration to highway users at night.

The dazzling headlight is a distinct menace.

The strong light that is projected in the eyes of the drivers coming in the opposite direction may easily be the cause of serious accidents.

The light that is not focussed upon the highway is not serving the purpose for which it was intended.

Seeking remedial legislation, as is being done in the state to the east, is the step necessary to obtain the needed additional protection, and it ought to require no great amount of deliberation. Those who use the highways are the best judges of the demand for such relief.

What the Rhode Island legislature will do is not indicated, but it is to be realized that while there is reason for such restrictions there is equally great need for the enforcement of those provisions providing they are placed on the statute books. Lights are sought which will reveal objects 200 feet away and which will not throw a beam higher than four and a half feet at a distance of 75 feet. In addition taillights which can be seen at a distance of 200 feet and will disclose the registration figures at 60 feet would be required.

Because of those who would promptly conform to such regulations, and the enforcement for others which could be effected, the highway safety in Rhode Island at night would be materially increased and it is just such provisions for the reduction of accidents that are needed in these days of great highway slaughter and the too numerous accidents.

ACCOMMODATING THE PUBLIC

Reference is frequently made to the fact that toll bridges are things of the past and that there ought not to be any thought of constructing new bridges where fees would be collected. The view taken is that it is a step backward and the users of the bridge might not to have this added burden placed upon them.

Perhaps those who take such an attitude represent common sentiment but there are occasional instances which show to the contrary. There are for instance those new bridges where tolls are to be collected which are being sanctioned each year. In those instances the public is not getting the service that it requires, the communities directly involved and the state are not ready to provide the money, and it devolves upon private enterprise to finance the proposition. The result is that there must be a fair return on the expenditures and it is quite proper that those who get the benefit should maintain such an enterprise.

That the public welcomes such advantages is reflected in the patronage given these bridges. When the bridge was erected between Philadelphia and Camden it was the desire of Pennsylvania that it be free but New Jersey could not stand the share of expense that would fall upon it. The result was that tolls are being collected. This hasn't driven people away from it. It hasn't forced them to use the ferries to escape the toll. It has opened the way for a constantly increasing business and that business is being received. The second year for the bridge has not been completed but when it is by the end of June it is estimated by the general manager of the bridge that the increase in motor vehicles for the year over the first year will be 1,253,000, or a total of 3,100,000. The revenue has likewise increased until in March the receipts were $40,635 more than in March 1927.

What this increase means is reflected by the fact that it was estimated that such a use of the bridge and such an income would not be obtained until 1941. The public has found it such an accommodation that it is gladly paying the toll in increasing volume and it is not figured that if this rate of increase continues the financial returns will reach the figure by 1941 where the bridge can be freed of tolls. In the meantime the public is showing its appreciation of the accommodation.

AIDING FORESTRY

This is the month for tree planting and much of it will be done in many localities in following out a practice that has resulted in valuable additions to the community assets and the development of woodland investments.

How the urgings in behalf of forestry have been heeded is indicated by the provisions which are made in many of the states for supplying those interested and so engaged with small trees. States are maintaining nurseries for the purpose of taking care of their requirements and also for the purpose of supplying the needs of those who are endeavoring to utilize waste land or replacing trees on land which has been cut over.

This doesn't mean that states are trying to compete with private nurseries. They are interested in the large orders from those who are really engaged in reforestation rather than those who are putting out trees for ornamental purposes. For that reason they are handling large orders, as can be seen by the statement of the state forester in Massachusetts, when he says that the state has raised about 2,000,000 pines and Norway spruce trees for transplanting on state owned property and that through the good results obtained in the growing of the small trees has about as many more for disposal to the public for reforestation purposes.

The advice which has gone out to land owners in previous years still holds good in regard to the advantages which lie in making a business of developing woodlands. There is opportunity for producing more of what is actually required in this line right at home. There is a chance to make the waste land productive and it is of course advantageous for land owners that once they have cut off their timber to see that there are replacements which will bring returns as quickly as possible and to the best advantage.

When we stop to realize the vast amount of state property that is bringing in no return, and never will if permitted to remain as it is, it can be readily seen where many owners have a chance through forestation efforts to make investments for the future that will grow for slight expense.

HARTFORD'S ELECTION

Hartford has gone through a hard city campaign and election. It was for the control of the city government and with a change in mayor certain whichever ticket was successful. Under a successful city administration at the hands of the republicans it was urged that such an administration be continued. There were advantages for the city in so voting, and such were evidently recognized by the voters in the choice of the republican ticket.

This was an election which centered upon local issues. Nevertheless the effort was made to have it reflect national sentiment, so much so that had the democrats been successful such would probably have been the claim. A democratic mayor in Hartford is by no means unheard of. Repeatedly has that been experienced but the demand of the people of that city in recent years has been for republican policies and it is a continuance of such which the voters have called for by the election of Walter E. Batterson as the chief executive for the next two years and the putting into office of city officials who will give support to an administration which has the welfare of the capital city at heart.

Endorsement is given by the vote of the people, close though it was with the plurality of 266, to the administration that has closed and confidence is expressed in the purpose and ability of the newly elected officials to face and meet the particular problems of that city. At the same time the voters have made it clear that if there is any national significance to be attached to the election result Hartford still stands republican, though probably not as strongly as might have been the case had the election really hinged upon national issues.

OPEN TO ALL

It took some time to carry it out but Uncle Sam is at last in control of the Cape Cod canal and the important coastal waterway is now open to free use by all vessels that can make use of it. This applies to all except sailing vessels and the largest vessels of other types.

This acquisition means much to shipping. It cuts down the distance of coastal traffic by 70 miles and it eliminates danger that cannot be escaped in any other way. It ends the terrors of the Cape Cod shoals where so many vessels have been lost and so many lives sacrificed. The cutting down of the distance and the danger likewise means the speeding up of delivery and the cutting of shipping expenses. Thus taking over of the canal by the government has great significance in shipping circles. Anything in fact which contributes to the reduction of wrecks on some part of Cape Cod is to be welcomed.

But this acquisition, accomplished after much opposition, does not mean the attainment of the full goal. The canal needs and will get in due time such deepening and widening as will permit of its use by a still greater number of vessels than can do so today. Such changes were hopeless under previous owners. They had failed to find it a paying venture. The government steps in and acquires it for the purpose of having such a waterway maintained. Public requirements demanded it and while it may not be forthcoming immediately it will sooner or later be shown that the demands warrant additional outlays for the offering of service to greater numbers. A first and valuable step has been taken, and as should be it is open to all who can use it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

This is the week when everything can be expected to take a side track for the Easter bonnets.

Only six weeks to the opening of the straw hat season. Have you decided on your 1928 model?

It can't be long now before the shad and the porgies are bidding for favor among their numerous friends.

Boston hopes that differences over the site will not delay its new postoffice. Barring funds, nothing is more liable to.

The man on the corner says: The one great trouble with the vitamins in cod liver oil is that they got into a very unpopular place.

The popularity of the Cape Cod canal will be much increased henceforth. Since the government has taken possession the tolls have been suspended.

MR. QUEERIE DASHES ONE OFF

"Ah, Miss Remwood," puffed Mr. Queerie, "I'm afraid we're a bit late with these letters. But I couldn't possibly get away from that old bore Sorenson, especially, ha, ha, as he was paying for the lunch. Still, if we go on it I think we'll manage to get them out.

"What's this from Mulberry? Wants to know if we'll pay for the damage to the last shipment. Tell him we'd see him—that is, say no. Fix it up so it sounds as if we want to say yes, but can't.

"Bottle Bros, asking for a check. Nothing doing, but word it nicely, you know. Turn down this application for the Peoria agency, but do it diplomatically. Use your own judgment in answering these others. Nice, distinctively worded letters. Sign my name to them. And that's the lot. Didn't take up long when we got down to it, eh?" beamed Mr. Queerie, as he picked up his hat and left for home.

"Oh dear," was Mrs. Queerie's greeting. "Oh, dear, I'm all hot and bothered! The Goofles wrote, asking if we would put them up——"

"The Goofles!" interjected Mr. Queerie. "Not a chance, Ethel!"

"I know and the letter must go tonight, but I don't think how to word it."

"What!" exclaimed Mr. Queerie, "fussing all afternoon over one letter. Why, before leaving the office I directed ten distinctively worded letters in twenty minutes."

"Well, what would you say to the Goofles?"

"Simply say no as if you wanted to say yes, but couldn't."

"Yes, but what excuse can I give?"

"Say you're out of town," suggested Mr. Queerie.

"The postmark!" pointed out Mrs. Queerie.

"Say—er—say we're quarantined."

"Their cousin's across the street! I tell you," half sobbed Mrs Queerie.

"Speaking as a business man," said Mr. Queerie, "there must be scores of ways to dash off a diplomatic negative."

"Perhaps," offered Mrs. Queerie, with a wife's irritating suggestion of doubt, "you could dash one off, and mail it while I'm at the movies with Mrs. Peek."

"Nothing simpler," snapped Mr. Queerie. "Run along and I'll keep the wolves from the door."

After unearthing a few sheets of deckle-edge paper, which looked as if they might have been taken from the tops of candy boxes, and an envelope which appeared to be all flap, Mr. Queerie seized his fountain pen and in a bold businesslike hand wrote: "Dear Mrs. Goofle: Yours of recent date received, and regret the reply must be in the negative—"

"No," thought Mr. Queerie, "that won't do; too abrupt." And he took another sheet. "Dear Mrs. Goofle: In reply to yours, we are unable to comply"—"No confound it!" said Mr. Queerie, "that's the same thing." He drummed on the table, but no diplomatic negative responded. He gazed at the ceiling, but the ceiling was as blank as the deckle-edged note-paper. He rose, and paced up and down, as he was accustomed to do when dictating to Miss Remwood.

"Now, then," mused Mr. Queerie, "how would a business man handle the situation? Ah!"—he stopped, and with an almost Napoleonic gesture picked up the telephone, and called Western Union.

"John Gilbert was splendid," cried Mrs. Queerie on her return. "Did you put the Goofles off?"

"Of course," replied Mr. Queerie. "I sent them a wire."

"But it's so hard to explain things in a telegram."

"As a business man," said Mr. Queerie, "I'm fully aware of that. I wired 'Regret impossible accomodate. Will explain by letter.—Ethel Queerie."—Exchange.

NEW BOOKS

Sam Houston, Colossus in Buckskin. By George Creel. Cloth, 341 pages, illustrated. Published by Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York. Price $3.

When Sam Houston laid down his mighty body to die, he left to the world very little but homely advice and the beginnings of a legend. Afterward, history, or rather histories were unkind to him. They remembered his faults—impetuosity, sullen, primitive disregard of conventions, a fondness for the hard-drinking, hard-fighting life of his time—and they forgot most of the truth.

Mr. Creel has followed that corrupted opinion to its sources and gone beyond them to the man who gave rise to it. Sam Houston, giant in mind, body and soul, has been rediscovered in this new biography. And compared to it, it seems none of those stories of pioneer life on our early frontiers were adequate either in the grimness or their glory. The story is of Houston who came out of the Kentucky woods clothed in his rugged buckskins, who became a politician and was elected a governor, who fought Indians and made peace with them by turns, who lived among the redskins and spoke their language, who tossed aside his fame under the fire of false accusation and who later reappeared from the wilderness to become the idol of Texas and the man who brought it as the Lone Star republic into the Union forever.

Mr Creel makes the bitter struggle of America's ancestors come to life, he paints a powerful picture of the development of a young country; he lights the Alamo once again; he makes a place beside the great for Sam Houston—Titan and gentleman.

Crimson Roses. By Grace Livingston Hill. Cloth, 319 pages. Published J. B Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

A red rose for courage. That's what it meant for Marion. Mother and father gone, her home sold over her head, deserted by her only brother, the world seemed to have stopped. Even her friends had forgotten her. For years she had given up everything to nurse mother and father and this was her reward! Alone in the city without money without friends. But Marion's long years of nursing an uncomplaining father had taught her a great lesson. And she stepped out bravely into her new life. Things seemed pretty black until those roses came—each week a cool, velvety bud—but never a hint of the giver. For it never entered Marion's head that rich, handsome Jeff Lyman would even notice a poor, unobtrusive working girl.

The author of Crimson Roses has written Job's Niece and The White Flower, and those who are familiar with her wholesome, interesting books will welcome the latest work from her pen. The story will grip, the characters are so real, their joys and sorrows are so true. Surely Mrs Hill has never before written a more wonderfully appealing romance.

The Sword Lily. By Norman Lewis. Cloth, 123 pages. Published by Mendor Publishing Co., Boston. Price $1.50.

This is a volume of four wonderful stories. The first of these deals with every-day life in the sandhills and arid plains of Nebraska, where the author was a teacher. The second deals with the Canadian northwest, showing the hardships, adventures and romance of that region. The third deals with the "outlaw" horse, the psychology and the brutality of the training. The fourth is a narrative of life in prehistoric times, among the cave dwellers and portrays a period little known in a very fascinating manner. Woven through all of these stories, excepting "The Outlaw," is an absorbing romance. The Sword Lily is truly a modern epic of every-day life.

Fellowship of Prayer

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

"The Defeat of Evil"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "To them that love God all things work together for good" (Romans 8:28).

Read: II Corinthians 12:1-10.

MEDITATION: The Christian religion does not deny evil. Neither does it succeed wholly in explaining it. It provides a way to meet and defeat it by turning it to good account. "What do you smell?" asked a chemist as he held to another's nose a vial of artificial perfume. "The most fragrant lilies of the valley," replied the other. "No," said the chemist, "what you smell is camphor balls." Miss Maude Royden is quoted as saying: "When people ask me for an explanation of suffering, I tell them that I have none. But I tell them that I have a power that can conquer suffering." Christianity has from the first increased the capacity of men to use pain and to transmute it into something good. If good can be made out of evil, then evil ceases to stand in the way of hope.

PRAYER: Quicken in us the spirit of courage. May we go forth with hopeful minds to the duties and conditions of this day, believing that with Thy help we can fashion something good out of whatever material the day will provide. Through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

Pointers For Parents

A happy childhood is essential for moral development.

A wise mother will never call her children abruptly from play. Instead suggest, "Edith, when you come to a good stopping place, I want you to go to the store for me." The child will respect this little leeway if indicated in a five or ten minute warning at bedtime.

Some first aid points every mother should know:

Keep a sprain at rest until swelling and pain disappear.

Always have a child with sore throat examined by a physician.

Have a dog bite properly treated and keep the dog under observation.

Conclusions are frequently due to intestinal disorders—give an enema at once.

No case of croup should be treated without a physician's examination.

The coming of a little brother or sister may stimulate the development of some of the finest virtues in the character of the older child and there need be no hint of jealousy on his part if the situation is properly handled. But even a thoughtful parent often fails to realize just what a serious shock the advent of a new baby is to the emotional life of the "baby" who is supplanted. This period that furnishes so fertile a soil for the sowing of the seeds of jealousy, cannot be handled too carefully by loving parents—children.

Stories That Recall Others

"Red Hots"

At a recent musical entertainment three members of the quartette appeared on the stage while the fourth entered from the front door in company with a fiery red wig. He caused a little excitement especially for the children. Little Vera, aged three, remarked: "Mother, I bet that man has been eating 'red-hots,' for he surely has red-hot hair."

The Amusing Tag

A matronly member of the congregation entered the church with her husband, and smiling graciously entered the family pew. She slipped out of her fur coat and draped it over the back of the pew, revealing a beautiful silk, square scarf folded neatly over her shoulders. It was a new scarf, for on one side shone, a garish, redbordered price tag. A ripple of rustling, half suppressed titters, and giggly whispers spread through the pews in the rear. The tagged one squirmed and glanced nervously around.

Just then a feminine friend came to the rescue by leaving her own seat and entering the vacant pew to the rear. Her deft fingers soon loosened the prongs and removed the disturbing tag. Two gracious smiles were exchanged, this time, and quiet once more reigned in the house of worship.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Pack of Cards

Mr Editor: Will you kindly print in your paper the following clipping, "The Mysteries of a Pack of Cards," which was loaned me by an old friend who has had it in his possession for over 40 years, and which I found very interesting. It follows like this:

A private soldier by the name of Richard Lee was taken before a magistrate lately for playing cards during divine service. It appears that a sergeant commanded the soldiers at the church, and when the parson had read the prayers, he took the text. Those who had a Bible took it out, but this soldier had neither Bible nor common prayer book, but pulling out a pack of cards, he spread them before him. He just looked at one card and then at another. The sergeant of the company saw him, and said, "Richard, put up the cards; this is no place for them."

"Never mind that," said Richard.

When the service was over, the constable took Richard before the mayor. "Well," says the mayor, "what have you brought the soldier here for?" "For playing cards in church." "Well, soldier, what have you to say for yourself?" "Much, sir, I hope."

"Very good. If not, I will punish you more than man was ever punished." "I have been," said the soldier, "about six weeks on the march. I have neither Bible nor common prayer book. I have nothing but a pack of cards, and I'll satisfy your worship of the purity of my intentions," and, spreading the cards before the mayor he began with the ace: "When I see the ace, it reminds me there is but one God. When I see the deuce, it reminds me of Father and Son. When I see the trey, it reminds me of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. When I see the four spot, it reminds me of the four evangelists that preached, Matthew, Mark Luke and John. When I meet the five, it reminds me of the five wise virgins that trimmed their lamps—there were ten, but five were wise, and five were foolish and were shut out. When I see the six it reminds me, that in six days the Lord made heaven and earth. When I see the seven, it reminds me that on the seventh day He rested from the great work He had created, and hallowed it. When I see the eight, it reminds me of the eight righteous persons that were saved when God destroyed the world, viz: Noah and his wife, with three sons and their wives. When I see the nine, it reminds me of the nine lepers that were cleansed by our Saviour, there were but one of ten who never returned thanks. When I see the ten it reminds me of the ten commandments, which God handed down to Moses on tables of stone. When I see the king, it reminds me of the King of Heaven, which is God Almighty. When I see the queen, it reminds me of the queen of Sheba, who visited Solomon, for she was as wise a woman as he was a man. She brought with her 50 boys and 50 girls, all dressed in boys' apparel, for King Solomon to tell which were boys and which were girls. King Solomon sent for water for them to wash; the girls washed to the elbows and the boys to the wrists, so King Solomon told by that." "Well," said the mayor, "you have given a good description of all the cards but one." "What is that?" "The knave," said the mayor. "I will give your honor a description of that, too, if you will not be angry?" "I will not," said the mayor, "if you do not term me to be the knave." "Well," said the soldier, "the greatest knave that I know of is the constable that brought me here." "I do not know," said the mayor, "if he is the greatest knave, but I know he is the greatest fool."

"When I count how many spots in a pack of cards, I find 365, as many days as there are in a year. When I count the number of cards in a pack, I find there are 52, the number of weeks in a year, and I find four suits, the number of weeks in a month. I find there are 12 picture cards in a pack, representing the number of months in a year, and on counting the tricks, I find 13, the number of weeks in a quarter. So you see, sir, a pack of cards serves for a Bible, almanac and common prayer book."

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 89

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

SHOWS WHAT IS EXPECTED IN REVALUATION WORK

The following letter was sent by the Norwich selectmen to the companies which they thought might bid upon the work of revaluation in Norwich, showing what the selectmen expected would be done in completing the work:

Gentlemen:

The town of Norwich in a special town meeting held March 14th, 1928, passed a resolution authorizing and directing its board of selectmen to employ outside assistance to cooperate with the board of assessors in making a revaluation of the property of the town. In accordance with this vote the selectmen are now prepared to receive propositions from such firms or individuals as care to offer their services to perform this work.

A general statement of the work to be done is as follows:

To measure, appraise and describe upon suitable card records, all of the land and buildings located within the town, including all property exempt from taxation excepting exempt property of railroad, telegraph, telephone and express companies; also to list and appraise all stocks of goods and fixtures of mercantile establishments and all industrial and manufacturing plants including their machinery, fixtures and stocks of raw material and goods both finished and in process. No examination or appraisal of automobiles, motor boats, horses, cattle, house furniture, personal jewelry, cash on hand or in bank or choses in action would be required. In valuing property all circumstances tending to determine its value should be taken into consideration including the cost, age, depreciation or obsolescence, reproduction value, sale value and in the case of land and buildings rental value.

The above information should be placed upon record sheets or cards of a size and character acceptable to the board of assessors, these cards to become the property of the town. In performing the above work it would be expected that it would be done in cooperation with the board of assessors or such other person or persons as they should designate and that the said board or such designated persons should be fully instructed in all the details of said work so that the same could be carried on in the future by them. The person or corporation employed would be expected to meet with the board of assessors or board of relief at suitable times and places for the purpose of holding hearings of parties interested and explaining to them the reasons for the valuations placed upon their property and the method pursued and in case of appeals to any court of this state from any assessed value placed upon property by the board of assessors or board of relief as a result of this reassessment, the person or organization assisting would be expected to furnish any necessary or proper advice and assistance in such litigation including the service of their staff as witnesses without additional expense to this town.

The person or organization assisting will also be expected to indemnify the town from any claims for damages which might arise out of the performance of this work and to give a surety bond to the town insuring the faithful performance of the contract. Some competent person should be placed in charge of the work who should be satisfactory to the board of selectmen and to the tax commissioner of the state of Connecticut, this person to remain in charge until the work should be completed.

In addition to the above the person or organization assisting would also be desired to make and furnish suitable tax maps on a scale of 100 feet to the inch, showing all streets, highways, lots, boundaries and buildings within the town not included in the existing tax maps, which maps should conform in character, dimensions and delineations to the existing tax maps so that they may be kept and used in conjunction therewith. In case of the employment of non-expert assistants it would be expected that preference would be given to residents of this town.

The town is prepared to furnish reasonable office space for the purpose of carrying out the above work, to permit the use of its present tax maps and to cooperate in all reasonable ways.

If you would be interested in undertaking this work the board of selectmen would be pleased to hear from you and to arrange for an opportunity to meet with you in order to discuss the matter of terms and conditions more fully than is possible by letter. Any communications should be addressed to William S. Murray, first selectman, City Hall, Norwich, Connecticut.

And should be mailed in time to be received not later than April 2, 1928.

NORWICH BOOTLEGGERS FINED IN SO. WOODSTOCK

Two Norwich men, Sigamund Liskiewicz, 21, of 412 Central avenue, and Stephen Shea, 19, of 81 Oakridge street, were each fined $200 and costs and given suspended sentences of 30 days in jail by Justice of the Peace A. R. Scranton at South Woodstock Monday night. They were charged with possession of intoxicants and were caught after a wild chase from near Providence to South Woodstock.

Liskiewicz was with Joseph Neville, of Yantic, in New London on the night of Wednesday, March 15, when the two were arrested and a small quantity of liquor in hot water bottles was seized. Both were bound over for trial at the May term of the federal court, Neville giving $2,000 and Liskiewicz $1,500 for appearance.

The Providence Journal of Tuesday gave the following account of the chase and capture:

Two youths in a high-powered touring car loaded with moonshine were captured by a Rhode Island state trooper last night at South Woodstock, Conn., after a chase of more than 40 miles at speed which at times went to 70 miles an hour. The race ended only when the gasoline tank of the fugitives, punctured by a bullet from the trooper's gun, was emptied and the engine of the fleeting car went dead.

Repeatedly during the flight over the Putnam pike, the trooper drew alongside the fugitives machine, but was unable to ston the men. The operator of the other car, warned by his companion, forced the trooper to the ditch and sped on toward Connecticut.

The pair captured were Sigamund Liskiewicz, 21, of 402 Central avenue, and Steven Shea, 19, of 81 Oakridge avenue, both of Norwich, Conn.

The pursuit began when the trooper attached to the Lime Rock barracks and on duty at Mineral Spring avenue and Charles street, Marieville, became suspicious of the large touring car as it passed. He ordered the operator to stop, but the latter at once opened up his trottle and sped toward Centredale.

At full speed the race swept over Mineral Spring avenue to Centredale and then out over the Putnam pike through Greenville, Chepachet and the hills of the northeastern part of the state to the Connecticut line.

At one point a five-gallon can of the illicit cargo of the touring car fell or was thrown from the machine. At another point a one-gallon can of moonshine fell to the road as the car careened over the highway.

The trooper emptied his gun in the direction of the fleeing car, aiming at the gasoline tank and the rear tires. No effect was apparent for miles, though the gasoline tank had been punctured by the shots.

While the operator of the fugitive machine gave his full attention to the driving of th car, at times speeding over the road at more than 70 miles an hour, his companion kept looking back at the trooper and watching his attempts to overhaul the touring car.

Whenever the trooper was able to put on enough speed to draw alongside the car, the watcher, Shea, kept his companion informed and the car swerved over, forcing the trooper to the ditch. Undaunted, the trooper repeatedly attempted to overhaul the other machine, but without success.

The race passed over the state line and through the city of Putnam, with no sign of a let-up in the flight. But at South Woodstock, more than 40 miles from Marieville, where the pursuit began, the engine of the fleeing car failed and the two fugitives surrendered without resistance.

Constable J. A. Butts of South Woodstock assisted the trooper in handling the men after their arrest and until the arraignment had been completed.

The touring car was found to be filled with cans of moonshine, 35 gallons remaining in addition to the six gallons which had been dropped from the car during the pursuit.

The board meeting was adjourned at 2 o'clock for luncheon at the hospital.

Besides the appointment of the superintendent other minor matters of business were transacted at the meeting. The salary attaching to the position is $6,000, having been raised from $5,000 during the World war period.

Present at the meeting were the following trustees: Henry H. Gallup, Judge Arthur F. Libby, Dr. J. J. Donohue, Maj. Charles A. Hagberg, Norwich; Dr. G. E. Evans of New Haven, T. W. Bryant, Torrington, P. W. Huxford, Stamford, Dr. F. E. Wilcox, Willimantic and Charles L. Tolles, Hartford.

He obtained his medical education at Hahnemann medical college, Philadelphia, graduating there in 1911. He then became a member of the staff of the state hospital at Middletown, N. Y., continuing there from 1911 to 1916. This is an institution similar to the Norwich hospital and having about the same number of patients. In 1916 he went to southern California state hospital at Tatton, Cal. an institution with 2,800 patients, which is larger than the Norwich hospital.

ADOLPH DESJARDIN IS APPOINTED PUTNAM ALDERMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 3—The council meeting was called to order at 7.30 o'clock with Mayor Richard presiding. Roll was called with a quorum present. Minutes of the previous meeting were accepted. Chairman of the democratic city committee Frank Dumas presented the name of Adolph DesJardin of Gilman street, Putnam, to succeed former Alderman Willis B. Carroll, resigned, as alderman from Ward four. The new member was voted in unanimously by the council. He is former alderman from ward four, serving in the 1921 administration. He was sworn into office by Mayor Richard and assumed his new duties at once.

Various petitions were read and granted by the council. W. R. Copeland a member of the state board of water commissioners, was present and informed the council that the state commission by an act of the legislature was working with the city to take the sewerage out of the streams by the use of filtration beds. He spoke of other Connecticut cities that were cooperating with the commission in taking the sewerage from the rivers by the use of these beds. Mr. Copeland stated that he had interviewed City Engineer Perry and that he found Putnam to be in a fortunate position in owning land at the south end of the city that could be used for these purposes. Mr. Copeland estimated that the cost would be between $100,000 and $200,000 depending upon the size of the plants installed by the city. The state commission recommended that a sum be appropriated for City Engineer Perry to make a survey of the facilities and submit to the council the necessary estimation needed. Mr. Copeland told the council that work in the surrounding towns would be completed in about five years, and that Putnam would have to begin operations immediately to be in harmony with other cities and with the commission's orders. He went on explaining what legal procedure would be taken if the city refused to cooperate. Mayor Richard stated that he was aware of the situation and would heartily cooperate with any recommendations of the state commission.

BABE RUTH WALLOPS HIS FIRST HOMER OF THE YEAR BUT AGAIN YANKS LOSE

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 3—(AP)—The mighty Babe Ruth planted his first homer of the spring training period today, thereby breaking the spell that had silenced his bat in the first 23 games of the Yankees' exhibition jaunt through the south.

The Yanks lost the contest, a 12-inning affair, to the Chattanooga Lookouts, but it didn't matter to the Bluegrass saw that the Babe has produced one of his famous long distance smashes.

Pitcher Bob Wilson was the victim of the Bambino's drive in the 11th inning which broke a 1-all count and gave the New Yorkers a leeway of one run. The Lookouts levelled the score with a one-run rally in their half of the inning and in the 12th, pushed another run over the plate for a 3 to 2 decision.

On his first time up in the opening frame, Ruth popped out. He grounded out in the third inning. In the sixth and eighth innings, Ruth walked.

Lou Gehrig, who has yet to crack out a homer in the pre-season hostilities, connected for one single in five times at bat.

White Sox 19, Memphis 11

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 3—(AP)—Base hits seemed almost as numerous as spectators in a wild exhibition game which the Chicago White Sox won over Memphis, 19 to 11, today.

Clancy of the White Sox had a perfect day at bat, bagging two singles and two doubles in four attempts.

REDS NOSE OUT WIN OVER LOUISVILLE CLUB

COHEN AND TERRY HELP HENRY TO WIN OVER SENATORS

ATLANTA, Ga., April 3—(AP)—Supported by some heavy artillery work by Andy Cohen and Bill Terry, Dutch Henry pitched his way to an 8 to 2 victory over the Washington Senators today, giving John McGraw's New York Giants a three to one advantage in their series with the Senators.

Two triples and a double were made by Terry and two triples and a single by Cohen. "Lefty" O'Doul kicked in with a trio of singles. Hayes got three safeties, one of them a double, for the Senators.

Brooklyn 9, Macon 3

MACON, Ga., April 3—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers took Macon's Sally league club into camp today, 9 to 3, and in doing so gave an impressive demonstration of how to score a flock of runs without going to the trouble of making many hits.

The Dodgers started out right foot foremost by tallying three times in the first inning on one hit, an error and a walk. One hit gave them another run in the fifth. Runs number five, six and seven came across in the sixth, again with only one safe hit. The last two tallies were scored on two hits and two errors by Macon.

Following Brooklyn's lead, Macon scored one of their runs off Ehrhardt in the seventh without a safe hit. A two base muff by Del Bissonette was the chief factor in this score.

Score:

GARDNER AND WANTINNEN REACH GLENRIO TOGETHER

GLENRIO, N. M., April 3—(AP)—Ed Gardner, Seattle Negro, and Olli Wantinnen, New York, romped over the 44.1 miles from Tucumcari and reached the thirty-first control of the transcontinental marathon here today in a tie. Their time was six hours, eight minutes and fifteen seconds.

Arne Suominen of Detroit bolstered his lead on first place in elapsed time since the start at Los Angeles by finishing third on today's lap in 6:21:35. His total elapsed time is 134:10:20.

Gardner's time for the 1114.7 miles from Los Angeles is 210:17:15; Wantinnen's 228:03:47.

The field was reduced to 31 today when Carl Swensen of Los Angeles and Mike Gallena of Palm Beach, Fla., dropped out. Swensen suffered stomach trouble and Gallena's withdrawal was due to a general breakdown.

SON OF JOHN WINS OPENING DAY FEATURE AT BOWIE TRACK

HARVARD RIDERS WIN CLASS B INDOOR POLO TITLE

NEW YORK, April 3—(AP)—Harvard polo players won the championship of the Class B division of the national indoor polo tournament tonight by defeating the 101st Cavalry of Brooklyn in the final, 11 goals to 4 1-2.

BRISTOL WINS ITS GAME AT CHICAGO TOURNEY

CHICAGO, April 3—(AP)—A floating band of mountaineers from Carr Creek, Kentucky, a settlement so small that it isn't even on the map rose from athletic obscurity to prominence at the University of Chicago's tenth annual national interscholastic basketball tournament today.

Wearing their first basketball suits, this team, which learned all it knows of the game alone and on a vacant lot, overwhelmed a tournament favorite, the Albuquerque, New Mexico, Indians, 32 to 16, in the first round of tournament play.

A curly-headed youngster, Shelby Stampor, led the mountaineers' attack, bagging nine field goals from all sections of the floor. Stampor was the only member of the Kentucky quintet who didn't seem stage struck.

Chicago is the farthest any of the Carr Creek players have been from home and the large crowd awed them. Kensel of the Indians starred for his team.

Basketball as played in the middlewest proved superior over the type played in the east in today's games. Three fives from the midwest eliminated a trio of eastern entries in four intersectional games. Only one Atlantic seaboard team, Bristol, Conn., was able to hang up a victory. In a brilliant last quarter finish, the easterners eliminated Miami, Arizona, 26 to 21.

Pine Bluff, Ark., rolled up the high score of the day to put out Berlin, New Hampshire, 37 to 10. The Razorbacks were in rare form and broke through the New Hampshire offense almost at will relying on their height to score many of their points.

Winfield, Kansas, and Tulsa, Okla., champions of their respective states, indicated that they would make a strong bid for title honors when they easily defeated their opponents. The two teams meet tomorrow at 2 p. m. in their second round game.

The Jayhawkers put up a great defense after the first quarter to defeat Iron Mountain, Mich., 34 to 18. The boys from Michigan scored only four points after the first period. Tulsa, with a lank team rode rough shod over Moorhead, Minn., to win, 25 to 11. Fort Collins, Colo., eliminated the eastern entry from Poughkeepsie, New York's leading basketball team, while Canton, Ill., state champions took a slow and uninteresting game from Wheeling, W. Va., 23 to 19.

TUNNEY-HEENEY AFFAIR TO BE CLEARED BY SATURDAY

NEW YORK, April 3—(AP)— Gene Tunney made his gesture of peace with the New York state athletic commission today less than an hour after the "solemn solons" had placed the stamp of disapproving silence on the heavyweight champions scheduled tussle with Tom Heeney in July.

Perhaps annoyed by Tunney's lese majeste in neglecting to answer a "request" that he formally name a challenger from the commission list, the boxing fathers met Tex Rickard's formal announcement of the Heeney match with corrugated brows and silence. They withheld the sanction Jess McMahon, Rickard's matchmaker confidently had expected as the first move toward selection of New York as the site of the title bout.

The commission, Chairman James A. Farley, was willing to admit it was in a discomfiting situation.

But Tunney apparently solved the problem himself within an hour after the commission dissolved for the day by informing the fathers, in a conciliatory through chiding message from Miami Beach, that he accepted the challenge of Heeney. This paves the way for the situation to be cleared up at the next meeting of the board Saturday, although the champion still has to answer the commission edict that he flight twice a year, a thing he has advocated himself last fall.

In his telegram the titleholder said he had received no word from the commission direct, but that newspaper reports, "which of course I did not accept as accurate" had informed him that inelegibility would be the penalty of failure to accept a commission challenger by April 3.

The commission, he said, knew him well enough to understand that the detail of selecting opponents always was left to the promoter.

"Tex Rickard," he said, "has named Tom Heeney as my opponent because he believes him the outstanding and most formidable challenger. My signature to box any opponent was placed on a contract months ago and the only reason why an opponent was not named at that time was that Tex Rickard, with whom I signed, believed there was no logical one at the time."

HARVARD COACHES BEAT ARMY SECTION ON GRID

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 3—(AP)—The Harvard coaches football team defeated the Army section of the Crimson's spring training squad, 7 to 0, here today in a practice game which lasted four seven minute periods. Joe Crosby, 1927 player and members of the coaches' backfield scored on a line plunge through center from the three yard line and a goal was kicked for the extra point.

The coaches later lined up against the Navy squad for a game of seven minute periods but neither team was able to score. Then the Army and Navy clashed for a 15 minute scrimmage without scoring.

The coaches lined up with Bradford and O'Brien, on the ends; Gillis and Hubbard, tackles; Donovan and Cleary, guards; Esky Clark, center; Eddie Casey, quarterback; Maddy Sayles and Joe Crosby, halfbacks; Head Coach Arnold Horween, fullback.

GLENNA COLLETT ENTERS SEMI-FINALS AT PINEHURST

PINEHURST, N. C., April 3—(AP)—Glenna Collett, Providence, R. I., gained the semi-final round in the women's north and south championship with a seven and six victory over Beatrice Gottlieb, New York.

Tomorrow in the round before the final, the former national women's champion will oppose Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City. Mrs. Hill advanced by putting out Helen Payson, Portland, Me., the Canadian women's champion, five and three.

INTEREST RISES IN WILLIMANTIC GAMES

Interest in the basketball games at Willimantic next Wednesday night, April 11, took a big jump during the last few days and a large crowd is now practically assured. The All-Hellers, five brothers, of Willimantic, will play the Hartford Yankees in the main game while the Academy and Windham High Independents will clash in the other tilt on the evening's program.

College Baseball

HIGH SCHOOL PROSPECTS

Putnam High

Coach Noyes has a lively bunch of baseball players working out at this year's team than that of many previous years.

Putnam will be content to beat its valley rivals, Killingly and Plainfield and also to throw in a few wins over some of the smaller Massachusetts and northeastern Connecticut clubs. The team is not expecting anything wonderful to be accomplished—just an average good season is expected. Loss of prominent batterymen is expected to hurt.

A couple of promising lower classmen are making strong bids for positions and if they come through then Putnam may do even better than expected. This team ought to be able to hold its own in her class and should have a fairly easy time against any club a bit weaker for once victory is scented at Putnam her many supporters sure do feel proud of their team.

The first game does not come until the middle of the month so that the daily workouts still go on with little of an intensive nature.

'BOUT SPORTS

Hank Morin is probably one of the best known baseball personages in the city. Hank now is ready to add another season to his already long list with the indicator and he expects it to be one of his best.

Looking over the Academy team yesterday afternoon, the well-known local umpire declares that they should be practically as good as last year. Hank was especially well pleased with the first base prospects, declaring that in this department the locals are probably as strong as any club in the state. The battery also is considered very powerful by the arbiter.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, April 3—(AP)—Two of the greatest southpaws in the game probably will have a lot to say about the outcome of this year's American league pennant race.

Herb Pennock of the Yankees, who raises foxes in the winter and imitates one on the mound in the summer, carries a good deal of Yankee responsibility in his slight frame and crafty left arm. The champions are as much concerned about how many games Herb will hurl as they are about how many balls Ruth and Gehrig will put out of the park.

No less a factor in the pennant hopes of the Athletics is the smoke that emanantes from the southpaw of Robert Moses Grove.

"Grove is ready," says Connie Mack, and he might add: "For plenty of work." Lefty thrives on action, regular or relief duty, while Pennock, a veteran of 15 campaigns, must conserve his stuff and get plenty of rest. The Yankee ace will be lucky if he pitches 25 complete games but Grove probably will be seen in twice as many. He worked part or full time in 51 last year.

Much Expected From Grove This Year

Grove came to the majors with a $100,000 price tag attached to him. It took two years for him to overcome this handicap and the fans to forget it. He struck his stride last season and this year Mack expects him to burn up the league. Robert has the stuff to do it. His natural skill and stamina, blended with Pennock's craft and coolness under fire, would make the greatest left-handed combination the game has ever known.

Grove will pitch the opener against the world's champions at Philadelphia next Wednesday and as often thereafter as he is called on.

"Grove's chief trouble," Mack said one day last year, "is a tendency to bear down too much. He is too anxious to mow 'em down, but experience will teach him to conserve his stuff more."

Pennock, one of the greatest "money-pitchers" in the game, is facing the end of the trail but he is still one of the king-pins of the Yankee staff. Without him the champions would be seriously handicapped this year, especially as Shocker, Shawkey and Reuther all are missing from the ranks of the veterans.

"The whole team has more confidence when Herb is there," Ruth once said." We know he isn't going to get rattled, he inspires the rest of the boys."

Cuyler-Hornsby Cases Similar

The indirect consequences of too much conversation have "made" two of the National league clubs this year, in the opinions of well-qualified observers.

These consequences are Kiki Cuyler, now outfielding with all his energetic skill for the Chicago Cubs, and Rogers Hornsby, who has put new life into the Boston Braves.

It seems pretty well established now that both talked too much about their former club presidents. Kiki warmed the Pirate bench most of last season because he was understood to have made some disappearing reference about Barney Dreyfuss, not because he objected to batting second in the lineup. Hornsby, the boys now believe, parted company with the Giants over differences with President Stoneham and not to "avoid the possibilities of conflict in management."

Joe McCarthy, Cub pilot, declared Cuyler would "make" his club at the time he put through the deal for the fleet outfielder. He has seen no reason to change his mind since the agile Kiki has been performing sensationally in spring training. Cuyler's bat has been busiest in helping the Cubs trim the Pirates five straight.

Cuyler and Waners For Batting Crown

Cuyler and his two former teammates, the famous Waner Brothers, likely will be the chief contenders for this year's National league batting honors. Hornsby may also take a hand but it is doubtful that Rogers ever will strike the dazzling stride he maintained up to two years ago. He is no longer a youngster while Lloyd Waner is only 23, Paul Waner 25 and Cuyler 29. These three should have a merry battle, anyway, for all-around honors. All are fast and versatile.

ENTHUSIASM NOTED AT Y BASEBALL MEETING

That the Y intends to present a strong team this year for any local league that may be formed is the only inference that can be taken from the meeting last night when several members of last year's squad with a few newcomers reported in high spirits. Little of any definite nature was accomplished although it was reported that battery practice will be started soon at the Y grounds.

This is another of the recent movements of local nines desirous of getting an early start on a City or Industrial league this year.

RANGERS AND MAROONS ENTER FINALS FOR STANLEY CUP BY CLOSE WINS

MONTREAL, April 3—(AP)—The Montreal Maroons conquered the Montreal Canadiens by 1 goal to 0 in an overtime contest tonight for the championship of the international group of the National Hockey league. As the Rangers whipped Boston at the Hub in the American final, the Rangers and Maroons will meet in the grand final for the Stanley cup.

Rangers 4, Bruins 1

BOSTON, April 3—(AP)—The New York Rangers won the right to enter the Stanley cup finals when they defeated the Boston Bruins here tonight 4 to 1, clinching the two game series for the leadership of the American section of the National Hockey league by the total score of 5 to 2. The first game, played in New York Sunday night, ended in a 1 to 1 tie.

"MEDDIE" DUGAS FIRST BASE CANDIDATE AT PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 3—The B. H. Silk Sox, representing the Belding Hemingway company of Putnam have organized their baseball team for the coming season at the call of the 1927 manager Francis H. Murphy, with one of the most promising lines of talent put up in years. Much interest is in evidence at the appointment of Jimmy Williamson, former twirler on the New London Kacey team as a member of the Silk Sox nine. Williamson assumes his position with the best wishes of the Putnam fans.

A heavyweight battery combination in Tom Dwyer, 225 pound Brockton southpaw and "Cooler" Nelson, 198 pounds, lately of the Virginia state circuit, while three left-handed outfielders, all weighing over 180 in "Rip" Nelson, Lefty Touchette and Fat Murphy should bring home the slugging honors for the Thread men. Lefty (Meddie) Dugas, ex-State Hospital southpaw seems to be in line for first base, with Caffery, speedy all round star of the 1927 games looms as the logical keystone guardian. Leo Carey and Mike Cotter, Pomfret flash, are exchanging for shortstop, while Tatro seems to be reasonably sure of third base.

Home games will be played on Sundays with outside tilts for Saturdays and holidays. Exchanges of this sort are now being sought by Manager F. H. Murphy of the Belding Hemingway company only with the fastest Connecticut outfits.

CICCONE BEATS BATTALINO; VERDICT IS UNPOPULAR

NEW HAVEN, April 3—(b)—Johnny Ciccone of this city, was given the referee's decision over Bat Battalino, of Hartford, in the main go of a professional boxing card at the Arena tonight. The decision was unpopular with the crowd and the fans seemed to think that Battalino's great show in the final rounds if nothing else should have given him the decision.

Referee Watson of Hartford, displayed his card after the bout and the figures showed Battalino the winner of the bout but Watson declared that he intended to give Ciconne the decision and the figures were in error. Battalino's total was 23 1-2 points and Ciccone's 22 1-2 according to the referee's figures.

Commissioner Thomas A. Donohue who was present at the bout said that as long as Watson meant to give the bout to Ciccone, the decision would be unchanged despite the totals on the score card.

SANDWINA UNDER SIX-MONTH BAN IN MASS. RINGS

BOSTON, April 3—(AP)—Ted Sandwina, German heavyweight, was suspended for six months today by the Massachusetts boxing commission for fouling Roberto Roberti last night in the Argonne A. A.'s main bout. The commission found that Sandwina struck the Italian low to save himself from being knocked out.

When Joe O'Connor, the referee, awarded Roberti the decision, he ordered the club promoter to hold up Sandwina's share of the purse.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Plainfield Buddies and Putnam Five Aces ought to furnish a lively preliminary tonight to the Pros-Hartford Knights of Lithuania game at the Plainfield Community house.

Incidentally, the Hartford team won the Farmington Valley title Monday night, beating Simsbury in the second game of a playoff series.

The C. F. C. and Stonington Iron Men sure do put up some exciting basketball games.

The bureau of appointments of Yale university, announced the selection of Manasses J. Grove, '29, of Frederick, Md., as the recipient of the Princeton club scholarship for next year, and Arthur E. Palmer, Jr., '30, of Madison, Wis., as the recipient of the George Augustus Adee scholarship.

Wins International Mile Race

HENRY MILLER, WASH. D.C.

Lloyd Hahn, star of the Boston Athletic Association, who recently won the "mile of the century," beating Ray Conger, of the Illinois Athletic Club, and the famous German champion, Dr. Otto Peltzer. Hahn set the pace from start to finish. His time was 4 minutes, 13 seconds, one second short of the world's indoor record of 4.12 set in 1925, by Nurmi, and equaled the same season by Joie Ray.

LACROIX N. F. A. BASKETBALL CAPTAIN

Aime LaCroix, guard, was elected captain of the 1928-29 Academy basketball team Tuesday at a meeting of the lettermen at school.

This is LaCroix's second captaincy in as many elections recently. He was named '28 football leader at the conclusion of the grid season and he is the first player to hold these two captaincies in the same school year.

LaCroix is one of the Academy's best all-round athletes. Buck, as he is known to Red and White followers, has been a regular of the court squad for the two years that the sport has been at the local institution; he has earned two letters in football while he is now a strong candidate for an infield position on the state championship baseball team this season. He was a member of the diamond squad last year. He also participated in track in his first year at the school.

MORIN-MURPHY TO HANDLE ACADEMY BASEBALL GAMES

Announcement was made Tuesday that Hank Morin and Johnny Murphy would again handle the Academy's home games. This includes 12 of the 17 games on the campus. Conn. Aggie officials will handle the three league tilts and the Windham game while officials are imported from Springfield for the Bulkeley classic.

Morin and Murphy have given satisfaction in their appearances at the Red and White's ball field and it now looks like the officiating is again in safe hands.

Tuesday, the squad had much the same sort of work as on Monday with a practice game predominating. A chill wind came during the latter part of the workout and forced an early closing. There will be drills today and tomorrow while Friday will be left open. Stiff practice is expected all next week.

The Plainfield Pros lineup against the Hartford Knights of Lithuania tonight at the Plainfield Community in what is promised as one of the most interesting games of the season. The visitors come with an enviable record, having won 28 out of 37 games, and many victories were scored over leading teams of Connecticut and Massachusetts.

The Insurance City team is composed of former high school and college stars who are well known about the state and who bid fair to make the Plainfield outfit travel hard throughout. Only recently the Knights beat the Danielson Town team, 34 to 17.

Both clubs will use their strongest lineups. Hartford will have Urban, Shages and Bennett as reserve material while Plainfield will have Benson and Normandin.

In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies will meet the Five Aces of Putnam champions of the Quinebaug Valley league, in what is advertised as for the eastern Connecticut semi-pro title.

NOVOGROSKI HEARING HELD BY PROV. ENGINEERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 3—There was an attendance of nearly 200 Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 at the Liberty street courthouse for the hearing called by S. A. Cheney, colonel corps of engineers Providence division. The hearing was on the petition of Max Novogroski, of Westerly, for the construction of a business block extending from the sea wall on the Connecticut shore of the Pawcatuck river to nearly mid-stream on the south side of the Pawcatuck river bridge. The building would be located on four columns each 2.5 feet in diameter, resting in the river bed and the bottom of the building would be 10 feet one inch above high water.

In the absence of Colonel Cheney, E. W. Crawley, civil engineer, U. S. Engineers at Providence office, presided. At the conclusion of the hearing, about 3:30 o'clock, Engineer Crawley stated that it would be at least a month before the government's answer was announced. Engineer Crawley asked for a statement from Max Novogroski or his representative. Mr. Novogroski stated that the two new piers in the river were to be removed and the building erected out over land adjoining lands of Henry Walton on West Broad street; the plan had the approval of the Pawcatuck Board of Trade. He said his architect and engineer, Edward G. Chapin, of Worcester, Mass., was present and would explain plans.

Engineer A. L. Leon, of Westerly highway commission, asked Mr. Novogroski about the number of caissons at present in the Pawcatuck river at this point where floating tree trunks had collected since the November freshet. He understood that there were 12 under the present Pawcatuck river bridge and 20 under Mr. Novogroski's property.

Town Solicitor John Ferguson asked Mr. Novogroski if he had any piers renewed or reconstructed since 1922 and declared no authority had been granted by the U. S. war department. Karl G. Stillman, of Pawcatuck, asked Mr. Ferguson how the condition was affected by the proposition of the Novogroski building and L. C. Purtill, former Pawcatuck selectman, asked Mr. Ferguson relative to a Westerly brook toppling a wall in the recent freshet.

George R. McKenna, chairman of Pawcatuck zoning commission, presented a resolution from that body signed by himself and John F. Gallagher, and although not signed by the other member, William Crandall, he favored the building. Engineer Crawley said he would prefer to hear all objectors first. Engineer Leon presented seven measures in which the Westerly highway commission represented themselves as opposed.

Richard J. Rooney, resident of Canal street, Westerly, presented a petition against the building signed by 125 citizens, residents and taxpayers. He spoke of his 25 years of opposition to obstructions in the Pawcatuck river and of the loss and suffering in Stillmanville and Varoetyville when the river was in flood.

Engineer Crawley reported written petitions against the granting of the permit by Edward M. Burke for Addie G. Stillman, Edwin B. Stillman and Lois Stillman, owners of the Stillman Block on High street, Westerly, because of the fire hazard; C. W. Campbell Grain Co., of Pawcatuck, with river frontage; John O. Mills, for himself, proprietor of a furniture store in Westerly and Pawcatuck. Attorney John J. Dunn handed in a petition with 15 objectors, owners of neighboring and adjoining property.

In favor of the petition, Attorney George R. McKenna made a plea.

Among others who spoke in favor of the permit being granted Architect Edward G. Chapin, of Worcester, described a two-story block with stores and offices on the second floor, two feet narrower than the present building in the river and costing $75,000 or $80,000.

Frank L. Furness, president of the Pawcatuck Board of Trade, described the present building as an eyesore, also the filling of the river bed at the plant of the Westerly Textile company on the east side of the river. Henry M. Mallon, who had worked on the mill property on the east side of the river, told of the encroachment. Albert G. Martin favored the increased taxes which a large business block would bring the village of Pawcatuck. Henry Stahle recommended the scooping out of the channel on the Westerly side of the river to make the water flow faster, if the town of Westerly wanted the water to flow freer. Former Selectman L. C. Purtill spoke of the granting of land by Mr. Novogroski for the widening of West Broad street; George R. McKenna stated that Mr. Novogroski had acted upon the advice of counsel when he had proceeded with his building. Selectman John Fribance stated that the Stonington selectmen continued not opposed to the granting of the permit. F. M. Robinson declared that a request for a widened Pawcatuck river bridge would be necessary, unless the railroad underpass was widened.

In rebuttal, the speakers were R. J. Rooney, James Crowley, Harvey C. Perry and Walter F. Thorp.

FIRE AT L. E. BARBOUR'S STARTS NEAR CHIMNEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 3—Fire Chief George E. Egger, of Westerly, and former New London Fire Chief Rose were viewing the progress being made on the Westerly Central fire station about 11:30 a. m. today when an alarm was sounded from Box No. 35, corner of School and George streets. The chiefs went to Main street and were soon on the way to the fire with the Ahrens-Fox and Seagraves pumpers and Alert Hook and Ladder truck. Flames were breaking from the shingled roof at the rear of the two-apartment residence, 33 School street, owned by Louis E. Barbour, an occupant of the first floor, with Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Van Allen on the second. Ladders were taken to the roof and the flames drowned out at close range, while tank streams were played on the under side of the roof from the attic. Before the fire was out the roof was burned through and fire had spread to the under side of the cupola roof. Volunteers carried out to the garage in the rear, antique furniture and valuable furnishings, and much was spread in front rooms under coverings. The fire was discovered at the house by Mrs. Barbour's maid, Miss Mary McGovern, and from the outside the fire was seen by Mrs. Sarah A. Williams, a neighbor, who was unable to rouse anyone to give an alarm. A telephone call was sent to Mr. Barbour at his store by his wife and on his arrival home he directed salvaging operations. The volume of water entered the house from the wrecked roof, filled partitions and flooded the hardwood floors. The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is thought to have started near a chimney and spread out under the attic roof. The damage by fire, smoke and water will amount to several thousand dollars.

At the April session of Westerly town council, the re-appointment of Russell L. Slocum as special dog officer was made. The council approved the following changes to the voting list to be used at the special financial town meeting Thursday evening: Added to real estate list—Ruth M. Banana Bill's Queer Tongue Appearances sometimes deceive; Investigate ere you believe.

Banana Bill.

Scrapper the Kingbird had been telling Bobby Coon about Banana Bill the Toucan, who lives down in the Tropics. "I suppose," said Bobby, "that his bill must be very big."

"Big!" exclaimed Scrapper. "Why for his size, Banana Bill has the biggest bill of any one I know. It is so big that you wonder how he can hold his head up. It is so big that the first time you see him fly you expect to see him tumble heels over head. It doesn't seem as if he could possibly carry such a bill. But you know things are not always what they seem. He tells me that that great big bill of him isn't heavy at all. It looks heavy, but it isn't."

"I said to him one time, 'Banana Bill, it makes my neck ache just to look at you.' He gave me such a funny look of surprise. 'Why?' he asked. 'Because, said I, 'that bill of yours looks as if it must weigh almost as much as you do.' It was then that Banana Bill opened his mouth and showed me that that bill really is quite light; and it was then that I saw his queer tongue."

"I suppose," said Bobby Coon, "you are going to tell me that Banana Bill is another who has a long tongue."

"No," said Scrapper, "his tongue is no longer that his bill. In fact, it isn't quite as long as his bill. That is fairly long, but it isn't like one of those long tongues that can be run away out of the mouth. No, it isn't the length that makes his tongue queer. It's the shape of it. I have seen many kinds of tongues, but never one like the one Banana Bill has inside that big beak of his. It is like a feather."

"What's that?" exclaimed Bobby Coon.

"I said it is like a feather," replied Scrapper.

"How can a tongue be like a feather?" demanded Bobby Coon unbelievingly.

"Well, it is, and you'd say so, too if you could see it," persisted Scrapper. "It is long and narrow and thin, with a fringe all along each edge, like a feather."

"Pooh!" exclaimed Bobby Coon. "Do you expect me to believe that?"

"No, I don't expect you to believe it, but that doesn't make any difference," replied Scrapper sharply. "Banana Bill's tongue is just as I

"I said to him one time, 'Banana Bill, it makes my neck ache just to look at you" have told you, and whether you believe it or not doesn't make the teeniest, weeniest bit of difference."

"What does he use a tongue like that for?" demanded Bobby Coon.

"What do you use a tongue for?" retorted Scrapper.

"What kind of food does he eat?" Bobby asked, changing the subject somewhat.

"I've never asked him," replied Scrapper, "but I've seen him eating fruits of different kinds that grow down there in the jungle, so I take it he is a fruiteater."

"Well, this is all very interesting but you haven't told me what he looks like yet," said Bobby Coon. "I don't know how big he is, nor what those bright colors are, now whether he stays in the trees or walks on the ground."

"That's so," chuckled Scrapper Goodnaturedly. "You see I had forgotten that you never had seen Banana Bill. Everybody down there in that warm country knows him so well that I guess I have sort of expected everybody else to know him. You'll have to excuse me now, Bobby Coon. Mrs. Scrapper is calling me, and when she calls, I am just naturally obliged to go."

SENSATIONAL ADVANCE IN AIRPLANE STOCKS FEATURED THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Speculative interest in Wall street today was divided between a sensational advance in the airplane stocks and the unprecedented increase of $317,893,750 in stock exchange member loans which was announced after the market closed. Price movements in the market were generally upward, the rails giving an impressive demonstration of strength on buying influenced by the increase from $7 to $10 in the annual dividend on Atchison common and reports that eastern trunk line representatives finally had agreed upon a plan of consolidation.

Total stock sales were 3,047,900 shares, making the 18th consecutive full session that the 3,000,000 mark has been crossed.

The increase in stock exchange loans brings the total to a new big record, $4,640,174,172. Based on the weekly federal reserve loan reports, Wall street had looked for a gain of only about $150,000,000.

Wright Aeronautical was the outstanding individual feature, soaring 32 points to a new high record of 132, or nearly double the year's low. Rumors of a "technical corner" and open market buying for control accompanied the advance in this issue, which broke from 130 to 118 before its late rally to a new peak. Curtiss Aeroplane advanced more than 25 points to a new peak at 92 and then slipped back to 85. Packard, which has been expanding its airplane engine business, moved up more than 4 points to a new top at 22 1-2.

Radio and General Motors were pushed out of the spotlight by the airplane stocks, but both closed at moderate net gains. Pool activities were conducted with marked success in about a score of other issues which were lifter to new high levels, the list including American Chicle, Coca Cola, Eastman Kodak, Park & Tilford, Purity Baking B, United Paperboard and Houston Oil.

Non-ferrous metal shares gave another impressive demonstration of group strength with American Smelting, Anaconda, American Zinc and Lead preferred, Greene Cananea and International Nickel in the forefront of the advance. Rubbers turned reactionary in anticipation that something unfavorable might develop either through Premier Baldwin's announcement of the British government's rubber restriction policy tomorrow, or at Thursday's meeting of the U. S. Rubber company's directors.

The advance in rails was quite general, the average of 20 leading issues moving up more than 2 points to a new high level for the year. Texas and Pacific jumped 10 points to a new high record of 141 and gains of 2 1-2 points or more were recorded by Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, Peoria and Eastern, Reading, Wabash and Western Maryland, Pittsburgh and West Virginia ran up 10 1-2 points to 135.

Call money held at 5 per cent. All day. There was no change in time money rates.

Foreign exchanges were slightly firmer, with sterling cables quoted at $4.88 1-4.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat figures advanced 1 to 2 cents a bushel on buying influenced by reports of hot dry weather in the winter wheat area. Cotton closed 11 to 16 points lower after an early upturn. Coffee prices advanced slightly and sugar quotations held steady.

To Frank Goldstein to erect a frame garage on Huntington place, 16x20 feet.

The garage will be of frame material with cement foundation. The estimated cost by the owner is $300.

To George Lambert to erect a one-story building, 16x20 feet, of frame construction to be used as a store on Barnes street. The cost is to be $1,000.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were four sales of real estate in Norwich as compared to 18 sales for the corresponding week in 1927. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $20,980 and $28,000.

In New London there were 10 sales of real estate during the past week, a decrease of five sales from the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $61,620 and $73,300.

Building Permits

A decline in the number of building permits issued is noted when the total for the leading Connecticut building centers for the past week is compared with the comparative figures for last year. The total estimated cost of work permitted for, however, was greater during this past week. The total number of permits for the week was 342, compared with 483 for the like week a year ago. Building costs this past week were $1,411,092 and for a year ago $1,167,126.

New London

Despite any indications to the contrary, building in New London for the first quarter of 1928 has gone steadily forward and compares most favorably with the building in corresponding periods of the past few years. While in a few industrial quarters some dull weeks have existed at periods during the winter, apparently the situation is of such slight significance that it has interfered very little, if at all, with the general progress of the city, particularly if the amount of new building of all classes can be used as a criterion of steady, increasing prosperity.

While in some parts of the country new building has dropped off in the past few months, it is not so with New London or with Connecticut in general as pointed out in the national monthly building survey prepared by S. W. Straus & Co. of New York. As a matter of fact, New London and Connecticut in general has maintained an exceptionally high building level thus far this year and the outlook is most promising for the balance of the year.

Number of permits for the week, 8; estimated cost of buildings, $102,700.

BUILDING ACTIVITIES IN WESTERLY ARE INCREASING

Increased building activity has marked the close of the winter season with the advent of spring and 17 permits were issued the past week, of which six were for garages or additions to garages. Much of the construction or repair work at the present time is being carried on at the seashore beaches of Watch Hill, Pleasant View, Atlantic Beach and Weekapaug.

In Westerly the one and two-story building 32 by 45 feet, being erected on the south side of Industrial drive by Peter Nardone as a soda water plant for Charles D. Havens has been pushed along by large force of workmen and is now ready for interior finishing.

The Morrone & Castagna business block, 27-29 Canal street, in front of the Alba inn, has been so far completed and furnished that it is expected to be fully occupied and opened for business the last of the present week, the lower floor store with tile floors and windows by the building owners and the large hall on the second floor by a dance and social under the auspices of the social organization of the South County Public Service company.

At the new central fire station headquarters building on Union street the fire steel framework doors are in place and the four side red brick walls with granite first course in front below tile and white brick inside face are rising rapidly. Plumbers and electricians are busy with their installation work as the partition and side walls are being laid.

A cement basement floor has been laid in the Chester block recently built on Railroad avenue and carpenters are now busy in completing the interior work of the office rooms and lodge rooms on the second floor while one of the two stores on the ground floor is being made ready for an automobile display room.

For the last week in March Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi and Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills have issued the following zoning and building permits:

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

The chief interest 75 years ago this week centered on the election of directors and officers for the new Norwich Hotel company, and on the conventions to nominate for representatives. Interesting extracts taken in part from the files of The Norwich Evening Courier are as follows:

Tuesday, March 29, 1853—We would remind stockholders of the Norwich Hotel association that a highly important meeting is to take place tomorrow (Wednesday, the 30th), at Apollo hall. Directors of the company are to be chosen, by-laws to be adopted, etc. The hour of the meeting is 2 p. m.

The cities of Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport, Conn., are all moving to obtain a supply of "pure and wholesome water."

Mr. John Slidell of Louisiana, the new minister plenopotentiary to Central America, is own brother to Commodore Slidell Mackenzie of the Somers tragedy.

We ask the attention of the whigs of Norwich to the call in today's paper for a meeting at the town hall on Wednesday evening of this week to nominate candidates for representatives to the legislature.

Thursday, March 31, 1853—The whig meeting last night nominated, with great harmony and unanimity, Jeremiah Halsey, Esq., of this city, and Oliver Woodworth, Esq., of Greeneville, as candidates for representatives.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Fillmore, the wife of ex-President Fillmore, who died at Willard's hotel in Washington at 9 o'clock this morning.

A lump of gold has been taken at Eureka, Calif., weighing 28 pounds and worth $3,000.

The passenger car house of the New London, Willimantic and Palmer railroad, situated on what is called "The Neck," at New London, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning. Four first-class passenger cars were also destroyed and not a dollar of insurance is had on any of the property.

Saturday, April 2, 1853—William A. Buckingham, Charles Osgood, Charles Johnson, Henry B. Norton and Joel W. White were elected directors of the Norwich Hotel company at the stockholders' meeting on Wednesday last. At a subsequent meeting of the board the following day William A. Buckingham, Esq., was elected president of the company and E. H. Learned, cashier of the Uncas bank, was chosen secretary and treasurer.

Barnum is putting up a tower in the vicinity of the Crystal palace, 200 feet high, to the top of which visitors are to be lifted by a steam engine.

Among the California deaths we observe that of H. M. Bailey of Connecticut at San Francisco Feb. 14th, aged 32.

NORWICH TOWN

At Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, preached from Mark 11:9. And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord.

Edna Pierce was leader of the Christian Endeavor junior society Sunday afternoon at 3:30, when the topic used was, "What It Means to Be on Jesus' Side."

Miss Lucile Browning was in charge of the Young People's C. E. meeting Sunday evening, when the topic assigned was "What Happens When Young People Dare to Follow Christ? Luke 9:57-62, was the Scripture reference. The topics for April come under the general heading of "Daily Life Emphasis."

The Congregational prayer service Thursday evening is to be held in the church auditorium instead of the chapel. At this service there will be the celebration of the Lord's Supper, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bailey, officiating, assisted by Rev. Charles E. Reeves, who will also assist during the hour for worship.

NEW LONDON, April 8—A public hearing on the budget for the city was held in the city council chamber and was attended by about 100 citizens, besides the city council. Mayor May presided and called on City Manager Holt to explain the budget. Every appropriation was gone over in detail. Practically all the objections came to the expense to the tax collector's office. Mayor May represented that New London was paying more collective taxes than any other city in the county. He asked for a roll call vote among the operators and about 20 stood as opposing the expense of the office; about eight favored it. Director of Finance Cameron explained the workings and methods of the water department. City Manager Holt declared that H. N. Alexander, who is under contract with the city to collect the taxes, gave him positive assurance that all the back taxes would be collected, including those of 1923. He is to get a salary of $5,000 for the balance of the year and 4 1-2 per cent on all taxes collected, not to bring his salary over $6,000 for this year. There was a general discussion of the sum set up in the budget. Max Gordon, a law student, questioned the city manager pretty sharply. He said that there were two members of the city council who were delinquent in their taxes and the wife of another. He didn't mention any names.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

A terrific battle between two horses is one of the highly dramatic scenes in the colorful picturization of the Zane Grey story "Lightning," now showing at the Strand. So realistic is the combat between two stallions who are fighting for supremacy over a herd of wild horses that it is hard to have an audience believe that this scene is only acting and not a real battle. A realistic sandstorm filmed on the Mojave desert is one of the many high-lights of a picture filled with exciting moments and entertainment. The scenic locations are beautiful and the photography a delight. A picture worth seeing and should not be missed. Some of the popular stars in the cast are Johnny Ralston, Quinn Williams, Pat Harmon and Robert Fraser.

Does a woman really know when she is happy? "Slaves of Beauty," a sparkling comedy-drama, featuring Earle Fox and Olive Tell, gives an emphatic answer to this vital question. The story is by Nina Wilcox Putnam and many of the gripping scenes are laid in New York beauty parlors and in the night clubs of the Metropolis. Love interest centers about a woman who had happiness right at her elbow, but was always seeking it just around the corner. The cast includes Holmes Herbert and Sue Carroll, together with many other clever actors.

"Aesop's Fables" will chase away the gloom.

Breed Theatre

An avalanche of water, sweeping down through the valleys, and carrying death and destruction in its wake, is one of the big scenes in "Not For Publication," the FBO production heading the double feature program at the Breed theatre today and Thursday.

This scene, perhaps the most gigantic in scope the screen has ever shown, is the climax to a situation fraught with terrible drama in which the principal characters in the story deliberately destroys the highest work of his life rather than kill faith in the heart of a sister he loves. It is a situation packed with pathos and with that sort of tenseness that makes you hold your breath in anticipation of the outcome.

And this is only one of many tremendous scenes in this unusual picture. One gripping sequence follows closely on another, carrying the story along logically and at terrific speed. A delightful romance weaves back with the drama and adds in the way all screen fans like them to end.

The greater part of the screening took place in a remote section of Los Angeles county, near the famous Saw Pit dam, gigantic engineering project erected as a part of the flood control system. The dam rises in an imposing 155 feet from the winding stream bed to the crest of its huge mass. Erected at the cost of a half-million dollars, it provides a most appropriate setting for a large portion of the production.

Ralph Ince directed the picture in his usual skillful manner and also plays the principal role, giving to the character of "Big Dick" Wellman a humanness and virility which is a treat to behold. Jola Mendez, Rex Lease, Roy Laidlaw, Eugene Strong and Thomas Brower give to the other characters a realness that will make them live in your memory.

"Three's a Crowd," Harry Langdon's new laugh classic, rounds out this entertaining double feature bill for today and tomorrow.

VETERAN NEWSDEALER AT 78 IS STILL AT HIS STORE EVERY DAY

Ferdinand Nowatzky, veteran newspaper dealer in this city, reached his 78th birthday Tuesday and celebrated the day by having a turkey dinner in Hartford. As his son, Frederick F. Nowatzky, was to make a business trip to Hartford, Mr. Nowatzky accompanied him and while his son did the various business errands, he regaled himself on the turkey dinner. Tuesday night he was back at his store, 265 Main street, attending to the duties of closing up and finishing the business for the day.

Mr. Nowatzky has been a resident of Norwich since 1869, coming here from New York, where he was born. He left New York on Good Friday of that year and upon arriving here took a position as a barber in the Wauregan house shop. He followed this line of work until four years later, when he became interested in the newspaper selling business in 1873. Between 1876 and 1878 he was away from the city for two years, but upon his return he went into the newspaper selling line again. His stores have been at various times in the Richards building, Pellet building, the old car station on Franklin square, the Thayer building and his present location at 265 Main street.

Although so near 80, Mr. Nowatzky still shows much of the vigor and spirit of his earlier years, as he is up every morning in time to get to his store around 6 o'clock. He was a pioneer in the newspaper distribution business here and built up routes in Norwich, as well as delivering papers on Block Island at one time. There was a period also when he handled all the Sunday papers that came to Norwich and he has been resourceful and energetic in meeting emergencies and overcoming difficulties in securing and distributing papers.

At one time the New York Times gave him a big write-up upon his experiences as dealer and distributor of newspapers and magazines.

VOYAGEURS ATTENDED MEETING AT TAFTVILLE

The regular monthly meeting of Voiture Locale, No. 743, La Societe des 40 Hommes et Chevaux, was held at the legion meeting rooms in Taftville Friday night with Chef de Gare Warren E. Wilcox of Norwich presiding. There was an unusually large attendance and voyageurs were present from all parts of New London county. An invitation was received from Voiture No. 370 to attend a defile of La Societe at Windsor. The program of La Societe for the coming year is the furthering of the membership of the American Legion.

While the year has opened in regards to membership in the legion in a most auspicious manner, the last report from national headquarters showing an increase in membership as compared with the same date a year ago of 104,000, the various Voitures in the country are working hard to bring the membership for this year up to the million mark. Working along these lines the local Voiture has offered two prizes to be competed for by the Legionnaires of New London county.

Plans of the contest have been placed before every American Legion post in the county and it is expected that New London county will measure up to any other district in the country when the final checkup is made. After routine business was transacted the meeting adjourned to meet Friday, April 27th at the American Legion quarters in Lyme.

NEW HAVEN R. R. WILL DISPATCH BY TELEPHONE

By the end of 1929, the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad will use no other form of wire communication than the telephone for any purpose with the exception of the "printer" an instrument similar to the telephone typewriter of the Connecticut police, for use in general message service between divisional points. According to H. A. Shepard, general superintendent of electrical transmission and communication of the New Haven, train dispatching on the New Haven road for more than a year operated entirely by telephone, has been found very efficient. The New Haven is the first railroad in the United States to make exclusive use of the telephone for that purpose and to eliminate the telegraph and other forms of communication having to do with the direction and the routing of trains.

Since the New Haven is the third largest passenger carrier in the United States, extensive changes in its own system mark an important development in the whole railroading industry. The pioneering experiments of the road along this line, as in other lines, have been followed by other large railroads in the United States and abroad. Up to date, however, the New Haven has the most complete telephone system in existence and will be the first road of any considerable size in the nation to make exclusive use of the telephone and the "printer" for all wire communication purposes.

The telephone system for the dispatching of trains has proved to be very much more flexible than the telegraph and has in many cases made possible the lengthening and consolidating of dispatching districts, bringing about important economies as well as added efficiency in the operation of the road. By the beginning of 1930, all communication on the New Haven with the exception of mail will be accomplished by telephone and "printer."

April Additional Session Adjourned

Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court in this county has received directions from the chief justice to adjourn the April additional session until Friday, April 13, which is a short calendar day. Assignments had been made for the court beginning Tuesday, April 10, but this cancels them.

On Thursday evening there will be a devotional Holy Hour; on Friday the mass of the pre-sanctified. On Saturday morning before the celebration of the Eucharist there will be the blessing of the paschal candle, the Easter water and the new fire. Fire department No. 2 was called out Tuesday noon for a brush fire which endangered some poultry houses at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Davis, of Riverside Grove. Prompt action by the members of the department extinguished the blaze before much damage was done.

ASKS REAL ESTATE MEN FOR CIVIC COOPERATION

The Norwich Real Estate board, at its meeting at noon Monday, at the Wauregan hotel, had for a speaker, Secretary Walter H. Pilcher of the chamber of commerce, who spoke at length on the recent industrial survey of Norwich made by the Babson statistical organization. He asked for the cooperation on a "forward Norwich movement" which will be based on the findings of the Babson survey.

Mr. Pilcher explained at the opening of his address that he was speaking merely in his private capacity and not as an official of the chamber of commerce and he went on to speak first of a number of the advantages which Norwich enjoys which he thought should have received more attention in the Babson survey. These included the deepening of the channel in the Thames river, the fine system of highways in this section, the bus service that is linked in so well with the railway service, the new reservoir, the efficiency of the police department, the extent of the Norwich trading territory, favorable freight rates and service, and comparison of power rates.

Continuing Mr. Pilcher said:

The composition of labor is usually contained in industrial surveys as it is a quite common question for a manufacturer to ask about how many workers of each different trade are in the city and their nationality, etc. Now as to the quality of labor, New England has the best in the world and Norwich is not taking a back seat in this respect. At least four new industries have started here in the last two years and as far as I know none have left. But getting back to labor, the head of one of our industries told me the other day that one of their reasons for remaining in Norwich was because of the good labor and transportation facilities and their plant employs nearly 500 of both skilled and non-skilled labor.

Civic Spirit Alive Here

No, Mr. Babson, if I believed the civic spirit of Norwich to be dead, my job would not be worth much to me. It is only because I did believe and still do believe that the average citizen of Norwich will rally to the call of any reasonable and sound program of advancement which may be perfected that I am optimistic on the future. No, Mr. Babson, if your statements were true, you would never had a job in Norwich. There wouldn't have been public spirit enough (and I have known many towns where they couldn't) to do what we did when our business men subscribed $1,000 for an industrial survey.

It might be interesting to you fellows to know that Clark Belden, the state secretary of the Connecticut chamber, said recently to a business man: Norwich may be dead but there is more activity of a constructive character going on there now than in any other chamber of commerce in Connecticut," after which he cited several items such as our financial campaign last fall, the publication of our magazine, "Norwich Progress," our successful equitable taxation program, the industrial survey, the progress exposition, a well organized and financed Merchants and Credit Bureau, the publication of 10,000 publicity booklets containing photographs and descriptive material of Norwich.

Possibly we haven't rattled the drums and secured a horn as the Record suggests, but we at least are not marking time, gentlemen.

The civic spirit of Norwich is not dead, Mr. Abbott. It is alive and all set, ready to go, it only needs a changed attitude on the part of many of its citizens and business men. As Arthur Brown said last fall, "There is nothing wrong with Norwich except a state of mind" * * * "We have our eyes on Hollyhock Island too much."

"Why wouldn't the Babson engineer get into a sort of pessimistic frame of mind when there are so many Norwich folks who say to the newcomer: "How do you like Norwich so far" and then laugh in a sheepish manner or like they used to say to me "when you've been here a while, you'll like it better," practically assuming that, of course, I didn't like it at the start. Why not say "We have a fine town here in Norwich, Mr. Babson, and we know you will enjoy your visit with us."

But we didn't, everywhere we went we told him about our faults and now we blame the poor fellow for telling us what we told him.

Of course, the engineer's notes on Norwich were carefully gone over by Engineers in the home office at Wellesley Hills and a great deal of unessential or should we say undesirable material eliminated and as a result certain things stand out foremost—that's what was wanted.

Mr. Babson has told us in no uncertain terms some of the things we ought to do and I have no doubt will do when the proper time comes.

Constructive Recommendations

Secretary Pilcher commended as constructive suggestions the matter of revision of the city charter and the recommendation for a 12 inch pipe in Shetucket street.

Secretary Pilcher said further: There is a certain house near the center of Norwich under the roof of which there are probably thirty souls. The cellar in this house is full of rubbish and is a constant fire hazard besides being a health menace. I have heard many reasons as to why this condition is allowed to remain and why the owner is not compelled to clean it up. I have no desire to reflect unfavorably on any citizen or public official. I do not know the owner nor do I know the technicalities under the law—but gentlemen, I do know of many reasons why such a condition should be properly corrected immediately.

Complaint has been made but no action taken and apparently none will be taken, until you and I and every citizen forgets politics and for the general welfare of Norwich, demand action.

Not only the many lives in the building in question, are at stake but all of the adjoining property as well.

We are liable to overdo the popularity of our fire department. I know it is excellent and doing a fine piece of work. But I have often heard it said that just as soon as the town begins to judge the future fire losses by the past, it is about due for an awakening. Now I am not a calamity howler, but I believe that a constant, persistent and fearless fire prevention program is a necessity in any progressive city and you should give it your support.

The recommendations on our hotel facilities I believe are pretty generally recognized as correct. We are told by many hotel men that a good, first class modern fireproof hotel does not detract from hotels already in existence in a city.

I do not believe there is much doubt in the minds of the average business man or merchant in Norwich but that another hotel modern in facilities, would greatly help business conditions in Norwich. The traveling public will go out of their way for a modern hotel and the business they leave in each town is a cash business.

The Wauregan is to be recommended for the notable improvements recently made and I sincerely hope the service there will continue to improve until that subject will be less on the lips of many of our members.

On the matter of the building codes, electrical codes, etc., need I argue for their adoption? We have already had altogether too much publicity on this subject and I do not want to add to it now.

Asks for Cooperation

Finally, gentlemen, regarding the real estate situation, you will never be able in a thousand years to sell factory sites or rent vacant lofts to manufacturers until you forget your profits and realize that a new industry will bring manifold returns to Norwich in more homes, more rented apartments, an increasing growth and prosperity for us all.

There certainly is no advantage of the chamber spending time and money to have the wind taken out of their sails by inharmonious relations between real estate salesmen—that was the case in one city I know of, about 150 miles from Norwich and the chamber finally had to go into the real estate business.

I plead for your cooperation in backing up an active program, committees on which will soon be functioning. I want to enlist your unlimited and unselfish cooperation in a "Forward Norwich movement" which will be based on the findings of the Babson survey as they may be accepted or recommended by the Norwich chamber through its board of directors.

And I want to tell you that a finer group of men never served on any board in this neck of the woods or any other that I have ever seen.

You can place the utmost confidence in the leadership of men like these. I ask you to make known your willingness to back them up with your time and money so that in the end the economic life of Norwich may become properly balanced, expanded and improved.

If we all do this the expenditure in the industrial survey will be well invested and Norwich will enter a new day—a new era in Christian civic affairs. Let's get our eyes off of yesterday and believe in the live town of tomorrow. Let's call a halt in the funeral march that our worthy divine mentions and get converted, converted to the New Twentieth Century evangelism, if you please—but, oh how old, which advocates a livable, practical and possible religion. A religion that spreads itself all over and through men and women—even to the opening of their wallets for the wherewithal with which to carry on community betterment, and digging into the old sox for the money that should be out earning its living for the good of their souls. The kind of religion that enters into the living of our lives is the here and now so that they may be more abundant in every way. The kind of a man takes with him into his business as well as to his church on Sunday and practices not only because it is right but because it is profitable. Men are discovering that the church is not a close cooperation holding a mortgage on religion—as sad to state, it has been thought to be—but that it is the guardian and feeder of the community soul and the chamber of commerce—if functioning—is its strongest backer. Business must have religion and religion cannot do without business, so it stands to reason that they must meet on common ground for the mutual benefit and protection—that is the new evangelism! I want to ask you a few questions and am through:

Are you loyal to Norwich?

Do you believe in it?

Do you think your city worth while?

Have you ever given Norwich, as such, a thought?

Are you doing for or just doing your city?

Do you think your city has a soul?

Are you game to spend money on your city?

Are you acquainted with your C. of C.?

Do you understand what its work really is?

Do you know what it is doing?

Have you any use in Norwich for the slacker or chronic kicker?

Do you want your city to grow up?

It is the city with a soul that reaches the goal! Let the real estate men of Norwich all be exponents of the new religion in your humble speaker's parting message.

NEW GARDNER LAKE CAMP TO BE READY JULY 2ND

Mrs. Ida A. Davidson, who has leased Miss Margaret Fuller's property on the shore of Gardner lake and is to utilize it for a younger girls' camp this season, has given it the poetical name, "Camp Natanis," suggested by the Indian story, "Hot Suns and the Great Whiteness" by Mrs. W. Tyler Browne of Norwich. The camp comprises 65 acres, is about eight miles from Norwich and 12 from New London; consequently Mrs. Davison whose winter address is 8735 88th street, Woodhaven, L. I., is helping advertize Norwich by giving the camp address as "Norwich, Conn., Box 324."

The first party will leave New York for the camp on the morning of July 2nd. The camp season will close Aug. 30th. Gardner lake, on the shore of which the attractive bungalows of the Fuller property are situated, is about two miles long and a mile wide. Mrs. Davidson is selecting a group of camp counsellors, young college women, who will be constantly with the girls. The camp will have a resident nurse, with a physician within easy call. The lodge contains the dining hall, kitchen and store-room, a picturesque stone fireplace, etc. Tennis courts, facilities for basketball, volley ball, baseball and field sports, swimming, boating, instruction in basketry, wax work, crepe paper work, etc., regular hikes, nature study, instruction in life saving, are features of the plan for the season which Mrs. Davidson outlines. The girls are to live in bungalows which are roomy and comfortable, situated on the sloping shore, sure to prove healthy and cool. Each bungalow will be in charge of a counsellor. Mrs. Davidson says that she is to require each girl to be examined by her physician three days before coming to the camp, and immediately upon reaching camp; and daily inspections are to be insisted upon, in order to safeguard the girls in every possible way. It is her purpose, also, to request every girl to regularly attend the chapel services Sunday morning. Well trained teachers and speakers will have charge of this department of camp life.

As now arranged, the city girls coming to the lake will leave train or boat at New London, completing the trip by automobile. The girls will be accompanied to camp, also to New York on their return. Already parents of a number of the girls enrolled for the camp are inquiring regarding the auto routes to Gardner Lake, either by way of New London and the Hartford road, or by the Boston post road through Hamburg.

Mrs. Davidson is very anxious to have the nearness of the camp prove an advantage to Norwich—as it is likely to, when parents and friends of the girls begin to visit them at the lake, and incidentally come to Norwich for stays, long or short.

POETRY

If

If our path was strewn with roses
That concealed no stinging thorns,
If the hour when our joy blossomed
Saw another newly born;
If our dreams were full of beauty,
And our waking hours of peace,
Would we feel for those more lonely
Never gives their hearts release?

If our dwelling were a palace,
Where we knew no want nor care,
Where the red wine in loved chalice
Bore no bitterness, no tears,
Would our sympathies awaken,
Would our willing hands be spread
To the outcast, the forsaken,
Who have neither home nor bread?

If our salmons were the choicest,
That the ingles could afford,
If the dainties food and raiment,
Daily crowned our cottage board,
Could our cold hearts know the sorrow
Of the patient toiling poor
Who trembles lest tomorrow
Bring gaunt famine to their door?

If we knew no lacks to lament,
Disappointment, toil or care,
Would we succor him whose crosses
Are too wearisome to bear?
If we slept on silken couches,
Decked with costly gems and gold,
Would we pity him who crepe lies
By the wayside in the cold?

If the world were juster, truer,
In its censure and its praise,
If our doubts and fears were fewer,
Fewer weary nights and days,
If there were no graves holding us,
Where the loved and lost comes sleep,
No sweet memories to bind us
Would we weep with those who weep?

If our hopes were never blighted,
If our love grew ever cold,
If our strength and beauty fated
Till a hundred years were told,
Would our hearts be humbly given
To the Giver of such bliss,
Would we ever think of Heaven
As a better place than this?

—By Sarah Bolton.

At Sunset

I've seen the moon, with lifted wing—
A white hawk—over a cypress tree;
The lover's star, the bloom of Spring
And evening folded on Tennessee.

I've seen the little streams run down—
All smoke-blue, lost in fearie;
And, far, the violet mountains crown
The darkness breathing on Tennessee.

I've seen the Beautiful, so clear—
And it has gone to the heart of me—
So there'll be magic ever near
To me, remembering Tennessee.

—John Galsworthy, in "Verses New and Old."

On a high plateau in Asia Minor lie the desolate ruins of the largest city of the ancient Hittite empire, according to the report of H. H. von der Osten, of the Hittite expedition of the oriental institute, University of Chicago. The existence of a city at this remote place has long been known, but the site has hitherto been ignored by scientists. Mr. von der Osten, while excavating at a Hittite site nearby, journeyed to the plateau and surveyed the huge city area which is still outlined by broken down stone walls. The walls of the city were originally more than thirteen feet thick, he reported. The walls were strongly fortified by rounded towers set at strategic points, and on a mountain top rising on the plateau are the remains of a fortress. The city dates back more than 3,000 years. It must have been a great city at the time when Tut-ankh-amen's young widow offered her hand to a Hittite prince in a vain, desperate attempt to save her Egyptain throne.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

An exceptionally fine double feature program is the attraction for this afternoon and evening at the Palace. "The Siren" with Tom Moore and Dorothy Revier is a society drama, of card tables, ball rooms and a murder trial, with gamblers, tricksters and innocent victims enmeshed in a fabric of thrills and spectacular sequences. Barbara Braford and Robert Ellis appear in the co-feature, "Marry the Girl." The story takes up the problem of the young war widow and solves it in a novel and always interesting way. Miss Braford, whose roles have never been greater than that of the young widow in this picture, is a lovely and capable actress and second to her, in spite of the general excellence of the cast, must be placed young Freddie Burt Frederick, who plays the child-son of the young widow.

At the evening performance, $25 in gold and ten valuable presents will be given away. These presents are all well worth having; they consist of beautiful bridge lamps, clocks, bird cage and stand, sets of dishes, glassware, Rogers silver sets, etc. Gift night is becoming one of the most popular nights of the week at the Palace and capacity house is the rule.

SINCLAIR PURGE FUND MAY BE TURNED OVER TO MINERS

Senator Borah, Who is Raising the $160,000 Fund, is Acting Upon the Suggestion of Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, President of the Chicago Woman's City Club—Borah Has Communicated With a Number of the Contributors and They Were Agreeable to Such a Disposition of the Fund.

WASHINGTON, April 4—(AP)—The fund being raised by Senator Borah of Idaho, to purge the republican party of the $160,000 contribution of Continental Trading company liberty bonds made to it by Harry F. Sinclair may be turned over to the destitute Pennsylvania coal miners.

Responding to a suggestion of Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, president of the Chicago Woman's City club, the Idaho senator said he had communicated with a number of the contributors to the fund and that they were agreeable. He will try to reach all of the contributors.

Senator Borah said today that the fund now had mounted to something more than $7,000. He will continue to receive money from members of the republican party and then probably will consult with republican leaders at the Kansas City convention as to raising the remainder.

"While deeply appreciating your splendid effort to pay off a debt of dishonor which stains the garment though not the heart of the republican party," Mrs. Langworthy telegraphed to the senator, "many of us believe the money contributed should not be returned to Sinclair because the bonds he contributed did not belong to him and because he is not entitled to any restoration whatever.

"We therefore respectfully suggest that with the consent of the subscribers you turn over the fund to a worthy cause, as for example, to relieve the poverty stricken families of the Pennsylvania coal miners or to some other destitute group of the unemployed."

In his reply Senator Borah said

"Shall be glad to consult parties interested in the light of your suggestion. The situation in the coal mines is almost indescribable and if any such use to be made of the money I know of no better place to send it."

"BLACKLIST" STATEMENT BY PRESIDENT OF D. A. R.

WASHINGTON, April 4—(AP)—William Allen White's reply to his inclusion in a speakers' "blacklist" by the Massachusetts chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is looked upon as an "absolute misstatement of facts" by the organization's national president, Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau.

The Kansan's criticism of the organization was met by Mrs. Brosseau with this comment—:

"Mr. White to the contrary notwithstanding, the present administration and policies will no doubt continue."

She denied that the D. A. R. had ever "even by inference labelled the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. C. A., or the General Federation of Women's clubs as communistic." "In fact," she added, "thousands of our finest members belong to the General Federation and are active in it. I myself gave Mr. White direct assurance of this fact last summer."

Regarding Mr. White's allusion to the "five old girls of the D. A. R." being hypnotized by retired army officers and "tea gladiators," Mrs. Brosseau said:

"This is a personal matter between Mr. White and myself and I must consult him as to just what private census lists and records gave him his information as to our ages and susceptibility to hypnotism."

RELIEVED OF ANSWERING QUESTIONS OF $5,000,000

LOS ANGELES, April 4—(AP)—Joseph M. Schenck, motion picture producer today was relieved by a superior court ruling from any obligation of answering questions asked him in connection with the $5,000,000 damage suit brought against Lillian Gish, film actress by Charles Duell, producer.

Schenck had been called on by Duell's counsel to make a deposition in the case and to answer questions regarding a telegram he sent to Nathan Burkan, New York city attorney. In this Schenck stated he could aid the actress in suppressing certain disagreeable matters which were likely to appear in the case.

The producer was summoned into court several days ago on an order to show cause why he should not answer the deposition questions, with the result that the court ruled for him on the ground that he was not a party to the suit.

Duell is suing Miss Gish for alleged breach of contract as the result of her alleged leaving his screen employ to appear in films for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, also a defendant in the suit.

ASKED TO AID IN SEARCH FOR A $250,000 PEARL NECKLACE

NEW YORK, April 4—(AP)—Police here were asked tonight to aid in a search for a $250,000 pearl necklace lost on February 23 between Paris and London. A reward of $50,000 offered immediately after the loss failed to lead to recovery of the gems.

The string was sent by registered mail from the Paris office of Cartier, Inc., jewelers to its London branch but was not delivered. Scotland Yard operatives traced it to the channel boat but there lost the trail.

Police Inspector Coughlin said that if the necklace were brought to America it probably would be broken up and the gems offered for sale separately. The string was 19 inches long, consisting of 57 perfectly matched creamrose pearls, the clasp set with diamonds, the prospective purchaser was said to be an American.

AWAITING FAVORABLE WEATHER CONDITIONS

SEWARD, Alaska, April 4—(AP)—Capt. George H. Wilkins remained at his operating base at Point Barrow today awaiting favorable weather conditions for his projected 2,100 exploration flight over the arctic "blind spot" to reach his goal at Spitzbergen, on the "other side" of the globe.

Capt. Wilkins' plans were not definite but if the hop is taken tomorrow, he and Carl Ben Eielson, his Scandinavian aviator, will take off at 6 o'clock in the morning. This was the substance of a radio message from the explorer picked up by the Seward station.

Moderating weather, with the barometer dropping, was reported at Spitzbergen yesterday.

BRITISH RESTRICTION ON RUBBER TO END NOV. 1

LONDON, April 4—(AP)—The Stevenson rubber restriction scheme under which the proportion of rubber permitted to be exported from British Malaya and Ceylon at a minimum rate of duty varying with the price of crude rubber, will come to an end on Nov. 1, 1928.

Making an eagerly-awaited speech in the house of commons, Premier Baldwin announced that all restrictions on rubber would be removed on that date. Meanwhile the existing restriction scheme will be continued unaltered.

The premier's announcement fell like a bombshell on the rubber exchange in Mincing Lane which experienced the most excited afternoon in many years. Hundreds of dealers assembled in Mincing Lane to await the announcement which would enable them to decide their future policy regarding sales and purchases.

SINCLAIR TRIAL GOES OVER UNTIL NEXT MONDAY

WASHINGTON, April 4—(AP)—Postponement until next Monday of the opening of the criminal conspiracy trial of Harry F. Sinclair growing out of the Teapot Dome lease was granted today by Justice Jennings Bailey in the District of Columbia supreme court.

The delay was on motion of attorneys for the defense and, unopposed by special government oil counsel, was allowed primarily to enable the wealthy oil operator's lawyers to study the deposition made last week at El Paso by Albert B. Fall, a co-defendant with Sinclair at the mistrial last autumn. Fall's case has been postponed indefinitely because of the condition of his health.

A special train carrying doctors, nurses and supplies was dispatched from Fayetteville.

The boy, son of Mrs. Marion Spears, was killed instantly when the wind flattened the Spears' home. Mrs. Spears, 50, was seriously injured.

Mrs. Mary Paine and Miss Ruth Kerr were reported probably fatally injured.

Many homes in the town were said to have been destroyed.

These other stations are at New York, Boston, Cleveland, Atlanta, St. Louis, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The pictures were transmitted at the rate of seven minutes for each foot and a half of film, the 10 foot strip, with some intermission between pieces, being sent in something less than two hours.

COMPLEMENTARY ELECTIONS ORDERED FOR BUENOS AIRES

BUENOS AIRES, April 4—(AP)—Complementary elections have been ordered for Buenos Aires and a majority of the provinces throughout the republic because of irregularities in the voting last Sunday. This will further delay knowledge of the outcome of the presidential election and the official result probably will not be known until the end of April. The complementary elections will be held here on April 15.

Thus far only one province, Tucuman, has counted its ballots. The ticket headed by Hipolito Yrigoyen received a big majority in that province.

NO CLUE TO ABDUCTORS OF LOS ANGELES BOY

LOS ANGELES, April 4—(AP)—Missing for more than three weeks since he was kidnaped from his home, Walter Collins, ten-year-old boy, was the object of a widespread search today by police who are in doubt as to the youth's fate.

With no clue to the abductors, investigators were inclined to believe the stealing of the boy was an act of revenge. This theory was based on rather vague clues gleaned from a personal letter written to the boy's mother by her husband, Walter J. S. Collins, a convict in Folsom prison.

Police are attempting to locate an automobile in which a filling station employe reported he saw the body of a boy last Sunday night. The employe, Richard Strothers, said the car passed by with the body wrapped in newspapers, with the exception of the head. He partly identified the victim as the Collins boy from a photograph.

Mrs. Christine Collins, the mother, said she had not received any letters demanding ransom.

13-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED HIS PARENTS AND SELF

NEWARK, N. Y., April 4—(AP)—Jackson Warren, 13, shot his parents to death as they lay in bed last Wednesday morning and later—at least two hours—shot himself, according to a report made public tonight by Detective Captain John P. McDonald of the Rochester police.

The report, addressed to the mayor of Newark says "our investigation shows no evidence pointing to an outsider as having a part in this distressing occurrence," and "it would seem unlikely that an outsider could shoot Jackson Warren under the bed clothes, leaving the gun and shell in bed."

According to MacDonald, who has been investigating the triple slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Warren and their son since Monday, this "leaves only some member of the Warren family as the one who committed the crime."

MIAMI POLICEMEN DENIED WRITS OF HABEAS CORPUS

MIAMI, Fla., April 4—(AP)—City Patrolmen Nelson Ward and R. L. Glisson, charged with the murder of John Mabry, a Negro prisoner, were denied writs of habeas corpus here today by Circuit Judge Paul D. Barnes and ordered held without bail for trial.

The officers had attacked the indictments against them on grounds that no proof of their guilt was evident and that the grand jury that returned them was constituted illegally.

The Negro was slain after he had been arrested for stealing a photograph. Ward and Glisson claimed he attacked them with a pistol.

The supreme court now has before it a habeas corpus appeal of H. Leslie Quigg, police chief, and three other police officers charged with the murder of another Negro prisoner.

RETURNED AFTER FAMILY HAD GIVEN HIM UP FOR DEAD

TIFTON, Ga., April 4—(AP)—Samuel M. Clyatt, 60, former mayor of Tifton, missing for 16 years, has returned home after his family had given him up for dead.

Clyatt, who disappeared on Oct. 25, 1911, while inspecting his naval stores properties near Valdosta, Ga., came home last night from Florida. He declined to talk about where he had been since leaving here.

At first believed to have been a victim of foul play, Clyatt later was reported to have been seen in several towns, but no verification of the reports came to his family.

Attempts to collect $25,000 in life insurance failed.

A CHARGE OF MURDER FILED AGAINST SHERIFF

MADILL, Okla., April 4—(AP)—A charge of murder was filed today against Sheriff Ed Long for the killing of County Attorney Franz Kim, whose steel breast plate failed to protect him when revolvers were drawn in an argument between the two officials here last Monday.

Kim was shot at a meeting of the county commissioners in the courthouse. A bill for $62 presented by the sheriff for returning a prisoner to the county caused the argument between the two men. The county attorney left abruptly and reappeared wearing steel plates on his chest and back and armed with a revolver.

The sheriff fired tree shots, one glancing from the edge of the armor and wounding Kim in the abdomen.

Rumors [illegible]ance of The Issue of a Loan

Said to Be in Preparation For Legal Stabilization of the Franc.

PARIS, April 4—(AP)—With the approach of the elections in France the air is full of rumors of an imminent issue of a loan to absorb part of France's floating debt in preparation for legal stabilization of the franc.

These reports are closely connected with vague talk in financial circles of a possible arrangement with Germany for commercialization of the railway and industrial bonds pledged in guarantee of the payment of reparations. This talk is largely a result of Premier Poincare's speech at Carcassone on Sunday in which he said that France would be willing to accept such a proposal with proper safeguards and guarantees.

The best semi-official information is that the loan will be prepared as far as it can be in advance but that the date, the rate of issue and the rate of interest will be known only after the election.

The general expectation is that Premier Poincare, if given a majority in parliament, in the elections of April 22, will set in motion machinery by which he intends to complete his work of financial restoration.

The first measure will likely be a loan to get rid of the floating debt but the rest of the program remains indefinite although there is good reason to suppose that it involves ratification of the Washington and London debt accords unless it should prove possible to agree with Germany on commercialization of the reparation bonds on terms that would permit renewed satisfactory arrangement for debt payments all around.

BRITISH COURTMARTIAL TINGED WITH COMEDY

GIBRALTAR, April 4—(AP)—Captain Kenneth G. B. Dewar, flag captain of the Royal Oak, and Rear Admiral Bernard St. G. Collard, leading figures in the present day "Pinafore" drama of the British Mediterranean fleet, faced each other today as cross-examiner and witness at the courtmartial of the captain. The latter is conducting his own defense on charges of conduct subversive to naval discipline, an accusation of which Commander H. M. Daniel has already been found guilty.

Even as Captain Corcoran of Gilbert and Sullivan's stage ship sang:

"Sir Joseph Storms
"And sad to tell
"He even threatens a courtmartial."

So testimony today showed that Admiral Collard stormed about various happenings aboard his flagship. The witness denied however that when the chaplain of the Royal Oak interviewed him concerning an epithet which the head of the fleet is alleged to have applied to Percy Barnacle, bandmaster of the vessel, he threatened the sky pilot with courtmartial. The admiral did say however that it was a serious thing for the spiritual commander of the ship to bring a false charge against the head of the fleet.

Captain Dewar asked the admiral to imagine himself in the bandmaster's position and the witness responded:

"I really can't imagine myself the bandmaster."

Admiral Collard also denied having thanked Commander Daniel for getting him out of a "nasty hole" by smoothing over the incident when the ship's band was supplanted by a jazz orchestra. What he did, the witness explained, was to congratulate the commander on his tactical handling of the business.

Catechism followed regarding the admiral's disembarkation at Malta when he decided that the companion ladder had been gotten ready on the wrong side of the ship.

"Did you say you were 'fed up' with the ship?" asked Captain Dewar.

"No, I said I was fed up with the flag captain," was the retort.

"You said just now that our relations were perfectly correct," suggested the captain.

"One wants something more from his right hand man," responded the admiral. "One wants one who on every occasion will put the admiral's interests before everything else in the world."

"Even before the interests of the service?"

"The admiral's interests are the interests of the service," responded the admiral.

TREASURER OF TRUST CO. HELD FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

NEW HAVEN, April 4—(AP)—Victor L. Fillebrown, treasurer of the Devon Bank and Trust company, was brought before the superior court today on a bench warrant charging him with six counts of embezzlement. He pleaded not guilty and elected court trial. Bonds were set at $5,000.

Fillebrown is charged with having given a treasurer's check for $500 to Alfred B. Dixon, on December 23, 1927; another for $200 to Dixon on December 29, and a third for $350 on December 31, none of which he recorded; with having made a false entry of $1,050 as a collection account on the bank's ledger on January 3, 1928; with having given a $50 Christmas club check to Ruth D. Fillebrown without recording it, and with having embezzled a total of $2,410.33 between June 3, 1927, and January 21, 1928.

"BULLS" CONTINUE TO CONTROL STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, April 4—(AP)—Speculative Wall street, daring the lightning of "bad news" today, continued to bid up stock prices, and raised more than a score issues into new high ground. A temporary reaction soon after the opening reflected the unexpectedly large increase of $317,000 in stock exchange member loans, but after the early selling orders had been cleared away, the "bulls" took complete charge.

Trading, which exceeded the 3,000,000-share mark for the 18th consecutive full day's session, was unusually broad, individual stocks traded in reaching a new high record of 752, four more than the previous high established on Feb. 17.

Dem. to Fight For Tax Cut of $300,000,000

Decision Arrived at by Members of the Senate Finance Committee.

WASHINGTON, April 4—(AP)—Democratic members of the senate finance committee decided to fight for a $300,000,000 tax cut—$100,000,000 more than proposed by Secretary Mellon—at a meeting late today after the committee had begun work on the bill.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, leader of the minority group of the committee, called the conference which decided also to ask for brief committee hearings in order to learn the views of the chamber of commerce of the United States and the automobile manufacturers on the statement made to the committee yesterday by Secretary Mellon.

Under the $300,000,000 plan, the democrats, who hold scant hope of mustering a majority even in a floor fight on the revenue bill, would repeal the 3 per cent automobile levy, cut the corporation tax to 11 or 11 1-2 per cent; revise the rates on the intermediate surtaxes, and increase the exemption for admissions.

Mr. Mellon used strong language in opposing the house provisions for repeal of the automobile tax. It involves $66,000,000 revenue and he said it would benefit only manufacturers who he declared had organized an intensive "propaganda" for repeal of the tax.

Senator Simmons said the democratic members of the committee were practically unanimous on the program decided upon today. No decision was reached by the minority on the estate tax repeal which was advocated by the administration. Some members favor this but there was a division of opinion.

REPUBLICANS SOLID FOR MELLON'S $200,000,000 TAX CUT

WASHINGTON, April 4—(AP)—The republican majority of the senate finance committee lined up solidly behind Secretary Mellon's $200,000,000 tax reduction program in the first skirmish on the revenue bill today but the democrats of the committee in a meeting later decided to fight for a $300,000,000 slash as a minimum.

After voting unanimously to report a tax reduction bill of some nature, the committee agreed to the proposal of Secretary Mellon to cut the 13 1-2 per cent corporation tax only to 12 per cent rather than 11 1-2 per cent as voted by the house.

Democrats opposed this and asked for an 11 per cent rate and then an 11 1-2 per cent figure, but both proposals were rejected on strict party divisions, 11 to 9, with republicans voting solidly against both.

LAFOLLETTE VICTORY IN WISCONSIN PROBABLE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 4—(AP)—LaFollette progressives appeared tonight to have weathered the most effective assault upon their forces in the past twelve years with assurances that they would dominate the state's delegation in the republican national convention but probably by only a narrow margin.

With 714 precincts missing out of 2,746 the vote gave LaFollette the lead with 128,887; Blaine 115,103; Kohler 108,290, and the fourth place to be contested by Kreutzer, a running mate of Kohler. His nearest opponents had: Kronshage, 94,247; Johnson 93,642, followed by Weigle, republican, 92,005 and Macauley, republican 88,946.

Governor Al Smith made a clean sweep of the state in the democratic primary, gaining the state's entire delegation of 26 headed by John M. Callahan, national committeeman, while Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, alone on the ballot, was the popular choice for the presidential nominee. Governor Smith did not seek the preferential vote, but seemed to have gained more materially than the Missourian who was without delegates to further his personal aspirations.

ALLEGED GAMBLING HOUSES RAIDED IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, April 4—(AP)—State police officers, acting on bench warrants issued in the superior court here over the heads of the Waterbury police department and on evidence furnished by the Waterbury Ministers' association, raided four alleged gambling houses and "policy" places here late this afternoon and made wholesale arrests of men alleged to be owners, employes and frequenters of the places. The frequenters were herded into police station and booked and the alleged owners and employes taken to the county courthouse for immediate arraignment. Details of the raids and arraignment are vague, as yet, until the formal arraignments take place.

State's Attorney Lawrence L. Lewis issued a statement shortly after the raids were completed, announcing that he intends to "clean up" Waterbury. The evidence in the cases of violation was furnished him by the Waterbury Ministers' association, he declared.

HEARING CONVERGES ON L. A. W. ACCEPTANCE CORP.

Further Testimony That Attorney General Arthur K. Reading, of Massachusetts, Threatened to Charge Louis A. Wolfe With Embezzlement, Larceny and Misappropriation of Funds—Judge Asher, Counsel For Wolfe, Said That the Contract Reading is Alleged to Have Forced Wolfe to Sign Was Unfair.

BOSTON, April 4—(AP)—Further testimony that Attorney General Arthur K. Reading threatened to press criminal charges against Louis A. Wolfe, president of the United L. A. W. Acceptance corporation, of Worcester, unless he agreed to an audit of the company's books and a settlement with the organization's subsidiary companies of which Reading was counsel, was given today at the hearing before the special legislative committee investigating Reading's conduct in office.

No mention yet has been made of the Decimo Club, Inc., of New York whose payment of a retainer to Reading started the investigation.

The hearing tomorrow will be held from 9.15 a. m. to 1.15 p. m., so that members of the committee may attend the funeral of Congressman James A. Gallivan, of South Boston.

Judge Jacob Asher, counsel for the Worcester company who testified yesterday that Wolfe told him Reading threatened to indict him far larceny unless he agreed to the audit was on the stand during the morning session. In addition Clarence M. Thompson, of Summit, N. J., New York business man; Samuel Rosoff, treasurer of the Worcester company and Edwin L. Pride, who audited the Worcester company's books testified.

Early in the day, Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, sponsor of the Reading investigation, asked Governor Fuller to remove Pride from the board of registration of accountants for alleged failure to tell the committee all he knew of the L. A. W. corporation affairs. Pride was called to the stand late in the afternoon and asked directly by Chairman George F. James, of Norwood, if he had any additional evidence. He said he had material the committee might want to study. After questioning he admitted he was in error in saying James A. Halloran, of Norwood, was a director in the L. A. W. organization and as such had been paid $3,000.

Judge Asher said the contract Reading is alleged to have forced Wolfe to sign was unfair inasmuch as it placed the stock of the company in the hands of "the opposition" and gave Reading alone the power to judge whether or not Wolfe had withheld money from the subsidiaries as charged. He said he advised Wolfe to sign for fear of criminal prosecution.

Thompson, former first vice president of the United company told of the conference with Reading at the attorney general's office and said that during the morning he understood Reading to be acting as attorney general and in the afternoon after the contract had been signed, as counsel for the subsidiaries. He said Reading charged Wolfe with embezzlement, larceny and misappropriation of funds and said District Attorney Charles B. Rugg of Worcester, was investigating the case and that he, Reading had "held him off." Thompson said he did not approve Wolfe's signing the contract as he believed it was signed under duress.

Rosoff, a brother-in-law of Wolfe, said he heard Reading tell Wolfe that serious charges had been made against him and added that he had been practicing criminal law for several years as a district attorney and had never lost a case. Under cross examination he said he never heard the words "grand jury" mentioned and did not hear Judge Asher voice his confidence in Reading. He testified that Reading demanded the contract be signed by 5 p. m. and when asked if anything Reading had said scared him the witness said, "No."

SENATOR DINEEN AND MAYOR THOMPSON CLASH

CHICAGO, April 4—(AP)—One new angle enter into the Illinois primary election today when Charles S. Deneen, United States senator, head of one of the factions, and Mayor William Hale Thompson, co-head with Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, of the other, hurled accusations of Ku Klux Klan interest at each other.

The mayor claimed Deneen brought Jacob Allen, a Ku Klux Klan organizer, from Detroit, as his campaign manager and also asserted that four years ago the senator "announced" he did not propose to let the Catholics, Jews and Negroes run the republican party.

Senator Deneen, whose interest in the election is in behalf of those running on the ticket sponsored by his faction, denied the mayor's allegation and retaliated with the statement that "Mayor Thompson adopted the slogan 'America First' from the Ku Klux Klan and it is used to indicate his sympathies. They understand him very well."

READY FOR OCEAN FLIGHT AT A FEW HOURS NOTICE

DUBLIN, April 4—(AP)—The gas tanks in the wings of the German plane Bremen were filled today and the aircraft was pronounced ready to fly at a few hours notice.

Authorities at Baldonnel airdrome said, however, that they do not expect the start for the attempted east to west flight to New York will come tomorrow. The field is still soft from yesterday's rains.

With the wing taks, regular receptacles and all emergency tanks filled, the Bremen carries 2,500 pounds of motor fuel. This fuel is bengol primed with ether and that amount is thought to be sufficient to give the Bremen a flying radius of about 4,500 miles. The distance from Dublin to New York is about 3,500 miles.

KIND-HEARTED BURGLAR RETURNED $1.15 TO VICTIM

BRIDGEPORT, April 4—(AP)—A kind-hearted burglar entered the tailor shop of Morris Wexler at 745 Maplewood avenue, about 7 o'clock tonight. Shoving a gun in the tailor's face, the burglar went through Wexler's pockets and extracted $6.15.

The $6.15 was made up of a $5 bill, a $1 bill and 15 cents in change. The burglar looked his "haul" over and handed the tailor back the $1.15, keeping the $5 bill. Thereupon an argument ensued.

Recognizing that the bandit had a streak of human kindness in him, Wexler tried to convince him that he should give him back the $5 bill and take only the $1.15. The burglar couldn't see it that way.

"I tried to get him to give me the $5 bill and keep the $1.15, but he wouldn't," Wexler said tonight. "He said 'A dollar and 15 cents is enough for any tailor,' and walked out."

ACCIDENT CAUSED BY A CARELESS MOTORIST

NEW HAVEN, April 4—(AP)—An acrobatic motorist who leaned from the driver's seat of his machine, out the window on the opposite side of the car, to wave at another automobile which he was passing, caused an accident tonight in which three persons, two of them Holy Cross students and the third a National Guard officer, were injured.

The injured are: Lieut. Col. Francis H. Shearer, of 26 Kenneth street, Hartford, attached to the adjutant general's office; Fabian Hickey, 53 Conley avenue, Jersey City, N. J., and Donald O'Brien, 42 189th street, Flushing, N. Y.

Lieut. Col. Shearer reported to the police that he with the two Holy Cross men whom he picked up in Hartford, was headed for Milford where he was scheduled to attend an inspection of Battery E and that while driving along the Milford turnpike just over the West Haven line Orange, another machine passed his. As it did, the driver apparently slid over in the seat to wave out the window and in doing so, turned his wheels in towards the car in which Shearer and the students were riding.

REP. GOOD IS ACTIVE IN CAMPAIGN FOR HOOVER

WASHINGTON, April 4—(AP)—As a step toward coordinating the Hoover-for-president movement, former Rep. James W. Good of Iowa has joined the group of republicans who are directing the campaign of the commerce secretary. He plans to spend most of his time in Washington until the Kansas City convention.

In a statement today Good, who at one time was chairman of the house appropriations committee and in 1924 assisted in the management of the Coolidge pre-convention campaign, said he was in no sense to be a manager for Mr. Hoover. It is understood, however, that he will have many of the powers of a manager, although the direction of the cabinet officer's campaign probably will be left largely in the hands of a group of Hoover's supporters.

A. B. FALL SUFFERED A SETBACK YESTERDAY

EL PASO, Texas, April 4—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, suffered a setback today, but members of the family said it was hoped he would be able to leave by train tomorrow for California where he will enter a sanitarium.

His condition was described as being "somewhat limp," due perhaps to the wearing off of stimulants administered to buoy him up during the taking of the deposition to be used by Harry F. Sinclair, in his trial in Washington on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

It appeared to be the anticipated let down, the family said, and all the more reason for getting Fall to a lower altitude as soon as possible. The former cabinet member is suffering from heart disease.

GALE WITH SUMMER-LIKE WEATHER IN KANSAS

WICHITA, Kan., April 4—(AP)—A terrific windstrom coupled with hail, rain and a decided drop in summer-like temperatures swept southeastern Kansas and nothern Oklahoma today.

The storm was most severe in oil fields of Greenwood and Butler counties, Kansas, where an eighty mile gale tore down oil rigs and derricks worth about $5,000.

Reports from Ponca City, Okla., said poultry raisers lost many flocks as the result of the hail. An airplane hangar was unroofed at New Kirk, Okla., where the storm also put electric lights out of commission. Chimneys were blown down by the storm at El Dorado, Kansas.

In twenty minutes .18 of an inch of rain fell in Wichita.

Mrs. Anna Green, 25, was killed near Topeka when a strong wind demolished a chicken house near her home and buried her in the wreckage.

C. W. HILL TO BE SUPT. OF FINISHING DEPARTMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 4—At the Willimantic office of the American Thread company, announcement was made today that Charles W. Hill had been given a merited promotion from assistant to superintendent of the finishing department of the local mills. Superintendent Hill assumed his new duties Monday, reaching the position of superintendent of the department after 22 and one-half years of service with the company. He entered the thread concern's employ in November, 1905 as an office clerk and his subsequent promotions have been periodic. He served in the navy during the war and upon his return was employed in a managerial capacity in various branches while devoting his time to sponsoring and leading a number of social and industrial projects fostered by the company for the benefit of the employes. While engaged in this work he also took a leading part in the more prominent civic and fraternal organizations of the city including the chamber of commerce of which he is a past president, and the Rotary club which he served for nearly five years as secretary. A few years ago he was connected with the company's business in New York for several months. The position of superintendent of the finishing department was vacated in April 1926 when Robert O Branch resigned to accept a position with the New York office of the company. At that time Mr. Hill was chosen assistant superintendent and he now fills the vacancy caused by Mr. Branch's resignation.

The star witness for the state was Harold Fryer of The Ridges, who testified that Gunderson sideswiped his Fryer's) car and that he was forced to drive on the sidewalk along West Main street to avoid a serious collision. Fryer complained to the police and while Gunderson's car was removed from where it had been parked near a telephone pole, the latter called up the police station and said his machine had just been stolen. He was telephoning from Melo's store and there he was found by the officers in an intoxicated condition. Gunderson pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The unloading and hauling away of a 20-ton stone crusher for Miller Bros. of Hartford, from a flat car in the local railroad yard toward its destination in Westford attracted a crowd of about 200 today. Although not as massive in size as its weight would indicate, the crusher proved a difficul article to handle. Block and tackle manipulated with a pair of heavy draft horses owned by Charles H. Baker were used in getting the crusher off the flat car. This work lasted from eight in the morning to noon. An attempt was then made to draw the machine from the railroad yard on a fortified moving truck up the Railroad street incline to Main street. The horses were powerless, however, and two motor trucks were hooked on to help the animals. It took over two hours to get the crusher to Main street and from there it started on its trip hauled by the horses and a truck. The moving of the crusher for its use in road building work in the vicinity of Ashford and Westford is a tremendous task as several miles of rutted country roads are encountered in the journey. While the crusher was being hauled to Main street Officer Arthur Hurley was stationed to direct traffic.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Steel ships are built by men's muscles

531 men in the Sun Shipyards relieve muscle lameness this way

IT'S A REAL man's job—the work of the men on the ways in the big shipyards. It takes all the strength—the skill—the courage a man's got.

Big wages—adventure—the spice of danger! Yes, and stiff backs — occasional wrenches, sprains, bruises—and rheumatism when you've been riding the girders or running the big traveling cranes out in a drizzling rain all day.

How do men who do this heavy work relieve the effects of strain and exposure? How do they treat the occasional minor injuries that are bound to occur?

We made a canvass among the workers in the yards of the Sun Shipbuilding Company of Chester, Pa., one of the largest shipbuilding concerns in this country.

531 told us, "We use Sloan's."

One of the men in the Sun Shipyards who told us that they use Sloan's to relieve strains, colds, rheumatism

Miners, steel workers, policemen, firemen, stevedores, farmers—all who do hard muscular work know Sloan's. It is the liniment that always kills the aches that come from exposure to cold and wet, from heavy lifting—from strains, sprains and wrenched muscles.

Workers in every trade praise Sloan's

Read what this garage worker writes: "One night when I came in from my work my left leg pained me and the next morning it was swollen up and wouldn't let me walk. I applied Sloan's Liniment to it that night and the pain nearly all left, but the swelling was still there so I applied it again and the next day the swelling was all gone. For aches and pains I find nothing to beat Sloan's Liniment. I keep a bottle in the garage where I work." T. E. Jacob, 1318 Reynold St., Shreveport, La.

Sloan's Liniment is pleasant and clean to use. You don't even have to rub it in. Just put it on gently. At once you feel a tide of fresh, healing blood rush to the aching spot. Sloan's heals by helping nature. It isn't a drug—it is absolutely safe and cannot harm anyone. Keep a bottle always in the house. All druggists—35 cents. Use it for:

Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Lame muscles, Stiff neck, Colds and congestions, Sprains and bruises

The company doctor of one of the biggest industries of the country says of Sloan's: "People who work exposed then to strain or to damp and cold usually suffer from a good deal of muscular soreness. We find that Sloan's gives them quick, positive relief."

DANIELSON

WARDEN'S REPORT SHOWS A VERY SUCCESSFUL YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 4—Advance copies of the annual report of Warden Harry E. Back were made available today. In this report to the electors the warden says:

In the warden's report to the electors of the borough for the year ending April 1, 1927, occurs the following paragraph:

"The equipment of the fire department, the library, and all departments of the borough are now in exceptionally good condition, and the running expenses of the borough for the coming year should be sufficiently reduced so that a material reduction of the borough debt may be made."

That prophecy has been fulfilled during the financial year of the borough which has just closed. Although the tax rate was reduced one-half mill in 1927, there has been a net reduction of the debt of over $4500 and in addition, the borough starts its new fiscal year with $2489.53 on hand, as against $826.13 once year ago.

It would seem that another mill could be taken from the tax rate this year, and the usual reduction of the debt by $1500 made, after all the expenses of the municipality are met.

As the reports of the chief of the fire department and the librarian indicate, both the fire department and library continue to be in exceptionally good condition. A substantial amount of new hose has been purchased for the fire department and paid for during the last year.

Among the matters that need especial attention during the coming year is the condition of the sidewalks. It would seem to have been a mistake for the construction, upkeep and care of the sidewalks to be taken away from the town of Killingly. If the streets within the borough are in the care of the town, the sidewalks should be, not only because of the unity of authority in fixing curb lines, but because the municipality that has an equipment for the one, can without additional expense for a duplication of equipment, take care of the other. Some time in the future, either the sidewalks should be turned back to the town of Killingly, or the highways in the borough limits should be maintained and cared for by the borough.

One of the most offensive spots in the corporate limits of Danielson, for many years, from the standpoint of health and sanitation has been the "Spiritual half block" upon Oak street. The new owner, Mr. Henry J. Myers, wishes to remedy this and the borough should do its part by voting to install a sewer in the street.

The court of burgesses (which under the revised charter includes the warden) has had but one aim during the past year, and will continue to have the same policy, namely, to keep the expenditures as low as possible, with a resulting low tax rate. The court of burgesses would appreciate a more general interest in municipal affairs by the borough electors. It is difficult at special or regular meetings to secure an attendance of much more than one per cent. of the registered voters.

Public Library Report

Another annual report by Attorney Harry E. Back today is as librarian of the Danielson public library. The report shows that conditions at the library have been very satisfactory the past year. Installation of a new heating plant, and redecoration of the interior of the building has served both for comfort and satisfaction of the librarians and the public. The report also makes mention of benefit to the library property recently resulting in the removal of frame buildings, constituting a fire hazard, on the adjoining Burlingham property and of the improvements to the section generally through the construction of the new Building for the Brooklyn Savings Bank.

The circulation of books at the library during the year 1927 was greater than in the preceding year. In 1926, the total number of books taken was [illegible]. In 1927 the circulation was 24,[illegible], a gain of 3414.

Books taken out the past year may be classified as follows: 15,852 among adults, 7420 among children, 517 French books. Each of these classes shows an increase over the preceding year, the circulation of French books showing about 100 per cent. The circulation in outside schools was 180, and at East Killingly 278.

Each year the library is of greater use and service to the graded schools and the high school of the town. The use of library books in outlying districts, among the school children and the families of which they are members, through the taking of volumes to the schools by teachers, has continued. There is a very large use of the reference library both by teachers and pupils.

There have been added to the library during the year, through the books purchased by the pay-shelf, 102 volumes, an increase of 32 over the preceding year. The pay-shelf is a great benefit to the library and the reading public.

The East Killingly branch of the library has continued to function under the care of Mrs. Lydia A. Bartlett, who has served without recompense.

Since the last report there has been turned over to F. A. Jacobs, trustee, the Almond M. Paine fund of $10,000, the income of which will be used for the purchase of books and for the benefit of the library. Librarian Back says that the people of Danielson and, indeed of the town of Killingly, should never fail to remember and feel grateful to the donor of this fund.

The working force of the library has continued to be the same as formerly—Miss Hortense E. Griffith and Miss Amelia B. Hutchins, assistant librarians. Their faithfulness and courtesy are hereby acknowledged.

The suggestion of Tax Commissioner W. H. Blodgett in his address on taxation matters before the chamber of commerce last evening included one suggestion that may not be adopted in Killingly, but which, nevertheless, is regarded by some careful students here of such subjects as containing great merit. It has to do with establishing an assessors' office, to be open regularly and with some persons on duty there to check all the property of the town of Killingly, as to size and location; changes in ownership and various other things pertaining to property in its relation to taxation. There is expense involved in such an undertaking, but there appears to be sound reason for believing that the information obtained would result in bringing very considerable more revenue for the town, in taxes, than getting it would cost.

An echo of the April meeting of the chamber of commerce meeting last night has to do with Clean-up week, scheduled for early May. It involves interesting business men in a movement to keep the business area of Danielson especially spic and span throughout the season. It would enthuse them to see that no litter is allowed to accumulate around their places of business. It would enlist them in a campaign against allowing loose papers and other such waste material to find a resting place elsewhere than in some repository where it will stay put until permanently removed or destroyed. In the past a windy day has been marked by the swirling about of waste paper, old containers and other such things in the business section. This has been unsightly, bad community advertising and representative of carelessness or negligence. The hope is that the Clean up week campaign will overcome this fault.

William Cully of Elmville is in grevious difficulty again. He has been turned over to Providence officers to answer in Rhode Island to having carnal knowledge of a minor female child, without her consent. This girl 13 years of age, alleges that Culley is responsible for her present delicate condition. And as though this allegation were not enough, Culley must answer, too, as to why he brought here from Rhode Island a few days ago and established in his mother's home at Elmville one Helen Martin, 16, of Providence, who has been missing from her home for the past two months. Culley is being held in Rhode Island for later presentation in the superior court.

Last year Culley was arrested in this town after having been involved in some breaking and entering cases. At the March term of the superior court for this county last year he was placed on probation. He violated the terms of this probation period by failing to report regularly, and left the state. It is understood he has spent much of the time since going away from here in Providence, and has indulged himself in his facility for making female acquaintances. He boasted while being held here just before being taken back to Providence of having 24 pictures of himself made and distributing them to girls within a week. Culley came back to Elmville only a few days ago.

H. E. BACK APPOINTED AS PUBLIC DEFENDER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 4—Attorney H. E. Back has been appointed by Judge Marvin of the superior court as public defender in Windham county for the April term of court, which opens at Willimantic next Tuesday. The appointment is a temporary one and is to fill a vacancy caused by the death recently of Attorney Charles L. Torrey of Putnam. The regular appointment will be made by the judges of the superior court in June.

Next Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock at the Park inn on Reynolds street there is to be a luncheon meeting of the Social Workers Council of New London and Windham counties The speaker is to be Miss Maude Keator, Hartford, and her subject Community Care of the Mentally Deficient. The Social Workers' council is one of the organizations with which the Civic Federation of Danielson is affiliated in carrying out its social service program.

Sam Merman of Willimantic, presented before Justice Edith Kennedy of Plainfield, presiding in the town of Sterling, was fined $5 for having an unendorsed motor vehicle operator's license; in fact, neither his license for 1927 nor 1928 was endorsed.

In another Sterling case tried before Justice Kennedy, Arthur Lamoureaux of Lakewood, R. I., was fined $100 and costs for operating an overloaded truck, $75 of this fine being remitted.

Sindey P. Marland, Gordon J. Gale and Walter Anderson have been named as a committee of the chamber of commerce to determine the viewpoint of manufacturers in town relative to again adopting a daylight schedule of operation, beginning the latter part of this month. The attitude of the manufacturers largely controls in this matter in Killingly.

Danielson members of the Windham County Kennel club are to be at Willimantic next Tuesday evening for a meeting and banquet of the organization at the Nathan Hale hotel.

Friday afternoon members of the Civic federation are to meet with Mrs. Henry D. Crosby of Academy street.

This morning's Bulletin story relative to the L. A. W. corporation of Worcester was of special interest to Danielson, for there are numerous stockholders resident in this town and also a director of the corporation.

DeForest Wells, Jr., presided this morning at the daily Holy week services being held at the Baptist church. His assistant was Francis Hammett. The Hi-Y group had charge of the service, at which the address was made by Rev. George Nesbitt McCluskey of Hartford. Thursday morning the Tri-Y girls are to have charge of the service and the address is to be by Rev. A. E. Gallup. Good Friday morning the service is to be at 10 a. m., and the address will be by Rev. C. J. Armstrong.

Schools throughout the town of Killingly will close Thursday afternoon for the Easter recess. The schools will resume sessions next Monday morning.

Dr. Stanley Osborne of the state board of health is to be the speaker at the May meeting of the Danielson chamber of commerce.

PUTNAM

SURPRISE EXPRESSED AT APPOINTMENT OF DES JARDIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 4—When it became known that Adolph Desjardin of Gilman street, a former alderman from Ward 4, had been elected to fill the unexpired term of Willis B. Carroll, resigned, and to take over the aldermanic duties that he had resigned during the 1922 administration of the city government, it was a surprise to many of the residents of Ward 4. The democratic city committee succeeded in keeping the new alderman's name a secret known only to themselves for a period of three weeks.

Mr. Desjardin is a capable man for the position and being acquainted with the duties of a councilor he will no doubt prove a valuable man to the interests of the city. The new alderman was given the oath of office by Mayor Richard in the presence of the common council. Mr. Desjardin stated that he had taken over his new duties in high spirits and that he would give the city his most earnest efforts.

POWER CO. TO BUILD FILLER BED FOR REFUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 4—The movement now being sponsored by the state water commission to remove all the city sewerage from Connecticut's rivers will first be complied with by the Putnam plant of the Eastern Connecticut Power company when they undertake to erect filtration beds to take care of their waste material from their gas plant on Arch street. Superintendent Ralph E. Thurston stated Wednesday that the filtration plant designed by the United Gas Improvement company to be erected in Putnam will be the same design of plant that the state commission wishes the city to erect, only it will be of a smaller caliber. All coke refuse and other waste coming from the Putnam electric light plant is taken care of in a special sewer on their premises that empties into the Quinebaug river. Superintendent Thurston says that the new system will be built soon and will afford the city officials an opportunity to see what the city plant will be like. W. R. Copeland, a member of the state water commission, informed the council at the regular city meeting held Tuesday evening that not more than a period of five years will elapse before cities on the Connecticut streams will have to have their sewerage systems out of the rivers to be in accordance with the new law. The estimated cost of the erection of a plant suitable for the needs of Putnam was between $100,000 to $200,000.

Alex Lemaire of New Bedford was detained at the Putnam police station Tuesday evening by the Putnam police after a notice for his arrest was sent out by the New Bedford police for evading a bondsman. The Putnam police receiving notice of Lemaire's escape from New Bedford and were on the lookout for him in this city. Officer Alpheri Sponcey picked the man up at the home of a relative on South Meadow street when a complaint was entered by one of the man's relatives. The Putnam officers notified the police of New Bedford, who came Tuesday and took him into custody.

The record mark for spring days was reached when the mercury jumped up to 76 degrees Tuesday. Tuesday forecast an acceptable week end for the Easter holidays. Overcoats and other clothing relating to wintery breezes were stored away Tuesday, when the light summer apparel was being worn by the majority, who were out to enjoy the weather. Bird lovers watching for the first sight of the native summer feathered friends reported many species have returned to their northern homes in this section. The bluebird which is not seen in these parts until late in the season has made its appearance in the woodlands on Grand View.

The regulations regarding the parking of cars in the business section of the city on Main street in front of the Elks block and the new Seder block are to be changed so that autoists will have to park their automobiles so they will be parallel to the curbing instead of backing into stalls lined off by the police as is done now. The large interstate busses which drive into the square hardly have room to pass through the two lines of cars that are parked daily in front of these two buildings. Alderman Chadwick of the city ordinance committee feels that with the new plan put into effect it will eliminate the parking problem on Main street that has given the council so much trouble.

The old question of all day parking in front of the business houses is now again before the ordinance committee. Alderman Chadwick feels that if the merchants and employees of the merchants, who drive their vehicles to work, do not cooperate with the committee and park their cars off the highways in front of the stores the council will be forced to pass an ordinance placing a time limit on the parking. Alderman Dean who is a member of the committee stated that the Rotary club will assist the city council in drawing up satisfactory solution to the business section parking.

The heavy April shower that prevailed for about an hour Tuesday evening dampened the forest fire threat. Smoke clouds that arose high into the southern skies Monday gave out warning that the woodland and forests are now in a very dry condition and that people who use wood paths for thoroughfares should be careful of fire and cigarettes. The forest fire season is fast approaching and this year the state forestry department is taking extra precautions in guarding Connecticut's forest lands. Last year in the spring thousands of acres of woodland were lost in this vicinity alone by the carelessness of picnickers and sportsmen with fire while in the wooded lands.

In the Second Congregational church on Good Friday evening the full church choir will sing Sir John Stainer's masterpiece, "The Crucifixion" at eight o'clock. Rehearsals for this musical masterpiece have been held for the past few weeks under the direction of Mrs. E. L. Robinson. Kenneth C. Sharpe, church organist will be at the organ. There are several well known choruses in the oratorio including the "Processional March to Calvary," "God So Loved the World," and "As Moses Lifted Up the Serpent." The recitative parts are solos of unusual beauty and will be rendered by Mrs. Albert A. Cross, Mrs. Emil Benoit, Ralph C. Jenkins and William Wheaton of this city and George W. Curtis, tenor soloist of the Simonds Memorial church of Fitchburg, Mass. The service will be open to the public.

The road on South Main street is now in a dangerous condition to the passing traffic. Holes of considerable size are numerous on the lower end of the highway near the underpass at Front street. Other streets throughout the city remain in the same condition. Work of repairs on the city streets will be started soon by the state and city highway departments to put the thoroughfares into condition.

The criminal session of the Windham county superior court will open in Willimantic on Tuesday April 10. The docket for this session shows that no Putnam cases are listed to be tried at this session. George Morel of Lowell, Mass., who figured in a recent automobile accident at Wilsonville a week ago, which resulted in the death of his father Anthony Morel of Putnam, is now being held in Brooklyn jail awaiting trial at this session of the court. Morel is charged with manslaughter.

Much interest is being taken by local people in the investigation of the L. A. W. corporation that is now being conducted by Massachusetts authorities. Louis A. Wolfe formerly of Putnam and now said to be in Palestine was president of the finance company when its headquarters were in Putnam.

"Matzzoah day" was observed in Putnam Wednesday by members of the Jewish faith. Services were conducted at the synagogue in the morning. Yesterday marked the opening of the Jewish Passover and was declared as a holiday by all members of the faith.

Extensive work on the beautifying of the state highways is soon to commence again by the highway department. The setting out of plants and hedges along the angles of the state roads did much last year to improve the appearance of the highway at these points.

Work on the new state park at Priest's island is progressing rapidly as forms for the support of the new suspension bridge were being laid Wednesday. The work is in charge of a Hartford contractor.

Many gathered at the Second Congregational church Tuesday evening to listen to the address given by Frank W. Barber before the public and the members of the Drop-In class of the church. Mr. Barber was a former supervisor of rural schools for the towns of Woodstock and Pomfret.

Wives, sisters, and mothers of the Putnam ex-service men gathered at the home of Mrs. Martin B. Robertson, wife of Commander Robertson of the Anseim Mayotte post of the Legion, to organize an auxiliary of the American Legion. There are many women interested in the project and it is thought that it will be a highly successful undertaking. Application for a charter will be made soon.

The continued card games of the "Bridge Widows" were held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. L. T. Champlain, assisted by Mrs. F. D. Thayer. The bridge prizes were won by Mrs. William E. Wheaton. The consolation was given to Mrs. Herbert Johnson. Mrs. Leonard H. Mellor will be hostess next week assisted by Mrs. Herbert Johnson.

Misses Ruth and Rhea deCoudres of the Rhode Island School of Design are visiting this week with their parents Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. deCoudres of Woodstock avenue.

Rev. John E. Duxbury of the Methodist Episcopal church of this city has returned from the ministers conference that was held last week in Fall River, Mass. Mr. Duxbury was the preacher at the services at the Union Methodist church in Webster last evening.

A new braking system to be installed on the hose truck in the central fire station has arrived. Chief Thruston will have the new system installed on the engine at once.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. CUTTING CITY TREES

Some communities seem to show trees after they have lost them. This is noticed in many of the cities where city removals have taken place. They are ready to sympathize with other places where similar action is contemplated and there's no wonder. It is useless to cry over spilt milk but there is justification for the strenuous efforts that are made to prevent the spilling.

Over in Waterbury they have been parting with some of their old elms. It is a painful process but it is charged to progress. In New London an organized effort is being made to get the people of that city to thinking of it if some of the old and stately elms of that city are rooted out and eliminated forever. Danbury can't see to its attractive main thoroughfare at the expense of trees which are greatly missed and there is hardly a community where the cutting down of trees, landmarks for many years, does not provoke opposition and tears.

There are certain sacrifices which have to be made in order to meet present day requirements. The community that is growing cannot fail to meet the demands of changing conditions, but there is real ground for the making of hard fights against the cutting of trees unless it can be shown that there is actual need for it. Too often it is the case that the claim is made that trees must go only to have it shown that such action is not really necessary. It might be the easiest way but it would also be a highly detrimental move, and the time to get thought centered upon it is before the slaughtering of trees is started. Norwich has had to part with trees, for one reason and another, which it would give much to have restored.

Where cities cut trees because they are in the way or dead, it is unfortunate that it is not the established policy to replace them. This may not be possible in the exact locality but there are other points which need them and the future attractions of any city will be greatly increased thereby. That doesn't restore the trees which are removed but it is the next best thing in the way of a substitute.

FEDERAL TAX REVISION

When the suggestion was made that the reduction bill be delayed until after it could be learned what the quarter's revenue was going to be, it was realized that it would throw light upon the contentions of those who had been urging heavy tax cuts and those who opposed it.

The treasury department had been maintaining that there should be a reduction of no more than $225,000,000. The house had produced a bill that called for $290,000,000. The senate decided not to take estimates but to wait and be shown. That time has come and now Secretary Mellon of the treasury department tells the senate finance committee that the budget will be endangered unless the tax cut is limited to $200,000,000.

Congress has been making appropriations in the past several weeks. It has made preparations for more, and more are in order. The financial perspective is such that it is not now possible to go beyond the tax cut of $225,000,000 which the treasury thought possible early in the session without taking serious chances.

Upon the statement as the secretary made, with a backing down in the matter of how much taxes can be cut, is based upon up-to-the-minute conditions. He still favors a tax cut but has lost the wisdom of keeping it in bounds. The present view of the situation more thoroughly justifies the attitude that was taken last December and adds greater weight to the secretary's policies. It has shown that not only was it wise to delay tax action but that if tax reduction had been made in accordance with the secretary's recommendations last December a big error could have been made and could be made now.

What action the senate may after the house measure so as to conform to present possibilities have been indicated. The senate committee is evidently determined to hasten action, realizing that nothing now stands in the way but some an agreement upon the provisions and a reconciliation of differences with the house action. Congress sought to play football with the recommendations by President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon and it now has the chance to realize its mistake.

THE TOLL PROPOSITION

Surprise is expressed because a bill has been passed authorizing the condemnation of a private right of way from Camden to Atlantic City, N. J., which is to be opened to the public as a toll road. Surprise is occasioned because the idea of a toll road seems to be a step backward and efforts in late years have been toward the abolishment of such ideas.

But new conditions have called for the revival of old ideas. States have built and are building excellent modern roads. In some instances they are not doing so in keeping with the demand. Traffic conditions are not always of the best. Congestion is a serious matter and at numerous points there is a call for better accommodations.

The promoters of the toll highway believe that it will render a service to the public which it will be glad to pay for. That is true of the toll bridges and it is open to proof that such will prevail concerning highways.

The road will go over a private right of way, avoiding towns, be built over railroads and it will be within the right of the owners to say what kind of traffic can use it and adopt other regulations.

Here is a case where private capital is ready to do what the state cannot or is unwilling to do at the present time. New Jersey has said that it can go ahead. No one is required to use it but as a matter of accommodation there will doubtless be a big patronage when completed. Whether New Jersey has put any provision in the bill which would permit it to acquire such a road for adequate compensation is not known but it will be strange if it has not. That is invariably the case concerning toll bridges and it means of course that the public is going to be given the service it desires at once and is ready to pay for instead of being obliged to wait until the state finds the funds with which to do what private enterprise is anxious to do now. The toll proposition is not without its good points.

POSTAL RATES

According to reports from Washington there is a possibility that there will be a revision of postal rates at this session of congress. This is not the first time an attempt has been made in recent years, and it is never wise to count the chickens before they are hatched, but it is action that is heeded and action that ought to have been taken long ago.

There are various changes proposed including the return of the one cent private mailing card, the one cent picture postcards, a lowering of the rates in the several zones and certain changes in class rates. Those who mail newspapers would be given a 50 per cent. cut.

From the postoffice department the estimate is given out that such changes could be anticipated to cause a loss running into the millions during 1929. That is apparently based upon the cut without making much of an allowance for such increase in business as would follow the reduction.

It was quickly realized that the raising of the postcard rate for the picture cards had a tremendous effect upon that business. The public simply would not comply with the change. The result was less business of that class. Those who were in the habit of sending papers occasionally were forced to the same action. It was burdensome to do otherwise.

In recognition of the situation a lowering of the rates should encourage a bigger postal business. That at least is an outcome that is to be expected, so that while it is figured that the new rates will mean a loss it is not out of reason to believe that additional business will at least make up the anticipated difference. It is at least a proper bid for more business.

STRICKEN SMYRNA

Without any question Smyrna has suffered severely. So great has been the damage wrought by earthquake and the destruction there at the hand of man that the question is raised as to whether Smyrna will survive.

Disasters are discouraging. When they come singly they are bad enough but piled one on another they break the heart of a people, and yet it does not necessarily follow that because that city is so badly stricken it will not be able to continue. Smyrna has been sacked and burned and now its buildings have been destroyed in large number, but there are reasons for believing that it will be able to meet the situation for it must be that there are those in that city who are as determined to stick as are those on the sides of volcanoes who know their danger and yet cannot be prevailed upon to reside in places of safety.

Conditions which have developed there are enough to discourage the residents. The Turks led a powerful initiative in this direction by their ravages, but there are advantages at Smyrna which are not going to be overlooked. The country about it is rich. It is the port through which the products of that country are handled and in the past the city has surmounted its difficulties. Perhaps the future cannot be judged entirely by the past. Conditions are not the same. The people are not the same. Nevertheless with all things considered, including the reaction of other places under somewhat similar conditions, it will be unusual if Smyrna does not survive.

CLOTHES FOR JENNY

Eva Thurber and Helen Carver were making out invitations for the open meeting of the woman's club the following Thursday. The two constituted the committee and as they were friends and neighbors they could say what they pleased to each other.

"I'd like to ask Jenny Boyd," Eva said.

"We ought to ask her," Helen agreed.

There was a silence during which Helen bit the end of her pen-holder and Eva made tiny marks with a pencil on paper. Then their eyes met across the library table. They were making out the invitations in Eva's house.

"She's in the neighborhood," Helen went on. "I'm afraid she'd feel it terribly if we didn't ask her."

"Of course she won't go," Eva replied. "She hasn't anything to wear. The open meeting is always a dressy occasion. I'm going to wear my new canton crepe."

"It's safe to ask her, then," Helen remarked.

"Why, Helen, what do you mean?"

"I mean that if she can't go, it's safe to ask her. You know, Eva, she isn't—well, she takes in washing to help out. She is all right as a neighbor, but when it comes to real society—oh, I don't want to appear mean, but you must see that there's quite a—a difference between Boyd and the rest of us."

"Yes, I see." Eva was grave. "I feel that myself, but I do like her, don't you?"

"Oh, Yes, I like her. Well, I'll write the invitation," Helen sighed.

They never dreamed that Jenny Boyd would accept the invitation, but she did. She came running across next day to thank Helen.

"I appreciate it awfully," she said. Helen squirmed a little.

"We certainly wouldn't think of leaving you out, Jenny," she said.

"I should have been terribly disappointed if I couldn't hear Miss Newton. I'm crazy over Miss Newton," Jenny said. "Ever since I heard she was coming to speak at the meeting of the woman's club I've just hoped and longed to hear her."

"It—it's going to be something of a dress-up affair, you know, Jenny," warned Helen tentatively.

"I know it. I'll find something to wear," Jenny replied brightly. "Well, I must go. I've got to finish Mrs. Jenk's ironing."

Helen watched her as she flew back home. There was something fine about Jenny Boyd. She had spirit and grace, too. Not every woman could have jumped the puddles in West street as she did without appearing awkward. She had the boyish build that turned motion into poetry.

"I will say for Jenny," thought Helen, "that whatever she wears, even if it is just an old rag of a bungalow apron, becomes her. It's her shape, I suppose."

Eva came in presently. She gave a little gasp when she heard that Jenny Boyd had accepted her invitation.

"What will she wear? She hasn't a thing but that old blue suit. Not a decent blouse or anything! And now that her husband is out of work she won't be able to afford anything. You know the Boyds never go in debt for anything. What they can't pay for they don't have."

Helen bit her lips. She wondered if Eva knew that the hat she was going to wear was not paid for yet. That hat bill was worrying Helen terribly. Still, if one was in society one had to have things like other people.

There was, however, one comfort in the fact that the hat made her look very nice, when at last she was dressed for the meeting.

Eva joined Helen, and the two proceeded to Mrs. Alverson's. Helen and Eva were amazed to see Jenny Boyd entering with the calm manner that would have done credit to Mrs. Alverson herself.

"Look!" gasped Helen, "isn't Jenny stunning?"

Jenny was indeed stunning. What another woman might have looked in the same apparel one may not say, but Jenny certainly had an air of distinction.

Her hat was new, a smart little dark blue felt, crisply trimmed with pheasant's feathers. Her old blue suit had been pressed until it had not a crease. With it she wore a silk blouse with a tiny blue line, severely plain. Her gloves were new and a few inches of silk stocking showed from underneath the hem of her skirt.

Miss Newton saw her at once and asked for an introduction. Without doubt she was impressed by Jenny; they talked a long while.

After Miss Newton's speech she called for a free expression on the part of the women along the same line.

Jenny Boyd was the only one who spoke!

She spoke almost as well as Miss Newton herself— "I study out a good many things over my ironing board and washtub," she said.

Helen blushed for her, but when she finished everybody cheered.

"Well," Eva said as they returned home. "Jenny certainly came out strong. But where did she get that silk blouse?"

"Land knows. I give up about Jenny. She certainly is an astonisher."

That evening Helen and Eva were sitting together still talking about their amazing neighbor when the door opened and Jenny, with only a preliminary "Hoo-hoo!" walked in. Her dark eyes were flashing and she had a glow of happiness on her face that made her something more than interesting to look at.

"How did you like my costume?" she demanded. "I told you I'd find something to wear."

"You looked very nice," said Helen and Eva in a breath. "And your little speech—how could you find so many wonderful things to say?"

Jenny laughed.

"Oh, the speech didn't matter. I'm always thinking. But the clothes took some pains. I can tell you. I worked hard over that rig. And after I'd trimmed that old felt with feathers from the 10-cent store and pressed my suit till I scorched it. I was still out of a blouse. So I borrowed Sam's best shirt. Did you recognize it?"

"Sam's shirt!"

"Yes, and the fun of it was he needed it himself. He was going to meet a man who was going to look him over with a view to giving him a job. He had to wear his old shirt—he's only got two."

"Too bad," murmured Eva.

"Oh, no!" Jenny laughed again. "He got the job—fifteen hundred a year. I shan't have to wash any more."

Eva and Helen did not dare look at each other. For after all they were good women, and they had consciences.—Detroit News.

YOUR HEALTH

SPEAKING OF CRAMPS

By Howard Lilienthal, M. D., New York, Member Gorgas Memorial.

At 2 o'clock Sunday morning Alice Watson was awakened by an agonizing pain.

After an evening at the play there had been a little supper with her husband and two of his business friends with their wives, and Alice had relished to the full the rich and unaccustomed variety provided by the Washington grill.

It had seemed so good, too, to get away for a little amusement, her first dissipation since the arrival of the baby, now a month old, the youngest of three boys.

She reproached herself for the sin of gluttony and felt that the pain and nausea which distressed her were in the nature of a retribution. Relief was imperative, for the hot water, the mustard leaf, and the other household remedies had failed. Dr. Williams appearing on the heels of an urge in telephone call, put an end to the attack, which he called a severe colic, with an injection of morphine, and promised to call the next day and investigate the cause of the trouble.

Next day, finding his patient comfortable, his first step was to take a careful history of the case. At the age of twenty-five Alice had married and the children came two years apart.

During her first pregnancy indigestion was an annoying symptom, and even after confinement she had to be careful in her selection of food. But chocolates and other delicacies were hard to resist, and the bathroom scales had shown a steady gain, increasingly difficult to hide by camouflage.

The chemical examination of a few drops of blood from Alice's arm disclosed an increase in the fatty substance so often deposited as gall stones. A droplet of the bile itself was placed under the microscope and tiny crystals of stone-producing material were seen. This was made possible by withdrawing a little of the liver secretion through a thin soft tube of rubber which the patient had swallowed.

Evidence was now piling up but more exact proof was desired, so the fluoroscope and pictures were invoked. In Alice's case the result was brilliantly successful. Not only was the outline of the diseased gall bladder seen, but an oval shadow the size of an almond indicated that a stone was present.

"But," said the anxious husband, who had studied physiology in school, "my wife has never had jaundice and I thought that one turned yellow with gall stones." Dr. Williams had to explain that jaundice did not appear until the stone had passed through the narrow neck of the pear-shaped gall bladder and had obstructed the main passage from the liver to the intestines. In Mrs. Watson's case the stone was too large for this, and unless it were removed by operation it would remain as the cause of repeated colic, a menace to health and even to life.

The Watsons took their doctor's advice, wisely preferring the moderate risk of surgery with cure to a life constantly attended by the threat of distressing or fatal illness.

Two days of pain and discomfort, much less severe than the attack of colic; then three weeks of a not unpleasant convalescence, and the wife and mother went back to her home restored to health and properly educated in the hygiene of eating and drinking.

Stories That Recall Others

Hollow to Many

It was a reading class, but the subject of geometry was brought up with the mention that there were also other kinds of geometry. The teacher was baited.

Inquiring boy, in all seriousness, asked: "Is the other kind of geometry 'hollow geometry'?"

Experience the Best Teacher

A school boy spends his Saturdays working in a store where seeds are sold. His first customer, wishing to initiate the new clerk, requested a quarter's worth of potato seed. Eager to oblige, the boy searched high and low for the desired article, but in vain. Finally in desperation he asked the aid of a fellow worker, who lost no time in informing him of his mistake. The unfortunate clerk accepted the inevitable gibes and ridicule with a good-natured grin, but nevertheless he made a secret resolve that no other practical joker should catch him asleep.

With wary eye, he scanned his next customer, who asked for some canary seed. The young clerk replied triumphantly, "Say, you can't fool me, mister, canaries don't grow from seeds—they hatch out of eggs!"

Fellowship of Prayer

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

"Freedom Through Religion"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "If, therefore, the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36).

Read: John 21:15-22.

MEDITATION: Two things that threaten hope are environment and convention. We tend to become victims of things and people. "The danger of all human fellowship," said Professor Brown, "is that it will set limits to growth. We accept so easily the standards of our environment." Religion helps to free a man from the bondage of things and people by emphasizing the worth of the spirit and of each personality. If a man values his own spirit and individuality he will be free from the tyranny of things and conventions. He is free to strive and hope for his highest development. To use a phrase of Goethe's, he may be "bound without" but he is "boundless within."

PRAYER: O Thou who dost give liberty to men, set us free we pray Thee from all bonds which enslave us, fetter us and prevent us from becoming ourselves. Strengthen us to walk in this new day without fear or any kind of bondage. Amen.

To A Million Women Who Know
The New Order of Things

Who Want An Automobile That Looks Like Something—Acts Like Something—Is Something—Yet Costs Comparatively Little

IF I were a woman, I'd want a certain kind of automobile.

Of course, I'd want it to look like something. For you see, it will be almost a part of me, my life, my home.

And I wouldn't want to pay a fortune for it, because I know too well the value of the dollar.

But I would want far more.

I'd want nimbleness, easy steering, dashing pick-up, certain stopping to end traffic terrors.

I'd want the ability to twist easily into tight parking corners.

I'd want sure-footed, positive braking on those rainy, wet days when I drive the children to school.

And on certain afternoons, when I'm tired of dusting and dishes, I'd want my car to be a care-free vagabond with me, interested only in finding out what is on the other side of some distant, wind-swept hill.

Reo invites every woman who feels that way to try out the Reo Wolverine, to judge it on any feminine basis, over any roads. For Reo has made the Wolverine the woman's car, as well as the man's.

Try one out today—you will be surprised—especially when you ask the price.

MONTVILLE WOMAN APPEALS FINE ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Mrs. Thomas Wendt, whose home in the Pie Hill section of Montville was raided by state policemen from the Groton barracks last Saturday night, was found guilty of violation of the liquor law by Justice of the Peace J. Y. Miller in Montville Tuesday and was fined $100 and costs. She appealed to the court of common pleas and was released from custody upon bond.

The case of Walter Hannick of Upper Palmertown road, who was also visited by the state police, was continued for one week and Alex Rynagewski, proprietor of a store in the Uncasville district, was found not guilty on a charge of selling liquor.

The raids were made after mill owners had complained to the state police that, due to the ease with which employes could obtain liquor, they were imbibing too freely, and the mill work was suffering as a result.

Mohawk Trail Under Repair

Construction work on Jacob's ladder and the Mohawk trail is expected to tie up those popular touring routes all summer, making it necessary for motorists headed westerly towards Dalton, Pittsfield, North Adams and Williamstown, Mass., to take a third route, the Berkshire trail, if they hope to get any comfort in travel.

The Automobile club of Springfield has admitted that the Berkshire route will be the only one of the three to offer unobstructed progress, although it is the least popular of the three highways.

WHITE LEGHORNS LEAD IN WEEK AT STORRS

Who will set the pace in the Storrs egg laying contest in the next few weeks? This is a hard question to answer for at the end of the twenty-second week there are three entries that have laid slightly over 1,200 eggs, and any one of the three may be conceded a chance to lead the pack. White Leghorns owned by Broadview farm of Winsted, Conn., had the pace at the end of the past week with a production of 1,210 eggs to their credit. Their advantage is slight at best, however, for the Rhode Island Red entry of Charlescote farm of Sherborn, Mass., was only one egg behind the Leghorns from Connecticut. Still another Leghorn entry, one entered by George Lowry from West Willington, Conn., is dangerously close with a 1,203-egg score.

The latter entry, although ranking only third at the present time, shapes up as the team most likely to take the lead in the next few weeks. This prediction is based on output for the past week, and presupposes a maintenance of that production. Lowry's pen laid 64 eggs for the week as compared with 56 eggs for Charlescote and 51 for Broadview, a gain of 8 eggs on the Reds and 13 on the Leghorns. Lowry's entry has only a 7-egg lead to overcome to take the lead. A rally on the part of either of the other two entries would of course make the going more difficulty for Lowry's pen.

The 64-egg score of George Lowry's White Leghorns was enough to put these birds at the head of the week's honor roll. Rhode Island Reds owned by George T. Purkis from Topsfield, Mass., the birds that last week set up a new record of 66 eggs in seven days, placed second on the honor roll with 63 eggs to their credit. Clarence E. Lee's Reds from Auburn, N. Y., were third for the week with a score of 62 eggs, and still another Red entry entered by Nasacock farm from Tyngsboro, Mass., placed fourth with a count of 61 eggs.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are:

SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, Jewett City

SIX CHURCH CONFERENCE HELD ON JEWETT CITY CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

The conference of six churches and the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the dedication of the present edifice of the Second Congregational church in Jewett City was held there on Wednesday, with an attendance of one hundred and sixty one. The day was ideal and the beautiful decorations in the church added greatly to the pleasure of the celebration. The Easter lilies, begonias, tulips, aspidistias and Florida palms were most effectively arranged by Miss M. A. Burdick. The communion table was adorned with exquisite pink roses, donated by Mrs. W. A. Richardson from Florida.

The morning session was opened with a violin and organ duet Reverie by E. L. Ashford played by Charles Perkins, violin and Mrs. Walter Benjamin organ. Following the doxology, Rev. A. H. Clement of Jewett City offered the invocation. Rev. D. C. Stone of Hanover led the responsive reading. The scripture lesson from Ephesians 3 was read by Rev. William Prentiss of Plainfield followed by prayer offered by Rev. Newell Whitman of Pachaug. Miss Sadie Thompson sang I Come to Thee (Caro Roma).

Rev. G. F. Goodenough, pastor of the church, who conducted the exercises introduced a former pastor of the church, Rev. J. Edward Newton of New Haven, as the morning speaker. Mr. Newton's text was Ephesians 3:10. To the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be known by the church the manifold wisdom of God. His theme was the interest, purpose and mission of the church. He enlarged on four phases of the subject—spread the message, inspire a faith, to create a character and to build a kingdom. He emphasized living the golden rule, the royal law, love thy neighbor as thyself, and the supreme duty, thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, mind and strength. He said that what the world needs today is more faith, in a time when there is more faith than ever before. Take spiritual truths and organize them around Jesus Christ.

The offering was received by Sidney Hall of Preston and William R. Palmer of Griswold. Dinner was served in the church vestry by the women of the church, Rev. Mr. Goodenough saying grace.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session was opened with an organ prelude, the devotional service being led by the pastor with prayer by Rev. W. J. Reynolds of Newent, Rev. E. E. Scates, pastor of the Jewett City Baptist church read the 91st Psalm to emphasize the thought of Lest We Forget. The report of the last conference was read by the clerk, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. Mrs. Ruth Sweet Ballou, a daughter of James O. Sweet, the chairman of the building committee sang the solo O Dry Those Tears by Teresa Del Reigo.

The historical sketch was read by another daughter of Mr. Sweet, Mrs. Rena Sweet Vaughn, of Norwich. It was intensely interesting, bringing back many interesting facts and scenes of the past years of the church and town history.

Greetings Given

The pastor called on several present to speak, giving the greetings of Rev. J. W. Carter, pastor of the Methodist church, who is out of town. The speakers were: Dr. G. H. Jennings, Rev. E. E. Scates, Mrs. Jane Haskell, Rev. A. H. Clement, Miss Grace Wheeler of Stonington, Rev. W. J. Reynolds, Rev. D. C. Stone, Deacon Kingsley and Rev. William Prentiss. Mr. Goodenough spoke of two other living members of the church of fifty years ago besides Mrs. Haskell, who are Mrs. Ida Browning Ladd and Miss Sarah Palmer. Both are at present in Norwich and were unable to attend on account of illness. He asked those to rise who were here fifty years ago, Mrs. Haskell, Mrs. Vaughn, Mrs. Faust, Dr. and Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. Arba Browning and Mrs. Edward Corbett responding.

He also gave the greetings of Edwin P. Lyon of New Haven, vice president of the N. Y., N. H., and H. R. R. and son of Dwight Lyon a member of the building committee and a former member of the church choir and from Miss Mary Avery of Norwich, daughter of Rev. John Avery.

A vote of thanks was given for the entertainment furnished by the church the music, the sermon and the historical paper. Perhaps the day's impression could be summed up in an expression used by the pastor: Looking backward is the basis for going forward.

The services closed with benediction by Mr. Goodenough. The roll of the church when called showed: Hanover 16, Preston City 26, Pachaug 15, Lisbon 9, Plainfield 22, Jewett City 35, visitors 38.

The program for the day gave not only the form of service for Wednesday's exercises, but the dedication services of April 3, 1878 fifty years ago. It also gave the committees' names: James O. Sweet, Albert Brewster, Dwight Lyon, Alfred A. Young, Sr., Silas Sherman; architect, Earl; contractors and builders, Hannum and McCumber; decorator, Harry Monroe; chorister, Dwight Douglas Tracy.

Historical Paper.

In her historical paper, which was listened to with the closest attention and appreciation, Mrs. Vaughn first spoke of the church as an offshoot of the old Congregational church of Griswold, whose first pastor was Rev. Hezekiah Lord, a member of the first class graduated in Yale in 1717. He served the church for 41 years. Subsequent pastors were Rev. Levi Hart, Yale 1759; Horatio Waldo, 1810-1823; Stafford D. Jewett, 1830-1836; Rev. William Jewett, 1836-1842; Rev. Roswell Whitmore, two years; Rev. Calvin Terry, five years; Rev. Bennet F. Northrop, 17 years; Rev. Franklin E. Ellis, 1871-1875; Rev. William B. Clark, 1875-1882; Rev. Charles H. Peck, 1882-1889.

The first church building of the church whose anniversary was being celebrated was a stone edifice which had been built by the Episcopalians, 1814-1818, but the church died out. The Congregationalists bought it in April, 1825, remodeled it and dedicated it Sept. 3, 1828. Mrs. Vaughn mentioned the following pastors: Rev. Seth Bliss, the first pastor, served seven years; Rev. George Perkins, 1832-1838; Rev. William Wright, 1838-1842; Rev. Thomas Leffingwell Shipman, 1842-1854; Rev. Henry T. Cheever, 1855-1861.

About 1863 the stone church building was sold to the Roman Catholic church and the Congregationalists worshiped in a hall in the basement of the school house. Rev. Jeremy W. Tuck was installed as pastor May 3, 1866, and the new church building was dedicated Dec. 11, 1867. Mr. Tuck was pastor for 10 years.

Mrs. Vaughn mentioned in an entertaining way some of the social customs of the times and the activities of the different church and village organizations.

The church building was burned, Feb. 10, 1876, but a new church seating 400 was built and was dedicated April 3, 1878, just 50 years ago when Rev. George N. Kellogg was serving as the supply pastor. He continued with the church as acting pastor until April 1, 1882. Subsequent pastors were the following: Rev. Charles A. Northrop, 1883-1885; George B. Hatch, 1886-1887; Homer T. Beach, 1887-1888; Oscar G. McIntyre, 1889-1891; Horace E. Morrow, 1891-1899; Leonard W. Bacon, D. D., supply for less than a year; George N. Edwards, 1901-1905; J. Edward Newton, 1905-1908; William H. Gane, LL. D., 1908-1914; Albert Donnel, 1916; Clinton Andrews, H. F. Stevenson, George K. Gray, students at Yale while preaching for this church; Rev. G. F. Goodenough, the present pastor.

FAITH TRUMBULL MEETING IN OLD NORWICH HOUSE

Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., Inc., held a regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edith Huntington Wilson, Huntington Lane, Norwich Town. The meeting was called to order at 3 o'clock with the regent, Mrs. William H. Dawley, presiding. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were there heard and accepted. Mrs. W. Tyler Browne, in her report for the museum committee said that the first effort of that committee toward raising its budget, a bridge party at Mrs. Brown's home, netted about one-third of the total budget.

Mrs. A. M. Van Wagenen of the programme committee, announced that the May meeting will be held at the Wauregan hotel and that the topic will be The Continental Congress. Mrs. F. I. Royce of the patriotic education committee announced that four more pins, prizes for attendance in the local night schools, had been presented to students at the Taftville night school.

Mrs. H. W. Gallup announced additional geneological research accomplished and that the book, Abstracts of Old Wills, will be sent to the library of Continental Memorial hall, Washington, D. C. Two applications for membership were received and letters of thanks for gifts were received from the American International college, Springfield, Mass., and from the People's Forest association.

Mrs. Leslie Brewer, chapter delegate to the state conference, told of an inspiring two day session. Among the high lights of the conference, mentioned by Mrs. Brewer were the following: The presentation by the state regent, Miss Katherine Nettleton and her mother, of two beautiful flags to the state, one national and the other a state flag; the passing of a resolution to uphold the state officers in their attitude toward national defense, and Mrs. Buell's strong speech on national defense.

It was voted to add a new officer, state chaplain, the selection to be by committee. Raymond Case then addressed the meeting on Old Houses in Norwich and Vicinity. Mr. Case followed, step by step the evolution of houses from the simple shelter or hut to the houses of one room and a chimney, then to double houses and to the early and later Georgian and finally to those of the classic revival which followed the war of 1812. This talk was made especially interesting by the mention of many well known homes of Norwich as examples of the different periods.

Charles Dyer added a few historical facts and presented to the chapter a beautiful cane which belonged to Lafayette and an ancient mortar from Lathrop's apothecary Shop. A vote of appreciation was given Mrs. Wilson, Mr. Case and Mr. Dyer for their interesting talks. Miss Katheryn Zumbro and George Gulle entertained with several violin duets. There were many expressions of appreciation to Mrs. Wilson for opening her home to the chapter members for their April meeting.

BRISTOL WINS SECOND GAME AT CHICAGO; NAUGATUCK IS BEATEN

CHICAGO, April 4—(AP)—A rangy team from Tulsa, Okla., averaging six feet in height and packing a Jack Dempsey style of offense, stamped themselves as heavy favorites to win the University of Chicago's National inter-scholastic basketball tournament today.

Hitting and weaving their way through a heretofore stone-wall defense, the Sconers upset the strong Winfield, Kansas, Five, 26 to 19, in the second round of tournament play. The two teams showed easily the best of the tourney so far. Jerome, Tulsa forward, hung up the largest individual score of the contest—five field goals.

Not quite so flashy, but displaying a well oiled play, the Canton, Illinois, quin also became a favorite by trancing the Colorado state champions, Fort Collins, 29 to 15, in the second round. Canton used a deadly offensive to great advantage.

Tulsa and Canton clash tomorrow.

The south qualified two more teams in the third round, when Mize, a Mississippi hamlet that map-makers forget, and Ashland, Ky., conquerors of Carr Creek in four over-time periods at the state tournament, won their opening contests. Both teams drew byes in the first round.

Mize, while exhibiting much in the way of basketball, managed to come out of a few remaining eastern teams, South Portland, Me., 29 to 18. Ashland took the measure of the Naugatuck, Conn., five, 20 to 13, in one of the upsets of the tournament.

Naugy Defeat Upset

Naugatuck, winner of the Atlantic Seaboard tournament, was a favorite. Oregon, Mo., eliminated Spartanburg, S. C., 32 to 13 and Grandforks, N. D., took Wilmington, S. C., out of the tourney 23 to 17, in a whirlwind last quarter finish.

Stivers, of Dayton, Ohio, established itself as a team to be reckoned with before the finals when it downed St. Paul, Nebraska state title-holders, 32 to 20.

Bristol Game Defensive Battle

Bristol, Conn., the only remaining eastern team in the tournament won a defensive battle from Pine Bluff, Ark., 14 to 12.

Bristol had a slight advantage until the first few minutes of the last few minutes of the last period, when Johnson, Pine Bluff guard, tied the score at 13 all with a long shot.

Both teams then began a battle for possession of the ball, which ended temporarily, when Rao, Bristol forward, missed two free throws. A minute later he made his fourth foul and Vining given a chance at free throw but missed.

Hugret finally made good a free throw, which proved to be the winning point. Coperton, Arkansas center was given a chance to tie the score but missed a free throw just before the gun.

Zetarski did all of the Bristol scoring from the field, caging four goals. Johnson led the Pine Bluff scorers with three field goals.

Vienna, Ga., ranking pre-tourney favorite to play in the finals easily disposed of Yankton, S. D., champions, 42 to 21.

The Georgians started off like a whirlwind running up a score of 20 to 4 at the first quarter. The second quarter, ended 26 to 6.

The light but fast Oak Park, Illinois, team eliminated Everett, Mass., state champs, in a run-away contest, 48 to 29. The stampede furnished the team with the highest of the tournament.

Carr Creek won from Austin, Texas, 25 to 18.

Monster Celebration in Bristol

BRISTOL, April 4—(AP)—News of Bristol's victory over Pine Bluff, Ark., in the scholastic basketball tourney in Chicago tonight, caused a demonstration here without parallel. High school students started an impromptu parade and practically the entire population either on foot or in machines, was soon swinging through the main streets, singing and cheering and letting off steam in one manner or another.

TAFTVILLE A. A. TO HOLD MEETING NEXT WEDNESDAY

What Taftville will do about a baseball team will be definitely decided next Wednesday night at a meeting of the Taftville A. A. At this meeting several questions of importance will come up for decision which will include the matter of becoming a member of a state league. A manager will be chosen at the meeting and it seems almost certain that Jim Troland, who piloted the Martafts to a successful year last season, will be the choice to lead the Taftville A. A. Troland seems to be about the only one in Taftville who has been able to successfully put on a ball club to represent the village. Each year as the ball season rolls around Jim says he's through with baseball but its not long before he's at it again.

The merger of the Taftville A. A. and the J. E. Martin teams last season although fairly successful did not meet with the favor of those in the village and this year both teams will run independently.

SUNDAY BALL PETITION KILLED IN MASS. HOUSE

BOSTON, April 4—(AP)—After a two hour debate the state house of representatives late today rejected on a roll call vote, 110 to 82, an initiative petition to permit the playing of Sunday baseball and certain other professional sports in Massachusetts.

The action of the house killed the bill in the legislature for the present session. This measure may, however, be placed on the ballot for the next state election.

PUTNAM HIGH HANDICAPPED BY LACK OF PITCHING STAFF

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, April 4—Coach Laristson F. Noyes of the Putnam High school baseball team is seriously handicapped this season by the lack of seasoned batterymen. Graduation last year took his mainstays and leaves him with little to build around. Pegion a catcher, and Tetreault and Kelly, pitchers being lost to the team. Capt. Walt Wheaton, who played third base on the 1927 team, may be shifted over to the box for some of the games. Wheaton shows plenty of speed and a good assortment of curves. Wheaton was a hard hitter on last season's squad. Others trying out for the pitching duties are Donovan, Arnold and Weiss, all of whom show good early season form. Cody is out for catch along with Henry Arnold.

The infield candidates are Marion, Weiss, Donovan, Franklin and Denning who are working out daily. Marion and Franklin were members of last years teams and had good records. The outfield positions find a number of candidates for each position and Coach Noyes will turn his attention to developing some hard-hitting gardeners.

RANGERS-MAROONS OPEN TONIGHT ON MONTREAL ICE

NEW YORK, April 4—(AP)—Out of the welter of preliminary rounds in the National Hockey league battle for the historic Stanley cup, the world series of the ice world, Frank Boucher, diminutive center ice star of the New York Rangers, has come to stay himself as one of the greatest players in the game.

Boucher will lead the Rangers on the ice of the Montreal Maroons in the Canadian metropolis tomorrow night for the first of the final five game series for the professional hockey title. The New Yorkers dusted off the Boston Bruins five goals to two in the two game American division final, while the Maroons took the measure of the Montreal Canadiens, 3 to 2, in a similar joust for Canadian division honors.

The brilliance of Boucher stands out above all others in a composite score of the preliminary efforts of the two teams, fighting tomorrow night for the championship. Boucher tallied three goals, assisted in the scoring of three others, and spent no time in the penalty box. The Rangers scored 11 goals and seven assists in the first elimination series with Pittsburgh and the division final against the Bruins.

WEISSMULLER RETAINS 100 YD. CROWN AT NATIONAL MEET

CHICAGO, April 4—(AP)—The "Human Fish," Johnny Weissmuller of the Illinois Athletic club, retained his 100 yard free style indoor swimming title at the National A. A. A. C., was third and George Kojac of the New York Boys club was fourth.

The Illinois A. C. relay team shattered its third indoor world's record in two nights by holding its national title in the senior 300 yard medley event. The time was 3:05.6. The old mark held by the I. A. C., team was 3:06.2.

The New York A. C. was second and the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. was third.

The members of the I. A. C., team are Weissmuller, Richard Peterson and Samson.

WAGNER TO MEET MANDELL IN NON-TITLE CONTEST

DETROIT April 4—(AP)—Eddie (Kid) Wagner of Philadelphia and Sammy Mandel, lightweight champion were matched today for a 10 round boxing contest to be held at the Olympia here April 17. YANKS DROP SECOND EXTRA-INNING GAME

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 4—(AP)—For the second day in succession the New York Yankees dropped an extra inning game to a minor league club today, but Babe Ruth again took some of the sting out of the defeat by cracking out his second home run of the season. The Nashville volunteers took today's encounter, 11 to 10, in ten innings. Chattanooga beat the champions yesterday in 12 frames.

Heavy hitting by both teams marked the game, including four home runs in the first two innings. Ruth walloped the ball over the short right field wall his first time at bat. Hood and Lovelace followed in quick succession for the Vols and Combs evened up the count for the Yanks in the second.

Abie Hood, Nashville center fielder was the star of the game, garnering five hits including a homer and a double in six trips to the plate.

The local team tried to put on a brother act in the box by putting in Ed. Pipgras to oppose his brother George, but Manager Huggins cut it short by sending in a pinch hitter for the Yankee moundsman.

ACADEMY SEEMS WELL FORTIFIED FOR SEASON WITH PROMISING MATERIAL

Plenty of promising candidates from the lower classes greeted Coach Earle E. Brigham of the Academy baseball squad in his workouts so far this season. Although the local mentor lost five regulars off the 1927 state championship team, still he seems to have a number of willing and rather capable workers for the vacant posts.

Penin, Cummings, Mish, Weisgraber, Fontaine, Berghinzo, Arico and Fagan are a few of the boys rather new to the school, who are making strong bids to stick to the squad. Pepin, so far, has clouted the ball with a vengeance, but of course, no curves or drops have been tossed up.

Cummings has looked good in the outfield. He, especially, has shown a nice arm. At first base Arico and Berghinzo are battling for posts and both have shown fine fielding ability. Arico is a lefthander and Berghinzo does his throwing from the right side. Both have hit well, although not to a startling nature.

Fontaine Only "Vet."

Fontaine is a lower middler and is about the only one of these "rookies" who was on the team last year. He is a catcher and was carried last year in a utility role. He has shown good form although not being subjected to anything hard, as yet. Weisgraber, formerly a cross-country star, has has come out for a pitching job and looks pretty good.

There are others who are expected to flash something soon but as yet they have not shown the class of the above-mentioned boys. "Boots" Greene, a brother of Johnny Greene, is a pitching prospect that is scheduled to blossom out soon and make a strong bid for the first reserve job on the club. "Boots" is a bit too wild as yet but he ought to overcome this in a little while.

Wednesday afternoon it was these youngsters that did most of the work. The veterans had a short workout early in the afternoon, after which the field was cluttered with the rest of the squad. A five-inning game took up the rest of the time, and after that there was a short session of flychasing.

Goldblatt in Charge.

Captain Mace Goldblatt was in charge of the squad in the absence of Coach Brigham. In was announced that today's drill will start at 2 p. m. and, if the weather be right, some stiff work is expected. School closed Wednesday for the Easter vacation, reopening Monday, April 16, so that it looks like long workouts during this time. There will be no practice this Friday.

Hal Carlson to Return

CHICAGO, April 4—(AP)—The pennant hopes of the Chicago Cubs were strengthened tonight when President Veeck announced Hal Carlson, veteran pitcher, would join the club in Kansas City Monday. Carlson was sent home from the west coast when he was threatened with pneumonia.

'BOUT SPORTS

The much-talked-of state basketball title series between the Plainfield Pros and the New Britain Guards now seems to have been tabled with but one game played. Plainfield won that, last week, at the Community house. It was generally understood that the second game would have been played at New Britain and a third, if necessary, at South Manchester. However, disagreements have come about and with the season fast slipping into history the chances for the rest of this series to be played are dwindling in like manner. Incidentally, each team had previously won a game this year over the other so that, at present, Plainfield is ahead in wins.

HIGH SCHOOL PROSPECTS

Plainfield High

Plainfield high usually makes a big thing of its baseball season and its season usually is successful, that is, when games with teams in its own class are counted in the won and lost column.

This year promises to be no exception although the outlook is none too bright. Nearly all sections of the team have been weakened by graduation and other causes, some slightly and others running into disastrous proportions.

The infield will be none too sturdy this year, according to the present outlook. However, it may be that a good inner defense can be woven about Bakanowski, who played shortstop last year. The outfield will be more nearly natural, with plenty of good prospects. The catching department will, of course, be nowhere near as strong as when "Big Boy" Allard used to don the mask but some likely looking receivers have reported. The pitchers are a big problem and upon them hinges a big part of Plainfield's diamond destiny.

Plainfield's schedule is a rather stiff one for a school of its size. Two games with the Academy are listed while the Orange and Black also meets Chapman Tech, Westerly, Stonington, Putnam, Killingly, among others. Plainfield comes to the local campus Saturday, April 21, for the Academy's third game and the second of a scholastic tinge for this year. This is Plainfield's usual date on the Wildcat's schedule. Last year it was a 10 to 0 defeat that she received but this small team can be expected to fight right to the last for all the breaks in this year's engagement.

Tomorrow—Killing High

BOBBY CRUICKSHANK LEADS IN RICHMOND GOLF

Richmond, Va., April 4—(AP)—Bobby Cruickshank, the "Wee Scot" from Purchase, N. Y., took the lead at the half way mark of the Richmond open golf tournament today, finishing with a 72-70-142 to stand one stroke ahead of "Wild Bill" Melhorn, of Pittsburgh, who set a new course record of 69, two under par, for 143.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Central Baptists beat the Trinity Methodist quintet in a Senior church league game Tuesday night at the Y. The score was 34 to 12 with Eddie Mack getting all of the loser's points while Reed McCrum threw in 18 of the Central's tallies.

This week end will be sort of different to local court fans with no games on tap.

However, the C. F. C. are liable to meet the Putnam Silk Sox or some other fast team, as a sort of anti-climax to the local season.

The Y Emps expect to play one more game before ending their season.

They now have 16 wins and four losses for the season.

The C. F. C. lost a close overtime game to Joe Belair's Mystic quintet Tuesday night at Mystic. It was the local's third tight game in less than a week.

Last Friday they went down and beat the Stonington Iron Men in a five minute overtime game. Two points was the deciding margin. Monday the locals again beat Stonington's Iron Men here at the Y by 31 to 30.

ENGLISHMAN LEADS RUNNERS INTO TEXAS

VEGA, Texas, April 4—(AP)—Completing the trek across New Mexico, the cross-country foot racers entered the Panhandle of Texas today, led by Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, Eng., who was the first to reach Vega by dint of stepping the 37.5 mile stretch from Glenn Rio, N. M., in 5:1:16.

Only 20 seconds behind the hardy English runner was Ollie Wanttinen, New York. Arne Suominen, Detroit, leader in the derby on the basis of elapsed time, was third in 5:34:40. The Detroiter was followed by Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla.; Pat De Marr, Los Angeles; John Salo, Passaic, N. J., and Mike Joyce, of Cleveland.

The racers now have covered 1,152 miles of their 2,400-mile journey from Los Angeles to New York. Suominen has a lead of more than five hours in total time over his closest opponent, Payne. Elapsed time of the three leaders follows: Suominen, 189:45:10; Payne, 195:00:42; Gavuzzi, 196:54:41.

Ninety-one runners and walkers are still competing in the race.

COLLETT AND ORCUTT LOSE AT PINEHURST

PINEHURST, N. C., April 4—(AP)—Carelessness and superfine gold combined in today's semi-final matches of the women's north and south golf championship, to produce two surprises and definitely determine that there will be a new champion this year.

On the eighteenth Green, Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., the winner of last year's tournament, and a former National title holder, went down to defeat before the flashing putter of Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, a former Trans-Mississippi champion.

Then, after a nip and tuck battle, Miss Maureen Orcutt, Metropolitan champion grew careless at the nineteenth hole, and with a fourteen inch putt to give her a half and carry the match to the twentieth, flubbed the shot and lost to Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago.

Chapman Tech Reports

Chapman Tech's baseball candidates reported Tuesday afternoon to Coach Morris at Morgan park, New London. About 40 put in an appearance. Bill Nield, shortstop, and basketball captain the past season, will not be available this year because of illness, and this is a big blow to Tech.

Franz Diener Loses Crown

BERLIN, Germany, April 4—(AP)—Max Schmelling, European light heavyweight title-holder, tonight won the German heavyweight championship by outpointing Franz Diener, the champion, in a 15 round bout.

Roy Grootgoed, 20 year old farmer boy was held to the grand jury in Cleveland, Ohio, on charges of murder after his alleged confession that he struck Alice Leonard, Mayfield Heights school girl with his automobile on the night of Jan. 28 and left her to die in a frozen swamp ground.

PROS WIN CLOSE GAME FROM HARTFORD

Opening up with all their fury in the last two minutes of play the Plainfield Pros took a fast and interesting game from the Knights of Lithuania of Hartford at the Community house here tonight, by the score of 46 to 43. Benson's foul and field goals for the three points made in a desperate last minute offense won the game for the Pros, but in winning they certainly had their hands full, and the overconfidence that was apparent at the start of the game was completely absent when the Knights started off their fireworks in the second half. They were playing for all they were worth in the last few minutes of play, and it was a case of which team would drop in the winning basket right up until the final bell.

The game started off rather listlessly, Plainfield taking things easy. S. Shinkius center for the Knights dropped in the first goal followed shortly after by a foul by Dissinger and a field by Brusso for Plainfield. The score started to zig-zag when Plainfield began to get their floor work going which had the Lithuanians somewhat puzzled. They outplayed the Knights for the remainder of the half and it seemed that the Pros were going to have a walkaway with the game. The fighting spirit of the Hartford boys did not subside, however, and they gradually crept up to Plainfield. The great playing of Malinowski, the diminutive forward for the Knights, gained him much applause from the fans. Both his offense and his defense were excellent, while his floor work and sharpshooting were a revelation. His eleven points in the first half coupled with the point of each other member of the team brought their score up to 23 for the first half while Plainfield by the brilliant shooting of Bernot for eleven points took the lead from the Knights and ended the half with the score 27 to 23.

Malinowski's and S. Shinkius field goals tied the score again, and from then until the finish it was either team's game. First one team would surge ahead only to be tied by the other, and then in turn take the lead. The Lithuanians managed to get the range on the basket and dropped in some beautiful shots. They speeded up on the floor and had Plainfield with about three minutes to go there was quite some excitment. Benson came through with a foul to again tie the score. Each team missed a couple of baskets in their efforts to gain the lead but it was up to Benson again to come through with a foul and then a field goal in the last minute of play to win the game by the three points.

The Knights certainly put up an excellent exhibition of basketball, and it was a tough game to lose. Plainfield with more experience under their belts, more weight on the floor and playing on their own court had no setup. It was rather an unique sight to watch little Malinowski, a high school lad playing his first game under professional rules, pitted against the more experienced Benson and outplaying him. They came to town with a mighty good basketball team and deserve much credit for their fine playing.

The Buddies lost out to the fast Putnam Town Team by a 37 to 30 score, in an interesting preliminary game. Putnam teams seem to be the enemies of the Buddies. The absence of the fast travelling Mercier due to injuries left a hole in the Buddies team which might have had something to do with the score.

Blindfolded . . . in scientific test of leading Cigarettes, Princess Paul Chavchavadze selects OLD GOLD

"I was much intrigued by the invitation to make a blindfold test of your leading brands of American cigarettes, to see how they compared with each other and with those I had smoked abroad. Could one really taste the difference? I wondered.

"But when I was handed these cigarettes, one by one, I realized at once that there was a difference and that the test was conclusive. One cigarette was so much more appealing, so much more delicate in flavor. Oh, and so much smoother!

"When the test was over and I was told that the cigarette of my choice was OLD GOLD I understood at once why this cigarette is so popular among my American friends."

Nina Chavchavadze

PRINCESS PAUL CHAVCHAVADZE, Sister of Mrs. Wm. B. Leeds

How Test Was Made

subject was blindfolded, and, in the presence of two responsible witnesses, was given one each of the four leading cigarettes to smoke. To clear the taste, coffee was served before each cigarette. The Princess was entirely unaware of the identity of these cigarettes during test. After smoking the four cigarettes, the Princess was asked to designate by number her choice. Without hesitation she replied, "No. 3"... which was OLD GOLD.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM, April 4—Other matters of interest considered at the council meeting in Putnam were the following:

Another topic brought before the council was the city parking regulations in the down town section that have presented a problem to the city council. These were voted to be changed and rewritten in the city charter upon a motion made by Alderman Chadwick. Repairs in the fire and police stations were discussed and it was voted to publish notices for bids, the work to be let to the lowest bidder. The estimated cost of the work to be done in the police station was $345 and a total of $432 in the central fire station. Other work on number two fire station was voted to be done.

Alderman Migneault brought before the council a motion to repair a high wall at the lower end of Main street near the new armory that is now in a dangerous condition. The matter was referred to the highway committee to report at another meeting. The street lighting committee with Alderman Dean as chairman reported upon the number of changes that were made in the city lighting system on Providence, Main and South Main and Bridge streets. The report was favorably accepted by the council.

The water question loomed up again when Mayor Richard read a letter from a Hartford firm of lawyers informing the council that the vote cast at the recent city meeting was not binding, but was "only an expression of public sentiment."

The mayor appointed a committee consisting of Alderman Ames, Chadwick, Dean, Dubois and Ryan, to confer with the city water commissioner (who upholds the plan of the cement reservoir) to compromise and see if a plan can be drawn up that will be favorable to the council.

Mayor Richard stated that he thought the water commissioners who have been acting contrary to the council's orders should function like every other city department and be under the direction of the city council. The mayor's statements caused considerable criticism from the council members.

The matter of a special city meeting for special appropriation was laid upon the table until a later date.

A committee, consisting of Alderman Dean, and Dubois was appointed by the mayor to select possibilities for a corporation counsel to succeed the late Charles L. Torrey.

The police report for the month showed 17 arrests, drunks, 10, operating a gaming house 1, larceny 2, gaming 4, cases were disposed of as follows: Committed to jail 1, cases continued 5, probation officer 3. Fines and costs amounted to $84.63.

CONN. SCHOOLS HAVE GOOD SEASONS

The basketball season for eastern Connecticut's high schools, which closed last Saturday was, on the main, successful. Although no team was outstanding in state rankings, still there seemed to be a more general season of fine play than in some previous years.

Windham Strong.

Windham failed to make the Yale tourney this year but still she established a fine record and was picked as first alternate for the New Haven team. Chapman Tech had a good year winning the majority of her games and getting the championship of the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league back after dropping it for a season. Academy started miserably but ended with play that could stand up the best anywhere among the high schools. Putnam slipped a bit toward the close of the year but otherwise was fine.

Stonington had its best year in some time, getting the right to go to the Storrs tourney while others to do well were Bacon Academy, and Tourtellotte High. Plainfield and Killingly played some nice games and then at other times were not so good, but they didn't lower the supremacy of teams in this section a great deal, being able to hold their own.

Good Prospects For 1928-29.

Most of the teams have fairly good prospects for the coming season. Windham will lose practically the entire club while only one 1928 regular is slated to wear the Academy's colors next year. But there are above-the-average replacements here and things are not so bad as at first thought.

There are several buildings on Chase street, and the occupants include the LaVia paint shop, the Thavenet auto machinist shop and the Chase Street Radiator Works.

NOANK

FIREMEN CLEAR $655 ON THEIR YEAR'S DANCES

At the meeting of Noank fire company, held in their rooms Tuesday evening, when John Ellis called the roll 25 smoke-eaters answered. Foreman Walter Palmer was in the chair. The basketball committee made its report and the books showed that it was a little in arrears. The Noank Nuggets were taken over by the fire company the early part of the season and their record was won 8, lost 10 games. The manager was Hubert Ellis, captain, Keith Ebbetts, with Fred Fitzpatrick treasurer. The dance committee chairman, Sam Carson, reported how much money was cleared on the dances for 11 months; $655.56 was put away in the smoke-eaters' safe. The biggest night, with 325 dance fans, $92 was taken in at the door. The men on the committee were Sam Carson, chairman; Fred Fitzpatrick, John Ellis, Merton Beebe and Rollin Fathbun. The sum of $75.53 was raised for the siren fund, which alarm the fire fighters are trying to have on top of the fire house, instead of having the church bell rung. A check of $5 was sent the fire company from R. Brocky for putting out a bad chimney fire. Quick work of the firemen saved the house. It was voted by the members to purchase from the Noank Crescents the backboard and basket for next year. The Mechanics' lodge sent word up that Capt. At the piano was Davy Park.

USED RABALM PILES DISAPPEARED IN FIVE DAYS

"A short time ago I was suffering from piles and had tried several so-called remedies with no effect. An acquaintance of mine recommended Rabalm very strongly, and after using for two days, I felt greatly relieved, and in five days my trouble had completely disappeared. As this took place about a month ago, I feel that enough time has elapsed to know that the healing has been complete. Rabalm has done all it is claimed to do, and much more than I expected. I have every faith in Rabalm." (This testimonial letter, recently received, came from Montreal. For obvious reasons we cannot mention the name of the person here. But name and address will be supplied on request.)

Rabalm is the result of a scientific effort to find an effective remedy for piles. If you are eagerly looking for help without an operation, you will find the great joy of relief and recovery by using RABALM. Get some today. Two sizes, 50-cents and $1.00 containing 3 times as much. For sale by all druggists.

LEGIONNAIRES ADDRESSED BY STATE'S ATTORNEY

The local post of the American Legion auxiliary enjoyed a social Monday evening, 40 men gathering in the Red Cross room, then holding their meeting in St. Jean de Baptiste society rooms. State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown gave an inspiring talk to the men, telling of the work they can do community-wise, and of what the order will mean to them in the future. District Commander Morris Peck, of Lyme, was a guest and addressed the men. Refreshments were served. Another meeting is planned in two weeks, when there will be boxing bouts, and fancy roller skating.

The women of the Congregational church served a dinner of cold corned beef, escalloped potato, cabbage salad, rolls, pie, cheese and coffee at the church conference Wednesday. The tables were decorated with forsythia, flowering Florida shrubs and ferns. Mrs. Andrew McNicol, president, and Mrs. J. T. Stewart, vice-president of the Ladies' society, were in charge. They were assisted by Mrs. C. D. Wolf, Mrs. W. E. Marshall and Mrs. East Wilcox. Mrs. E. B. Slocor was in charge of the dining room; the waitresses were Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs. H. E. Faust, Mrs. L. G. Buckingham, Mrs. F. D. Ballou, Mrs. B. L. French, Mrs. S. R. Waters, Mrs. N. H. Parkhurst, Mrs. Grace Webster, Mrs. John Mukant, Mrs. John Whalley and Misses M. A. Burdick, Ellen Faust and Helen Brown.

The meeting of the Methodist Men's class has been postponed, from Friday night to some future date.

Mrs. John Perkins remains very ill and is under the care of Miss Alice Driscoll, R. N.

Miss Priscilla Scates has completed three years as a student nurse in the Children's hospital school of nursing, Boston, and will be graduated on the 30th of this month.

A Good Friday service is to be held at the Congregational church on Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

More About Banana Bill.

Of what you have just make the best
And leave to other folk the rest.
Banana Bill.

It was two days before Bobby Coon again saw Scrapper the Kingbird. At least, he didn't see him to talk to. Scrapper was too busy to talk. Mrs. Scrapper had decided where their new nest was to be built and she expected Scrapper to help in the hunt for good nesting material. What Mrs. Scrapper expects from Scrapper she usually gets. So Bobby Coon's curiosity remained unsatisfied.

But on the third day Scrapper flew over where Bobby was. He was out of sight of Mrs. Scrapper there and he decided that both the time and the place were good for a rest. At first, he didn't see Bobby Coon. It wasn't until Bobby spoke that Scrapper discovered him.

"About that fellow you call Banana Bill, what is the color of his coat?" asked Bobby.

"Well," began Scrapper, "his coat is mostly black. Yes, sir, it is mostly black. His tail is short and that is black. Above, at the beginning of the tail, is a big white spot. Beneath is a blood-red spot. His neck is bright yellow. It's just as yellow as a sunflower. Around his eyes and throat there are no feathers and the skin is green. Then, when you add that big bill of his, he makes quite a sight in the sun."

"But," protested Bobby, "you haven't told me what color his bill is. Is it black or yellow?"

"It is yellowish-green, or greenish-yellow all streaked with other colors," declared Scrapper.

"That's all very well," said Bobby, "but you haven't given me any idea at all how big he is. He might have all those colors and still be a little bit of a fellow."

"You're wrong," declared Scrapper. "Haven't I already told you that he has a great big bill—one of the biggest bills I know of? How could he be a little fellow with such a big bill? He couldn't and he isn't. He's a little bigger than Crecker the Grackle and smaller than Blacky the Crow. His tail is rather short and that makes him look funny, for he has more bill than tail."

"Does he walk around?" inquired Bobby.

"Not that I've ever heard of," replied Scrapper. "He may go down on the ground, but I've never seen him do it. He is a bird of the trees. He loves to sit way up in the top of a tree and take a sunbath. Yes, sir, he does so. And he builds his nest in a hole in a tree. I found that out by accident."

"How was that?" inquired Bobby.

"Well," said Scrapper, "I just happened to be sitting in a certain tree down there when I noticed a hole in the trunk of another tree. I was wondering about that hole when who should come along but Mrs. Banana Bill. She looked all around, but didn't see me. Evidently she thought there wasn't anybody there, for all of a sudden she popped right into that hole. I was so surprised I nearly fell off my perch.

He loves to sit way up in the top of a tree and take a sun bath.

Somehow, I hadn't thought of her as nesting in a hole in a tree. She didn't look like that kind of a person. I waited around a long time, but she didn't come out. Then I saw old Banana Bill himself. He looked as if he were keeping guard. I asked him if that was his home and he finally admitted that it was. There's one thing sure, and that is, somebody else has to make the hole. That big bill was never intended for cutting wood. There's Mrs. Scrapper calling me and I can't talk any longer. If you've got any more questions to ask, why don't you try Boomer the Nighthawk? He's been down there."

"It's too bad Grace isn't here."
"Isn't it! We tried to get hold of her, but she hasn't a telephone."

And so the girls went to the matinee without her. It isn't the first good time she has missed, simply because her home isn't within speaking distance of her friends.

Today everyone recognizes the convenience and protection of a telephone in the home. People who "get along" without one perhaps don't see the other half of the picture:—that if their names aren't in the telephone directory, if their friends can't "call them up," they are cut off from a whole world of people who rely almost entirely on the telephone to make arrangements. Cut off, too, should there be a message of vital importance.

Now-a-days, a telephone is part of the equipment of every modern home. For its value lies not only in the calls you can make, but also in the calls you can receive.

And it costs so little!

For as little as $2.25 a month you can enjoy the benefits of a telephone in your home. Convenience, economy, protection, contact with the outside world at all times, day and night. All this at so small a cost to you.

The above rate applies in the local base rate area.

SCORE OF ISSUES AT HIGH RECORDS IN MARKET OF STRONG UNDERTONE

NEW YORK, April 3—(AP)—Overcoming the liquidation inspired by the unexpectedly large increase in stock exchange member loans and a large grist of unfavorable trade news and a week-end profit-taking, the stock market today displayed a strong undertone as more than a score issues were marked up to record high levels. Prices sagged a little at the opening, but speculators for the advance quickly assumed control and did not relinquish their advantage for the rest of the day. Total sales crossed the 3,000,000 share mark for the 19th consecutive full session.

In addition to the huge increase of $317,000,000 in loans, Wall street was faced with a poor freight car traffic statement, an increase in crude oil production, renewal of gold exports to France, a bad break in the rubber market and the calling of about $20,000,000 in loans. A few of the recent favorites sold off, but there were no real points of weakness.

Persistent, but unconfirmed reports, that the eastern railroad executives had finally agreed upon the major points of a consolidation program helped to revive bullish enthusiasm and started a brisk buying demonstration in several of the carrier stocks. Pittsburgh & West Virginia soared 15 points to a new top at 150 and then dipped to 144 1-4. Wabash moved up more than six points to a new high at 80 1-2. Reading touched a new top at 113 1-2 and "Nickel Plate" at 141 3-4, but lost most, or all of their gains. Canadian Pacific, Lackawanna, New York Central and a few others forfeited their gains and closed at small net declines.

Wright Aeronautical was again the spectacular feature. Opening five points lower at 127, the stock soared to 141, dipped to 132, rebounded to a new high at 142 and then sagged to 132, unchanged on the day. Curtiss Aeroplane closed fractionally higher at 55 1-2 after running up and down between 53 1-4 and 51 1-4. Packard touched a new top at 78 and then slipped back to 71 1-8 for a net loss of about a point on the day.

PROF. PINOL SUGGESTS BROADER AMERICANISM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 4—The Lions club at its meeting yesterday, had as a guest of honor District Governor Phil Jacob of Norwalk. Prof. Francisco Pinol was the chief speaker and delivered a highly interesting address on Some Aspects of Co-Americanism. The thought the speaker conveyed was the necessity of becoming familiar with the language of our southern neighbors and to foster international lectures, so that the people of the different countries could become familiar with each others' customs and habits. At the conclusion of his speech, a rising vote of thanks was tendered Prof. Pinol.

The meeting of the New London city council last night was highly interesting. The object of the meeting was to pass on the yearly budget appropriation which this year is set at $1,542,872. Sharp and caustic remarks flowed freely between council members and Mayor May, who is waging a stiff fight against the increased expense of collecting back taxes, brought about by the arrangement recently made with Hibbard N. Alexander. Mayor May vehemently outlined his reasons for opposing the method adopted to collect taxes from delinquents, argued that the increased expense was illegal and absolutely uncalled for. However many of those present were not opposed to the measure and came right out in the open and so expressed themselves.

At the annual meeting of the United Neighbor Welfare council, Mrs. Laura A. Colgnan was elected president. Other officers elected are: First vice president, Mrs. James N. Kelly; second vice president, John R. Leeks; secretary, Miss Lori Taylor; treasurer, Col. Henry S. Dorsey.

Miss Mattie Goss, who is to become the bride of Arthur Daniels April 21, was given a linen shower last night. The affair was held at the prospective bride's home. Her mother Mrs. Fred Goss was hostess. Attractive decorations were a feature throughout the home. About forty attended the affair and Miss Goss received many beautiful pieces of linen. A supper was served early in the evening, after which games, music and dancing provided entertainment.

Members of the Past Chief Daughters' club of Lady Aberdeen lodge, daughters of Scotia were entertained last night at the home of Mrs. Iona Keaney, of Bank street. At the close of the pleasant evening the hostess served refreshments.

At a chicken pie dinner last night for the benefit of W. W. Perkins relief Corps over $77 was received by the organization. Mrs. Katherine Cavanaugh, assisted by Mrs. George Weal, Mrs. Joseph K. Maynard, Mrs. Sophia Wilcox, Mrs. Ella Tew, Mrs. Leroy Buddington, Mrs. William Packer, Mrs. Elmer E. Kenerson and Mrs. Delphine Rotters, was the hostess. The dinner was held in the Union lodge rooms which were artistically decorated.

Mrs. Hibbard N. Alexander, wife of the recently appointed tax collector here, was unanimously elected president of Circle No. 1 of the First Baptist church at a meeting held in the church parlors last night. After business had been transacted those present spent a social evening with games.

Friends of Miss Hazel Wolverton, secretary to Arthur P. Anderson of Groton, tendered her an Easter shower last night at the home of Miss Grace Buddington, Bayside avenue. Many attractive and useful gifts were received by Miss Wolverton who is soon to wed Merton McGrath, of Mystic.

A total of $4,894.75 has been received so far from donations given to the New London Visiting Nurse association. All of the money that has been pledged in the drive. When the remainder has been collected the total donations are expected to exceed $5,000.

During last month the visiting nurses made 904 visits to 536 patients. Most of the calls were nursing visits.

At a meeting of Cushing council No. 4, held last night in Brainard Masonic temple, William E. Patterson was elected illustrious master for the third consecutive time. Other officers elected were: Illustrious principal of the work, Ellery N. Edwards; treasurer, Fred S. English; recorder, Frederick W. Edgerton; captain of the guard, Morris W. Rooff; conductor, Alfred J. Phillips; steward, Francis S. Read; sentinel, Douglas F. Loughead.

Master William Thompson, of 171 Main street; Alfred Branch, 33 Beldell street and Patrick Harkins, 5 State street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The police believe that they have put an end to the frequent destruction of electric lights on Hamilton street, where the bridge of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad spans that thoroughfare, for two United States Coast Guard sailors, stationed at the Academy, were detected last night deliberately smashing the lights. They were John J. Mahle and Guy Feltnor. In the police court this morning they were fined $25 and costs. On numerous occasions the lights, which cost $17 each have been smashed through sheer maliciousness and repeated complaints of their destruction have been made to the police. After a lull of several weeks the practice was resumed this week. Patrolman Braxton Hill was assigned to the specific task of detecting the light-smashers and to do it he was ordered to make his investigation out of uniform. Last night about 10 o'clock the officer, who was loitering about the bridge observed Mahle and Feltnor as they approached the passage beneath the bridge to go to the academy. He saw the sailors pick up stones and hurl them through the globes. The pair were taken to police headquarters and locked up for the night. Mahle and Feltnor had been drinking and admitted it. They also admitted the destruction of the lights, for both pleaded guilty.

Leon D. Holloway, 51 Alewife avenue, was charged with breach of the peace, but because of circumstances, the case was continued to Monday next and Holloway was placed in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. Patrolman Albert Iverson, who was off duty last night was driving through Alewife avenue when he saw a woman running toward his car. The woman was only scantily attired. She proved to be Mrs. Holloway who declared that she was fleeing from her home because her husband had beaten her. The officer accompanied Mrs. Holloway back to her home and there arrested Holloway. Both showed facial disfigurations as a result of the brawl. When court convened today it was ascertained that Mrs. Holloway did not desire that her husband be prosecuted and had telephoned to Desk Sergeant William Babcock that she did not wish to appear as a witness against Holloway. In order that the charge might be further investigated the continuance was ordered.

Elmo Jones, a sailor, has a peculiar idea of his ability as a fighter and he probably realizes that fact today. Jones was on State street about 9.30 o'clock last night and approaching Patrolman Harry Watterson, he informed the officer that a fight was in progress on Railroad avenue. Watterson went to the supposed site of the fight, accompanied by Jones. Hardly had Watterson and Jones reached Railroad avenue than Jones started to provide the fight, for he took aim at Watterson's jaw and attempted to plant his solid right on the objective. Watterson saw the punch coming and avoided it and in another instant he took a hand at the punching, for he crashed over a smash to Jones' jaw that stopped the sailor in his tracks. He then arrested Jones who was locked up for the night. In court today he was fined $5, but execution of the sentence was suspended.

Angelo Loyacona was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith on a warrant charging him with non-support, but Loyacona was not presented in court. It is understood that Loyacona has made an arrangement to properly take care of his wife and if he does as he has agreed to he will avoid prosecution.

Bernice Hokanson of Gales Ferry and Clarence Faulk, 733 Bank street, were charged with violation of the city's parking laws in parking their automobiles on Union and State streets, respectively, longer than is permitted. Miss Hokanson was released with a warning Faulk did not present himself in court, so his bond of $3 was declared forfeited.

Two cases of intoxication were tried. One of the men, who was arrested last night, has been before the court 15 times for this offense. His case was continued to Monday next. A sailor from the United States coast guard station, who was arrested for intoxication by the shore patrol, was taken back to the pier for discipline by the military authorities.

The students at Connecticut College for Women, about 600, left for their homes today for the Easter vacation of two weeks.

The police have received instructions to enforce the city's traffic regulations. Already traffic is increasing daily and that automobile drivers will be made to realize that the rules are to be enforced rigidly, prior to the summer's heavy influx of machines, it is considered necessary to make an early start on ordering all violators into court. As a result of the orders, Henry Keeney, 72 Baker avenue, Groton, and Walter D. Brown, of Gales Ferry, today were arraigned in court respective. Each posted bond of $3 for his appearance. Keeney parked his auto overtime on Water street. Brown parked longer than permitted on State street.

The City's fire alarm system is constantly being improved and today the facilities and equipment for handling fires is better than it ever was. With a complete fleet of motor-driven ladders and pumpers and new apparatus every one is excellent operating condition. It is claimed that there is not a better equipped department in the state, that is, for a city of the same population as New London. The fire alarm system has also been vastly improved. New boxes have been installed so that areas taken care of by certain boxes have been reduced. Heretofore, boxes took care of wide territory, but through the additional boxes the area has been greatly reduced. In some instances only one block intervenes between box locations. At present 72 boxes are in operation and others will be added from time to time.

It is probable that in the event of the proposed budget ordinance being passed, which provides for an annual salary of $3,000 for the newly appointed tax collector, Hibbard N. Alexander, there will be a referendum vote taken, that the citizens may have the opportunity of deciding whether that amount of salary will be paid the collector, when but $2,000 was the salary of a former collector, Allen C. Richards. The latter is to be retained in office, but in a clerical capacity. The ordinance has had its first reading and two more readings in process of passage are necessary. Fifteen days will then elapse before the measure becomes operative. If then the ordinance becomes a law, there are many taxpayers, who, it is understood, will petition for this special election.

Mrs. Raymond Dayton and infant son, of Waterford; Mrs. Pilave Paladini and infant daughter, 27 Farrington avenue, and Everett Chapman, Poquonoc Bridge, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, April 4—(AP)—It was essentially a weather market today in wheat, with prices fluctuating rapidly, but slipping at the last on account of rains Southwest. Foreign interests appeared to be selling July delivery of wheat here, and replacing it with May.

Wheat values closed irregular at 1-8c net decline to 1-8c advance. Corn finished 1-8c to 7-8c net down, oats at 1-4c to 1-2c off and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7c.

Nervousness perfaded the wheat trade from start to finish. During much of the time, however, the market averaged higher, owing largely to reports of high winds and need of rain southwest and west, but also because of continued advices of heavy gamerally winter killing east of the Mississippi. In this connection, a comprehensive trade summary indicated abandonment of at least 5,000,000 acres of soft winter wheat, with Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Kentucky acreage at least 50 per cent gone.

On the other hand, as the day approached an end, all price gains in the wheat market were virtually wiped out, and pit attention as a rule was centered on reports of rain in various sections of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. Meanwhile, the seaboard held 10,000 bushels of North American wheat had been bought today for export.

Corn weakness accompanied news that 10,000 bushels additional corn would be brought here from Kansas City. It was also announced that corn planting has progressed as far north as Oklahoma. Rains beneficial to heavily seeded oats had a bearish effect on the oats market.

Provisions became easier as a result of scattered selling, although hog values were tending upward.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

The regeneration of an East Side boxer, through the travail of war and the love of a woman is the granite story of First National's "The Patent Leather Kid," coming to the Breed theatre next Sunday after a long Broadway run.

"The Patent Leather Kid" stars Richard Barthelmess, and is an ideal vehicle for the artistry of this young screen star whose work in "Tol'able David," "Broken Blossoms" and "Way Down East" will never be forgotten. In "The Patent Leathre Kid" Barthelmess is said to exceed even his finest efforts in these former vehicles.

Ideal story material was offered in "The Patent Leather Kid" from the great epic of the U. S. tank corps by Rupert Hughes. The adaptation was by Adele Rogers St. John and the continuity by Winifred Dunn.

"The Patent Leather Kid" is an Alfred Santell production, under the production management of Al Rockett and photographed by Arthur Edeson. With an all-star cast and some of the finest war spectacles ever seen on the screen, it has been rated as one of the biggest pictures of the decade.

It also offers a new screen star, Molly ODay, who plays opposite Barthelmess and who has proved a screen find by her clever work in this picture.

Palace Theatre

"The Spirit of Broadway," which is the most pretentious musical revue on the vaudeville stage will be the headliner in the Palace theatre today, tomorrow and Saturday. Heading the cast is Frank Gould, Broadway's famous black face comic. He is also assisted by Phil Porterfield, Giles Kent and a company of versatile entertainers. A chorus of ten beautiful Zeigfeld girls present some wonderful dance numbers. The settings are gorgeous and the costumes new and colorful. The management of the Palace are to be congratulated in being able to present an act of this calibre to its patrons. Four other big time acts will make up this big show while on the screen Fred Thomson and his wonder horse Silver King will appear in "Arizona Nights." They are going to give the boys, young and old, a glimpse of real western frontier life, truly authentic in every detail, and as thrilling as any exploit from the pages of Fenimore Cooper.

Fred, who in his comparatively short career, has been an athletic hero at Princeton, a boy scout leader in Nevada, a chaplain to the U. S. forces in Flanders, dedicated his movie career to the boys of the United States and he tries to give them the type of picture that they really want. In "Arizona Nights" he manages to give the greatest performance of a real western that has left Hollywood in many a long year.

Others in the cast are Nora Lane, J. P. McGowan, Bill Courtright, Bottle Williams, William McCormick, Dan Peterson, and Silver King. Lloyd Ingraham, who has directed most of the Thomson pictures, also handled this one.

Strand Theatre

Tonight is your last chance to see "Lightning" a picturization of Zane Grey's story. It is a fast-moving, highly dramatic picture of the lives of a couple of girls from the east, and a couple of boys from the open spaces of the west with a remarkable horse whose portrayal of a wild king of a herd of outlaws was as clever a piece of equine acting as has been seen on the screen in some time. The story in brief tells of an outlaw horse who as king of a herd of wild horses, is at war with the men of the plains who are bound to catch him for the reward that is offered. How he escapes the trap they set for him, and battles another wild horse for the supremacy of the herd is thrilling, and rounds out this highly interesting and entertaining film. In the cast are Margaret Livingston, Pat Harmon, Quinn Williams and Johnny Ralston.

"Slaves of Beauty," Fox Films version of Nila Wilcox Putnam's sensational story "The Grandflapper" is a colorful and fascinating comedy-drama of a woman who thought she was too young for her husband. Olive Tell, Richard Walling, Earle Fox and Holmes Herbert are some of the screen favorites in the important roles. Pathos, laughter, romance and suspense—enacted among the humble homes of the poor and the lavish beauty salons of the Slaves of Beauty, make up this interesting picture.

"Aesop's Fables is light and amusing.

TODAY'S EVENTS

On this date 150 years ago North Carolina ratified the Articles of Confederation.

Today is Holy Thursday, commonly called Maundy Thursday, a day of picturesque ceremonies in many European countries.

However, with the single exception of King Alfonso of Spain, it is doubtful if any European sovereign today will perform the ancient ceremony of washing the feet of a dozen of his subjects.

In Westminister Abbey today King George, in the presence of a notable gathering, will perform the picturesque and historic ceremony of distributing the King's Maundy money to the poor of the realm.

Frigidaire

"Electric refrigeration is serving as the housewife's day and night representative in the meat market," declared Carlton Brown, Frigidaire representative in this city. "This modern method of food preservation is on duty in the market 24 hours of the day keeping meats exactly the condition the housewife would wish.

"Careful purchasers have learned five requirements for good meat, and Frigidaire is responsible for meeting practically all of these requirements in the most satisfactory manner." The five points listed for meat purchasers by Mr. Brown are:

1—Meat should be bright in color.

2—It should be elastic but firm to the touch.

3—It should have a clean and fresh odor.

4—It should be juicy and marbled with fat.

5—Should be cut across the grain.

"Proper refrigeration will retain the bright natural color of the meat, will keep it firm but elastic, and will preserve the clean freshness of its odor," he says. "The meat is naturally juicy, electric refrigeration will retain this desirable quality, and will make the meat easy to slice across the grain.

"Beef should have a bright red color while pork should be a dark pink. Veal should also be pink, but less firm than beef. These natural colors of meat can be preserved only in a constant temperature which is neither too cold nor too warm.

"After the meat leaves the market, the housewife should be sure that the care taken by the dealer to keep it properly refrigerated is not wasted by improper preservation after it reaches her home. The wrapping paper should be removed as soon as possible, and if the meat is to be retained for a time before cooking, it should be kept in a constant cold temperature. When the meat is to be kept for several hours in the home, extra care should be taken to keep it from either getting too warm or freezing. A Frigidaire in the kitchen will do this admirably."

AMERICAN LEGION FAVORS THE UNIVERSAL DRAFT

The American Legion is in favor of the universal draft, according to a statement issued by H. O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion Tuesday. With regard to the universal draft the statement says:

"In 1921 the American Legion set to work to fulfill the idea of a universal draft in order that in the event of another war the scandal that developed after the last war would not take place again. Following the last war, it was said that for every white cross that arose over the body of an American hero asleep in France, there arose also on the hills of America the marble mansion of a war profiteer. The American Legion viewed this situation with clear eyes. They determined first, that all that fattened off the war should be made to disgorge, where possible. Secondly they determined that a law should go on the books whereby in future wars such profiteering would be impossible. So that all who served did so without profit. A committee of able, intelligent and experienced men were appointed by the national commander to make a study of the form legislation should take to accomplish the plan the Legion had in mind. This committee studied the question for a year and recommended a legislation measure which has since became known as the Legion's Capper-Johnson bill to provide the universal draft. The legion in 1923 indorsed this bill at its national convention, and each succeeding national convention of the legion has also unqualifiedly indorsed it. The enactment of this measure has been set for the present year as the Legions major legislative effort. The Capper bill in the senate is S-1259. The Johnson bill in the house is HR-5313. The measures are identical. April 6th is the anniversary of our declaration of war. To all those who can see the benefit to the country as a whole in the passage of the Capper-Johnson bill the American Legion appeals for support. They ask that they urge their representatives and senators not only to vote for the bill, but to see that congress does not adjourn until action is taken. The American Legion will have shortly a pamphlet ready for the general public. To those who wish to enlighten themselves on this most important subject these pamphlets will be available. To all those who seek peace and not war do as the Legion requests and we can be sure that war will be undertaken only as a last resort because when you take the profit out of war you hit at its very foundation. Under this law the entire manpower of the country without stint or limitation, must be subject to the call of the country for military or industrial service, without distinction as to wages for similar classes of effort. All the natural resources of the nation must be so fixed that no one can make a profit by reason of the war. It must be continued as in peace time and at peace prices. Those that will not work industrially must be made to fight. Those who cannot fight must do the highest class of industrial labor to which they are fitted. Interest rates must remain at their normal levels and neither capital or labor shall be permitted to receive more than its normal return by way of increment. Inflation must be prevented and the dollar not allowed to drop in its purchasing value within the limits of our country. The press of the country are in favor of its passage. The republican and democratic parties in their national conventions of 1924 pledged themselves to the enactment of the universal draft legislation. The average business man, big or little, favors this legislation. In spite of profiteering during the war it can be said that business men have no inherent desire to turn profiteer. Those that would oppose the enactment of such a legislation constitute a formidable opposition because their motives are selfish. This class will not admit that they desire to profit by war, for to do so would bring down the condemnation of the nation on them. They are forced to say that the bill is imperfect, or that so much power in the hands of the president would be dangerous to the nation. At the very least they ask that legislation be delayed. The time for action is now. It will not cost one cent to place the universal draft upon the statute books. If fortune should bless us, and there be no more wars, its enactment will not affect the life of the nation. But should war come, we can meet it as all thoughtful people know it should be met—promptly and efficiently by a united nation in arms—through equal service from all, and special profit for none.

The family plans to visit Mrs. Whitten's relatives in Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Maine, while en route to their destination, expecting to reach Maine in time for the spring conference, of which Rev. Mr. Whitten is a member. His successor, Rev. G. W. The meeting will be a religious service, with the president, Mrs. William Weaver, in charge. After the opening, Mrs. Weaver will turn the meeting over to Mrs. Albrt G. Miner, who, at the request of the president, will have charge of the Lenten service.

Today (Holy Thursday) at Sacred Heart church, mass will be celebrated at 7:30. Friday morning at the same hour, the mass of the pre-sanctified will be read by the pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn. After the mass there will be veneration of the Cross. At this church Friday evening at 7:30, there will be stations of the cross, followed by veneration of the Cross. Saturday morning the Easter water will be blessed and distributed at 7 o'clock. Mass will follow at 8.

There will be a sunrise service Easter morning at 7:30 at the Norwich Town Methodist church. This is a union meeting of the two C. E. societies. All Endeavorers are privileged to be present, also any friends interested. The two C. E. societies are the Congregational and Methodist.

Envelopes have been distributed for the special Easter offering at the First Congregational church, to be placed upon the contribution plate at morning worship Easter Sunday.

Having passed a week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orrin F. Merry, Miss Marjory Merry, who holds a secretarial position in a large business house in Hartford, returned to that city the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Orrin F. Merry left Wednesday afternoon for Gardner, Maine, being called there by the critical illness of Mr. Merry's brother, Levi Merry.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Norwich Town, were callers Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Bressette, of Hallville. POETRY

April's Here Again

I am so glad that April's here again,
April with her alternate sun and rain,
When I may hear the robin greet the dawn
Of dawn with his melodious refrain;
When I may walk with beauty down the lane,
And marvel at each budding tree and flower;
When I may sense in nature's mighty power
Its quickening bliss, for which my soul is athirst.
When I may wander by the brook and hear
Its lyric laugh, and hark unto the breeze
And to the soothing rhythm of the rain.
Lo, all my heart goes out to God, in sheer Gratitude for blessings such as these.
I am so glad that April's here again.

—George Franklin Merritt, Newport.

The Trailing Arbutus

In the fresh April spring when gladness blows,
In the spring of joyous rains, I leave the shore
And walk through melting woods where long before
I lived, pink flowers have bloomed above the snow.
The brook breaks through the ice and sings below
This wooded hillside. Here, forevermore
These flowers, perhaps once themes of Indian lore,
Shall wake from winter sleep, and love and grow.
Oh, white arbutuses, pink, white, pale pink,
Why in deep mosses do you hide from me?
Beauty too tender you would spare, I think,
The unloved winter pain and jealousy.
Fragrance that comes before the robins sing,
You bring new life and make us long for spring!

—Brenda Green (age 17) in St. Nicholas.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Ted—Did I ever tell you the story about my hunting dogs?

Tom—Well, I don't know. Is it a serial?—Detroit News.

Oculist—Your eyes are in a bad way. You'll have to give them a rest.

College Student—That's all right—I'm going back to college this week, anyway.—Life.

Father (indicating statue)—That is Sir Thomas Tiptop, my boy. He gave big sums to the schools.

Son—So that's him. Is it? Why didn't he work out the beastly things himself?—Tit-Bits.

"What sort of time is your friend having on his motor tour?"

"Great! I've had two letters from him—one from a police station and the other from a hospital."—Tottenham Herald.

"What you want is relief."

"Yes," said Farmer Corntossel, "in order to keep the dear old home going I want to get myself some kind of a government job."—Washington Star.

Stout theatrical person (engaging room): "Window's a bit small. Wouldn't be much use to me in an emergency."

Landlady: "There ain't goin' to be any such emergency. My terms for actors is weekly in advance."—Boston News Bureau.

Medical examiner (to young student): "Suppose there were a gunpowder explosion and a man were blown into the air. You, as the nearest doctor, are called in. What would you do?"

"Wait for him to come down again," was the prompt reply.—Good Hardware.

A voice from the audience:

"You seem to know a lot, sir, about a farmer's difficulties. May I ask a question about a very important one? How can you tell a bad egg?"

The lecturer waited until the laughter had died away.

"If I had anything to tell a bad egg I think I should break it gently," he whispered.—Montreal Family Herald.

UTLEY & JONES EVER A POPULAR PRESCRIPTION STORE

Many houses pride themselves on what their name has come to mean to the public. Utley & Jones of 158 Main street also has this same distinction in the druggist business. Careful preparation of medical supplies, carried on through many years of business in Norwich, has built up for Utley & Jones a name which stands for purity and properly proportioned medical supplies.

Thousands of people who have patronized this drug store in its years of service to the public have built up this reputation for Utley & Jones. Nothing good can ever come of careless service and improper handling of public trust. Realizing this Utley & Jones have always taken particular care in selecting their staff of licensed pharmacists and today a staff as good as may be obtained are with this firm, ready to give that same efficient service that has been a watchword with this company through the years.

Some months ago a change became necessary owing to the growth of our business and in selecting our present location on Main street we feel that we have bettered ourselves. We now have a large store, thus allowing a better display of the large assortment of medical and surgical supplies and today we can truthfully say that practically any need in the druggist line can be immediately supplied from our store.

In giving efficient and expert service the name of Utley & Jones appearing on anything in the medical line means that that article is of the best obtainable and has been put up by experienced men. We do not expect to do all the business in the medical line but that portion of medical trade which comes to our firm is assured a type of service which is above reproach.

If you have not already been educated to be a patron of this store let us serve you the next time you need anything obtainable in a drug store. We feel certain that you will soon become another of the hundreds of patrons who already have learned to put their medical trust in our hands and have found no occasion to regret their selection of a druggist to supply their wants.

Where Quality and Service are the Watchword

NEED ANY PLUMBING DONE? THEN CALL J. A. FITZGERALD

Maybe some people in eastern Connecticut experienced trouble with the heating plants in their houses this past winter. Perhaps some radiator just simply refused to get hot and stay that way. If any of these things are true at your home then you surely do need the services of J. A. Fitzgerald of 81 Franklin street and should hurry and call 2267, Norwich.

Plumbing, steam and hot water heating is a specialty with Mr. Fitzgerald and there is no need of anyone suffering for lack of proper heat when a phone call will bring an expert plumber to the house for repairs.

There is no time like the present for a survey of the heating equipment of a house. In the warm months repairs can be made to any heating plant, but it is only while the heating plant is in operation, that a real study can be made of the individual problem.

Perhaps a return pipe has become clogged; again it may be possible that there is a sink in the return feed pipe and a trap has been formed which catches the water as it returns to the boiler and thus prevents live steam from reaching the radiators except when a forced fire is kept.

These things can be quickly remedied by an experienced plumber and Mr. Fitzgerald guarantees that type of service to every customer.

THE DEL-HOFF IS KNOWN AS THE HOMELIKE HOTEL

To the traveling man or woman the hotel which offers a homelike atmosphere is always one which attracts them. We feel that the Del-Hoff Hotel of Norwich, located at 36 Broadway, is just that type of a stopping place.

It has ever been the custom of the management of this hotel to make their patrons feel at home and at ease immediately upon their arrival within the doors. This atmosphere of friendship has made a name for this hotel and perhaps that is why the Del-Hoff is chosen by so many when they make a stop over in Norwich for one day or several weeks.

Courtesy to patrons and a desire to see that their every want is cared for is the watchword of the management, and, in turn, they have found that patrons have spread the name of Del-Hoff wherever they have gone after leaving Norwich.

If you have not already been a guest of this hotel we invite you to register here the next time you are in Norwich. Recommend us to your friends and rest assured that you are safe in doing so and that they will thank you for suggesting that they stop next at the Del-Hoff hotel, the friendly stopping place of Norwich.

WHY NOT LET THE NORWICH GLASS CO. HANDLE YOUR GLASS

There is hardly a person in Norwich who at some time or other is not in need of having some broken glass repaired, a mirror resilvered, some glass polishing done, beveling work or cutting handled for them. At 5 Bath street is located the Norwich Glass company, a company which has already stood ready to render instant service in these lines.

Hundreds of dollars of damage may be caused to houses, materials, machinery, or, in fact, to almost any article, through the neglect to repair or replace broken glass which is meant to protect that particular thing.

A broken glass in a house at this season of the year costs money every day it remains in that position. Cold air is bound to enter through the opening and this of course means that extra heat is required to keep things at a livable temperature. A sudden rain or sleet storm may be the means of destruction.

Not only must a glass be broken to be dangerous. A cracked glass in a window may give way some night during a wind storm. If it should also be raining hard at the time much damage may be caused before the broken window is repaired.

On Tuesday evening the closing session was held of the night school which has been conducted at the Wequonnoc school. FIRE IN CELLAR AT EAST GREAT PLAIN SCHOOL; DAMAGE ABOUT $500

The East Great Plain schoolhouse, situated at Backus corner, was damaged by fire Wednesday afternoon between $300 and $500. The fire started in a pile of rubbish in the cellar, burned a hole through the floor of one of the rooms and also ate its way up through the partitions to the attic. How the fire originated is not known, and is being investigated by fire officials. The building is a two-room frame structure with about 50 children in the school.

Miss Justine Morrison, a teacher in the school, discovered the fire at 3.40 o'clock, a short time before the school children were to have been dismissed. She noticed smoke around the steam pipes, dismissed the pupils quickly and then notified the fire department. Engines 1 and 5 responded to the telephone call and each laid a line of two and one-half inch hose. The seat of the fire was found by the firemen and the blaze was soon extinguished.

As the fire apparatus of Taftville and Yantic is undergoing repairs Engines 1 and 5 were sent to the fire and Engine 3 was called into the central station to cover the center of the city in case of further fires.

A large number of books were taken from the building and piled in the school yard, but this procedure was later found to have been unnecessary. School is to be resumed today (Thursday) in spite of the fire, Miss Washburn, who is substituting for Miss Peterson is the teacher in the other room.

Four-Year Old Starts Fire

A four year old child got hold of some matches Wednesday afternoon and set fire to a box of wall paper in the yard of his parents' home, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Janik in the rear of 121 Fourth street. In a short time the blaze spread to a shed nearby and then communicated to another shed at 9 Gilmour street. No large amount of damage was done to either building, but for some time the two blazes had the firemen on the jump.

The building which was first ignited is used by its owner, John S. Janik, for a storage shed, while the other building is used for a plumbing shop by Emil O. Zahn. The latter building is a one story metal structure and it was necessary for the firemen to rip off a small quantity of metal to get at some burning paper underneath, which had become ablaze from the heat from the Janik shed fire.

Engine 2 and Squad A responded. The former had in operation a chemical line attached to a 50-gallon tank and Squad A put to use pump cans.

Laurel Hill Grass Fire

A second call was received by the fire department at 2.51 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for a grass fire on land owned and occupied by Frederick Baker in the rear of 294 Laurel Hill avenue. No damage was occasioned by the blaze.

U. S. FINISHING COMPANY FINANCIAL POSITION STRONG

President Henry B. Thompson of the United States Finishing company reported the company in the strongest financial position in its history, when he gave his annual report at the annual meeting of the stockholders which was held here Wednesday in the directors' room of the Norwich Savings society.

The following directors were elected:

John G. Bausher, New York; Edward A. Greene, Passaic, N. J.; John P. Huntington, Norwich; Andrew C Imbrie, New York; Henry F. Lippitt, Providence, R. I.; Jesse H. Metcalf, Providence, R. I.; George S. Mumford, Boston, Mass.; John F. Rogers, Norwich, Conn.; Henry B. Thompson, New York; Henry B. Thompson, Jr., New York; Herbert J. Wells, Providence, R. I.; Charles A. Wimpfheimer, New York.

In his annual report, President Thompson said in part:

We closed our year showing slightly better earnings than last year, the best we have shown for the past three years. The cotton textile industry is still out of step in earning capacity with other manufacturing industries, and in degree we feel this reflex. A glance at our balance sheet shows the company to be in the strongest financial position that it has ever been in its history. Liquid capital, while important, must be buttressed by two other important factors—namely, plant and personnel. Our plant on the whole as it stands today is in better condition, better arranged and doing more efficient work than ever before. This is the result of careful engineering studies and an intelligent selection of machinery.

For the past four years the annual depreciation charges have about offset our new purchases. The result is that we are not burdened by an excessive charge against our fixed assets, and our surplus—now amounting to $2,514,365.02—consists almost entirely of liquid assets. The replacement value of our machinery is considerably in excess of its book value.

Our additions to plant amounted to $249,095 distributed largely between Norwich, Pawcatuck and Sterling. Our repair account amounted to $619,396 Our depreciation charge of the year amounted to $316,371.73.

CHRISTOPHER GALLUP MOVES TO NO. STONINGTON ESTATE

After 15 years of activity in the civic affairs of West Hartford, Christopher M. Gallup has severed his business connections in Hartford, and with Mrs. Gallup, will retire to his country home in North Stonington. The estate first came into the Gallup family over a century ago.

Mr. Gallup resigned his position in the casualty department of the Travelers Insurance company, Saturday, where he has been since 1913, and he and Mrs. Gallup moved to North Stonington Wednesday. They will be joined later by Mrs. William B. Clark, Mrs. Gallup's mother. Their home at No. 115 Steele road, where they have lived since first coming to West Hartford, has been sold.

Mr. Gallup's associates at the Travelers presented him tokens of esteem last Saturday, when he left: a fountain pen and pencil and a billfold. A brief formal talk was given during the presentation by William J. Burns.

The North Stonington home, which was once owned by John D. Gallup, an uncle, several generations back, is about four miles from the farm where Mr. Gallup was born, in Ledyard, in 1876. He attended public school in that town and later went to the Norwich Free Academy.

Upon his graduation from Yale university in 1897, Mr. Gallup went to Hartford, where for seven years he was a member of the staff of the city engineer. In 1905, he purchased a farm in Brookline, and lived there until 1909, when he moved to Augusta, Me., to become editor of The Maine Farmer an agricultural weekly. This position he held until June, 1913, when he came to Hartford to become connected with the Travelers.

He was first a member of the West Hartford sidewalk committee, and later a member of the town plan commission. He was elected a selectman, and served one term, in 1917 and 1918. He was clerk of the charter commission of the town, which formulated the first council-manager charter adopted by any community in this state. This was during the two years from 1918 to 1920. Mr. Gallup was chairman of the war savings committee of West Hartford during the war. About five years ago, he was president of the West Hartford chamber of commerce, and is now chairman of the state chamber of commerce committee on parks and forests.

Mrs. Gallup also has been active in various affairs in Hartford and West Hartford. She was a prominent member of the old Hartford Equal Franchise league, and was marshal of one of the suffrage parades held during that period. She later became active in the League of Women Voters, and was secretary and director in the West Hartford league, and at several times was a delegate to national league conventions.

The home in North Stonington, which is on the Norwich-Westerly state highway, was purchased last December from the estate of Edward Mann, formerly of New York, who had lived there 18 years. Mr. Gallup plans to go to Hartford frequently. He will not actively engage in any business.

Passion Service Preacher

The Good Friday passion service at Christ Episcopal church, from noon to 3 in the afternoon, will have as the special preacher, Rev. H. B. Liebler, who is in much demand by the large city parishes and therefore has not been able to come to Norwich before to conduct the passion service and to give the meditations on the Seven Words from the Cross.

During the hymns, people may enter or withdraw if they are unable to spend the three hours in devotion.

Everything comes to the man who waits—except his missing hair.

ARRAIGNMENT OF HOOVER'S PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDACY

George N. Peek, Chairman of the Executive Committee of 22 of the North Central States Agricultural Conference, Describes Hoover as the Arch Enemy of a Square Deal For Agriculture—Condemns Campaign Booklets as Designed to Gain Hoover Support From the Farmers.

WASHINGTON, April 5—(AP)—Herbert Hoover was described as "the arch enemy of a square deal for agriculture" in a criticism of his presidential candidacy by George N. Peek, chairman of the executive committee of 22 of the North Central States Agricultural conference, which was inserted in the Congressional Record today by Senator Norbeck, republican, South Dakota.

Peek informed the South Dakotan that the memorandum had been prepared at the request of the late Senator Willis, with whom the commerce secretary had contested for Ohio delegates to the republican convention.

Calling attention to two campaign booklets that "are being widely distributed in the political interest of Herbert Hoover," Peek said the purpose of the documents obviously is to gain Hoover support from farmers in the pending presidential campaign."

"It is utterly impossible, however," he continued, "for any propaganda to conceal or disguise the all-important fact that:

"First, as food administrator, and later as the agricultural adviser of the last two administrations, he has been more directly and personally responsible for the present plight of the American farmer than any other man in the nation."

Peek anticipated that the commerce secretary would charge him with political motives in making the statement to further "the candidacy of others for president."

"In one way he is right," he said, "my motives are now political, but they are non-partisan. I will go to any legitimate length to save agriculture and the country from such fraud. In my opinion, any candidate yet mentioned by either party would be supported by the farm population in preference to Hoover with such a record of duplicity, and deliberate exploitation of agriculture."

Entitled "Herbert Hoover and the Farmer," the Peek memorandum constituted an analysis of statements attributed to campaign pamphlets, the veracity of many of them being questioned.

"The entire defense of Hoover's agricultural record as food administrator in the booklets to which I refer," said Peek, "is based upon studies prepared by a man who was in the employ of Hoover or of a Hoover agency when he wrote them."

WALSH REBUKES ROBINSON FOR OIL QUESTION VIEWS

WASHINGTON, April 5—(AP)—Conducting a class in naval oil reserve history in the senate, Senator Walsh of Montana, relentless prosecutor in the oil scandal, took Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, severely to task for what was described as the "tissue" of misrepresentation" running through his recent senate speeches on the oil question.

The Indianan was especially berated for his attack upon Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, William G. McAdoo and the Wilson administration, which had been accused of conceiving the "conspiracy" for the exploitation of the naval oil reserves.

Armed with a long wooden pointer, Walsh raced from one to another of five huge maps of the naval oil reserves hanging on the senate wall to illustrate his recital of how far afield Robinson had been in discussing the naval oil leases and especially in saying that the leasing policy had been inaugurated by Josephus Daniels, as secretary of the navy, and John Barton Payne, as secretary of the interior.

The Indiana republican sought occasionally to interrupt the oil prosecutor, who became so emphatic in delivery and gesture that he broke the pointer by whipping it across his palm to emphasize his remarks. The short end of the pointer flew high into the air and landed on the republican side of the chamber near where Robinson was seated.

Adverting first to Robinson's attack on Governor Smith, who, like the Montanan, is a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, Walsh dismissed as "piffle" the Indianan's complaint about Smith keeping Harry F. Sinclair as racing commissioner in New York, and another about a democratic committee accepting a campaign contribution from him in 1920 before the naval reserves were leased.

DECIMO CLUB, INC., BROUGHT INTO THE READING HEARING

BOSTON, April 5—(AP)—The Decimo Club, Inc., of New York, whose $25,000 retainer to Attorney General Arthur K. Reading started the investigation into that official's conduct in office, was mentioned for the first time today during the hearing before the special legislative committee conducting the investigation.

Charles W. S. Wheeler of Belmont, cashier of the Lechmere National bank of East Cambridge, introduced transcripts of Reading's account. Attention was called to a deposit of $193.84 made February 16, 1928. Wheeler was asked if he recalled anything in particular regarding it. He said a check on the Chase National bank, of New York, was received through the mail payable to Arthur K. Reading and made out by the Decimo club and he "was quite sure this was the one."

A deposit on January 11, 1928 included a check for $10,000 on the Chase National bank but no information was asked regarding it.

The affairs of the United L. A. W. Accentance corporation of Worcester and its subsidiaries occupied a great deal of the day. On this phase of the case, Judge Abraham K. Cohen of Boston; President Patrick S. Dolan, of the Brockton L. A. W. Accentance corporation; Harry K. Stone, a director and counsel for the Brockton company, and Edwin L. Pride, who audited the Worcester company's books, testified.

SNOWSTORM IN ALASKA HALTS PLANE TAKE-OFF

SEWARD, Alaska, April 5—(AP)—A snowstorm which enveloped Alaska today was believed to have thwarted the efforts of Captain George H. Wilkins, Australian explorer, and Lieutenant Carl B. Eielson, his pilot, who planned to hop off from Point Barrow on a flight over the Polar sea to Spitzbergen.

Silence shrouded the activities of the expedition, but the storm was an indication to observers here that the take-off probably was delayed. Wilkins and Eielson had been at Point Barrow since March 19, awaiting favorable weather for the 2,100-mile flight over the unchanged Arctic ice pack.

SECOND CONVICTION BY BRITISH COURTMARTIAL

GIBRALTAR, April 5—(AP)—A second British naval officer concerned in the controversy over jazz music and the ship's band on the British battleship Royal Oak at Malta, has been condemned by courtmartial and duly punished.

Captain Kenneth G. B. Dewar, commander of the Royal Oak, received a similar sentence to that imposed on Commander H. M. Daniel, in the court martial which concluded on the plane carrier Eagle here tonight. He was found guilty of acting in a manner prejudicial to discipline in accepting and forwarding a letter written by Commander Daniel criticizing Rear Admiral Bernard St. G. Collard, in command of the first squadron of the Mediterranean fleet.

The second charge against Captain Dewar, of accepting and forwarding a letter, whose terms were contrary to the king's regulations, was announced as "not proven." The sentence was dismissal from his ship and a severe reprimand.

Captain Dewar's trial was the more dramatic because he faced Rear Admiral Collard, his superior officer, and hot exchanges occurred between the two men. Dewar conducted his own defense and made a fifty-minute address to the court. He attributed the whole trouble to "uncontrollable fits of temper on the part of Rear Admiral Collard."

He ridiculed the idea that he and Daniels had entered into a Machiavellian conspiracy to remove Collard.

GREATEST BATTLE IN 20 YEARS AGAINST LALOLLETTE FORCES

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 5.—(AP)—The political complexion of Wisconsin's delegation to the Kansas City republican national convention remains in doubt tonight. Virtually complete returns show that the regular republican forces had, on Tuesday, waged their most vigorous battle in 20 years against the LaFollette forces.

The LaFollette forces were holding their narrow margin, but maintaining the lead in 14 of the 26 delegate contests. However, the race is still so close in certain congressional districts that the delegation make up may remain in doubt until complete returns have been received.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., Senator John J. Blaine, Walter Kohler and Andrew L. Kreutzer of Wausau are leading for the four delegate at large seats. LaFollette and Blaine are Norris supporters. Mr. Kohler and Mr. Kreutzer are regular republicans. Blaine, LaFollette and Kohler appeared to have been elected. Kreutzer was tenaciously maintaining his slight lead of 500 votes over Theodore Kronshage of Milwaukee, Norris supporter.

OIL TANKS ABLAZE ACROSS THE HARBOR FROM HAVANA

HAVANA, April 5.—(AP)—Exploding oil tanks at the Standard Oil company's $15,000,000 refinery at Regla, across the harbor from Havana, drove the inhabitants out of that suburb tonight. The tanks started to blow up within an hour after a fire had broken out which threatened destruction of the entire plant.

Two hundred men from the United States battleship Wyoming were dispatched to Regla to aid in fighting the fire and in keeping order among the panic-stricken inhabitants of the suburb. The entire Havana fire department was also sent to the scene, but at a late hour the flames were unchecked.

LIVED AS VAGRANT AND KEPT $25,000 SAFE IN BANKS

NEW YORK, April 5.—(AP)—A 79-year-old vagrant was arraigned in Coney Island court today today accused of using subway stations and trains for lodging while he kept $25,000 safe in banks in several cities.

"Why don't you get yourself some clean clothes and a place to live in? Magistrate Brown asked Daniel Sugrue, who has no home. "You can't take your money to heaven with you."

Sugrue was given a suspended sentence and warned not to make the subway his home. He was arrested by a special policeman, and investigation by a probation officer disclosed he had been a hanger on about the Bowery and a depositor in eight banks in New York, Boston and other cities.

WOULD TRY PROHIBITION AGENT FOR MURDER

CHICAGO, April 5—(AP)—Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson ruled today that Myron Caffey, federal prohibition agent, should be released from federal jurisdiction to the state for trial for shooting and wounding William Beatty, municipal court bailiff, in the course of a liquor raid.

Judge Wilkerson quashed a writ of habeas corpus cum causa he issued several days ago, but instructed that the order not be entered until next Wednesday morning. It was noted that the date of entry was one day after the state-wide primary set for next Tuesday.

The writ of habeas corpus was issued at a time when several automobile loads of armed city detectives waited outside the federal building for a ruling from the corporation counsel as to the legality of invading the building and taking Caffey by force.

Beatty was shot when the agents invaded a saloon in search for Lorenzo Juliano, reputed head of a gang of illicit liquor gangsters.

Two stories of the shooting were told. One was that Beatty thought the prohibition agents were hold-up men and was shot as he fled. The other was that Beatty was shot when he pulled a pistol and tried to resist the agents.

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF MBARGUERITE STEWART

CONCORD, Mass., April 5—(AP)—A special session of the Middlesex county grand jury has been summoned for tomorrow to consider the case of Frederick Hinman Knowlton, Framingham electrical supply dealer, who is charged with the murder of Miss Marguerite Stewart, of Worcester, teacher in the Beverly school for the deaf. The body of Miss Stewart was found beside a culvert on the Cambridge-Concord turnpike last Friday morning, with the head battered.

Knowlton who was arrested late last night, after many hours of questioning by District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell, was arraigned this morning in district court here. It was the first time in 30 years that a defendant charged with murder had come before the court in historic Concord. He pleaded not guilty and waived examination. At the request of the Concord police, Judge Prescott Keyes adjourned the case until April 16, and Knowlton was remanded to the East Cambridge jail without bail.

CYRUS LOCKER APPOINTED TO SUCCEED SEN. WILLIS

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 5—(AP)—State Commerce Director Cyrus Locher, a democrat was appointed late today by Gov. A. V. Donahey to succeed the late Frank B. Willis as United States senator from Ohio.

Locher will present himself in Washington April 16 for the oath of senator, after devoting the week intervening to the affairs of his state office. Some months ago he announced he would be a candidate to succeed United States Senator Simeon D. Fess for the long term. Now, it is expected that he will be a candidate at the November election to succeed himself next March.

Grand Old Man Dead, Chauncey M. Depew

Fatal Illness Contracted While Returning From Florida—In 94th Year.

NEW YORK, April 5—(AP)—Chauncey M. Depew died today.

Within a few days of his 94th birthday anniversary, America's grand old man passed quietly away shortly before dawn, surrounded by his family and mourning friends throughout the country and in foreign lands.

Funeral services will be held here Saturday morning. Burial will be at

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

Peekskill, N. Y., where he was born, and where a bronze monument was erected to him some years ago.

Entering politics before Abraham Lincoln first ran for president, Mr. Depew remained until the last a power in the republican ranks. He had intended to attend the republican convention in Kansas City this June.

His interest in business was as unflagging as his love of politics and as chairman of the board of the New York Central railroad he was to be found every day in his office high above the Grand Central terminal.

It was less than a week ago that Mr. Depew contracted the illness that was to prove fatal. While returning from a vacation in Florida he suffered a slight chill and last Sunday a bronchial cold developed which caused physicians to order him to bed but which was not believed to be serious. Last night, however, bronchial pneumonia developed and he died at 4:20 o'clock this morning.

Though he gained more fame than is the lot of most men both as an industrial leader and a statesman, Mr. Depew probably was best known and beloved by the general public as an after-dinner speaker of never-failing wit and optimism.

For 70 years he was in demand as a speaker at all manner of functions and his reputation for the wit and wisdom of his remarks increased with his years. His humor was never of the caustic sort that gets a laugh at the discomfiture of anyone, and in all his dealings, Mr. Depew was equally careful never to slight or offend. He cultivated people because he liked them and he was often described as a man without an enemy.

Although he lived far longer than most men, he never lost his keen interest in life and often expressed the hope that he would reach the century mark. His optimism concerning humanity was unbounded and his belief was firm that the world was steadily becoming a better place to live in. He was a champion of youth and never joined with those who professed to see evidence in modern youth of any lowering of standards.

Messages of condolence and tribute poured in to the Depew home and the New York Central offices from all parts of the country. The great marble concourse of the Grand Central terminal, one of the busiest places in New York, was draped in black. Flags on state and city buildings and many club houses were flown at half-staff.

Among the many tributes paid to Mr. Depew three were typical. Mayor Walker said, "He helped to make the country a more cheerful place." President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university said: "A great oak has fallen in the noblest forest of American life. No man in our time has brought more happiness and joy to hundreds of thousands of his fellow citizens."

Bishop William T. Manning of the Episcopal diocese of New York felt that his death was "a personal loss to the entire community."

NEGRO ELECTROCUTED FOR MURDER OF A FARMER

OSSINING, N. Y., April 5—(AP)—Frank "Dixie" Baldwin, Negro, died tonight in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison for the murder of John W. Dickinson, a farmer, near Ovid, Seneca county, N. Y.

Baldwin, who was 22 years old, entered the death chamber at 11 o'clock, accompanied by a minister, looked around calmly and sat down. He was pronounced dead at 11:05 o'clock.

The first time in the 37 years of electrocutions in this state, witnesses at tonight's execution were searched by prison guards as they entered the death chamber. Warden Lewis E. Lawes said the men had been instructed to refuse admission to any who carried firearms, liquor, cameras or other prison contraband. He intimated that the same procedure would be followed at subsequent executions.

Florence E. S. Knapp Has Been Indicted

Former Secretary of the State of New York—Outcome of 1925 State Census.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 5—(AP)—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state of New York, has been indicted on several criminal charges growing out of her administration of the 1925 state census, it was disclosed at the end of the first day's session of a grand jury investigation here tonight.

The number of indictments returned and the nature of the charges, were not announced.

Examination of 24 witnesses during the day furnished a perfunctory preface to a dramatic climax, when, after the presentments had been handed down and the jury excused, every indication pointed to immediate arraignment of the state's first elected woman official. A long interval occupied with conferences between Supreme Court Justice Stephen Callaghan and the state's prosecuting officers was followed by the sudden entrance into the court room of Samuel O. Howard, of Syracuse, a close personal friend of Mrs. Knapp.

Further conferences ensued between Mr. Howard and George D. Medalie, chief of the prosecuting staff of the attorney-general's office. Within a few minutes of his hurried departure, Justice Callaghan announced a recess until 9 o'clock tonight, when, prosecuting officials intimated, a brief session of an "informative" nature would take place.

THRONGS AT FUNERAL OF CONGRESSMAN GALLIVAN

BOSTON, April 5—(AP)—With the streets of South Boston lined with thousands of people, funeral services for James A. Gallivan, representative in congress from the 12th Massachusetts district, were held today. Leaders in the state and nation were present to pay tribute to a man whose death on Tuesday closed a notable career of public service.

In the funeral procession were various war veteran organizations, the South Boston Citizens' association, a delegation from the post office department and more than 100 members of the Knights of Columbus. Civic and fraternal organizations were also represented. The active pall bearers were veterans of the Yankee division.

The services at St. Augustine's church were simple because of the day being Holy Thursday. A solemn high mass of requiem will be held in the church after Easter.

A delegation from Washington included 15 Massachusetts representatives headed by Congressman Tinkham; Congressman Crampton, of Michigan, head of the house appropriations committee on which Mr. Gallivan served; Congressman Byrns, of Tennessee, ranking member of the committee, and Congressmen Edwards, of Georgia, Buchanan, of Texas, Wason of New Hampshire, Boylan, of New York and Reed of Arkansas. The other Massachusetts members were Mrs. Edith N. Rogers and Congressmen Bowles, Foss, Stobbs, Andrew, Connery, Dallinger, Underhill, Douglass, Tinkham, Luce, Frothingham, Martin and Gifford.

The senate committee was headed by Senator Gillett, of Massachusetts and included Senators Dale of Vermont, Harrison, of Mississippi, Tydings, of Maryland and Barkley of Kentucky.

Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols and several hundred city officials of Boston were also in attendance. Lieut. Gov. Frank G. Allen represented Governor Fuller, who was in New York.

Burial was in Holy Hood cemetery where a volley was fired over the grave and taps sounded.

AVIATOR HELD AS A FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE

HARTFORD, April 5—(AP)—Walter H. Mitchell, 29 years old, an aviator, of 2312 Loring place, Bronx, N. Y., was arrested at Brainard field late today by State Aviation Inspector George Pranaitis, charged with being a fugitive from justice.

The birdman, who came north this spring, confessed, police say, that he had left a trail of worthless checks behind him. He is wanted in Newark, N. J., for giving a fraudulent check for $200; in New York for cashing checks totalling $600; in Easton, Pa., for passing a check for $119, and in Atlanta, Ga., for cashing a check for $35.

Mitchell's method, by his own admission, was to display his pilot's license in an accessory store, purchase an article and with the plea that he was short of ready cash, obtain a blank check, fill it out for an amount far above the price of his purchase and receive his change in money. Then he flew on.

KIDNAPPED BOY WAS RESTORED TO PARENTS

PHILADELPHIA, April 5—AP—George Edward Miller, 4 years old, who was kidnapped by two women yesterday, was restored to his parents today less than 24 hours after he disappeared in a taxicab.

Arrayed in a complete new suit, shoes, hat and underclothing, the little fellow was found crying bitterly in crowded Market street this afternoon. Under his arm he held a bundle containing his old clothes and some other things that his kidnappers had purchased for him.

Who kidnapped him and why he was returned in what will be his Easter suit, the police are trying to find out. They have not a single clue to work on except that his kidnapers were apparently young women evidently well supplied with money.

It was not a case of attempted ransom, the police said, for the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Miller, were not well off, as he drove a truck for a living and also was caretaker of a rooming house near Tenth and Jefferson streets.

ABLE TO ACCOUNT FOR HUSBAND'S TIME

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., April 5—(AP)—Mrs. Gladys Bragg Knowlton, whose husband, Frederick Hinman Knowlton, is charged with the murder of Marguerite Stewart, Beverly school teacher said today that she could account for Knowlton's time last Thursday and Friday when the teacher was missing. Miss Stewart's body was found beside a road in Concord Saturday morning.

"I know where my husband was on Thursday and I can give an account of every movement of his on Friday night" Mrs. Knowlton said. She was in a state of collapse tonight at the home of her husband's parents here.

A SHIPMENT OF $5,000,000 SOVIET GOLD TURNED BACK

NEW YORK, April 5—(AP)—Gold bars valued at more than $5,000,000, sent here by the soviet Russian government in February, which the United States declined to accept and France sought to obtain by court action, were shipped out of the country to Germany today.

The Bank of France announced that its court action would be prosecuted and that the two banks in which the gold lay while it was here would be responsible. An announcement from attorneys for the State Bank of Soviet Russia, however, said the interests of these banks had been fully protected.

The gold arrived here Feb. 21, to be used for facilitating trade relations between the soviet and the United States, and was deposited with the Chase National bank and the Equitable Trust company.

The treasury department, however, ruled that the gold could not be accepted at the assay office because of a ruling of 1920 made when the state department declined to give assurances that the title to soviet gold might not be attacked internationally or otherwise.

Then the Bank of France brought suit in federal courts charging that the gold bars sent here were identical with French gold stolen from the vaults of the state bank of the Russian empire after the revolution. That action is now pending.

Since the gold has been here it has not been drawing any interest, which has meant a loss to the soviet of about $1,000 a day.

After the shipment of the gold to Germany became known today a statement was issued from the offices of the local legal representatives of the Soviet State bank and the Garantie und Kreditbank fuer den Osten of Berlin.

They said that the gold was shipped to Berlin so that it could be placed in currency, which was impossible here in view of the treasury department ruling. They asserted that the Bank of France had failed to submit documentary proof they had promised to show that this gold was identical with the stolen bullion and as the Russian bank had produced information showing that this gold had been cast into bars between 1925 and 1927.

BATTLE OF REPUBLICAN FACTIONS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 5—(AP)—The leaders of the two republican factions locked in a life and death battle, continued to fight over Chicago today, a steady downpour of rain not seeming to handicap the effort to line up votes to decide numerous political futures at the state-wide primary five days hence.

With the issues clearly marked, no new item for debate was brought into today's scores of speeches except the assertion of Gov. Len Small, third term candidate, that he never had in any way been associated with, or sought the support of, the Ku Klux Klan.

Louis L. Emerson, secretary of state and opponent of Governor Small for the republican gubernatorial nomination, predicted that he and his associates would carry "downstate" by 150,000 votes.

Col. Frank L. Smith, seeking the nomination for United States senator on the ticket with Governor Small, asserted he was willing to abide by the party verdict April 10 after twice having been rebuffed when he appeared at Washington as Illinois senator.

Mayor William Hale Thompson, coleader with Governor Small and Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney of one of the embattled factions, denied that he, Governor Small and Samuel Insull, public utilities executive, had entered into a deal to turn over Chicago's streets to the electric lines.

Crowe asserted that his long administration as state's attorney had been marked by a high degree of efficiency and success.

"There are more murders in Washington, the capital of the nation, than there are in this city," he said.

PARTISAN BATTLE STARTS OVER TAX REDUCTION

WASHINGTON, April 5—(AP)—The republican-democratic battle over tax reduction broke out in all strategic sectors at the capital today while the minority members of the senate finance committee were winning their point for a revival of open hearings on the legislation.

Announcement of the senate democrats' program for a total slash of $300,000,000 brought a prompt rejoinder by Acting Secretary Mills at the treasury that such a plan if successful meant a $100,000,000 treasury deficit next year. But over in the house, Representative Garner of Texas, leader of the democratic minority there on tax legislation, was serving notice that he would fight to the limit the reduction plan submitted to the senate by Secretary Mellon.

With the contest gaining heat, another delay in early disposition of the measure came about through the decision of the senate committee, which now has the bill, to reopen public hearings. They will be started next Monday upon the demand of the democrats.

SHERIFF CUNNINGHAM RELEASED IN $1,000 BAIL

PHILADELPHIA, April 5—(AP)—After five hours of argument in United States district court today, Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham was released in $1,000 bail on charges of contempt of the United States senate pending decision of Judge Oliver B. Dickinson.

Cunningham was arrested last week in accordance with a senate resolution for refusal to tell the source of $50,000 he contributed to the campaign fund of Senator-elect William S. Vare in the 1926 primary.

Argument today was on application of Cunningham's lawyers for a writ of habeas corpus to free him from the custody of John J. McGrain, deputy sergeant-at-arms of the senate, who arrested him after adoption by the senate of a resolution introduced by Senator King, of Utah.

RAID ON ALLEGED "WILD CAT" BREWERY IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, April 5—(AP)—Frank T. Putney, prohibition enforcement head of this state, took a hand in the clean-up of Waterbury this afternoon when he led a group of prohibition men in a raid on an alleged "wild cat" brewery at 14 Judd street. The alleged brewery is almost in the heart of the city. Four men were arrested charged with manufacturing and possessing illegal liquor. The raid this afternoon by the federal men is undoubtedly the result of the movement recently inaugurated by the Ministers' association, of Waterbury, who secured agents of the Watch and Ward society, of Massachusetts, to secure evidence on places violating the law. State's Attorney L. L. Lewis refused to confirm or deny the report that the ministers turned in evidence on the brewery.

Mr. Putney and eight agents arrived at the alleged brewery at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon and confiscated some 2,400 gallons of beer which the agents said was ready for Easter trade. Arthur Du Font, of 14 Judd street, who is believed to be the proprietor of the place, was released tonight in bonds of $1,500 for his appearance before U. S. Commissioner Edward J. Finn at 2:30 p. m., on April 16. The other men arrested at the place were Philip Spiane or Spainer, of 259 Marion street, Bridgeport; James Perugini, 233 Bank street, Waterbury, and John Kreg, of 27 Judd place. These three men are thought to be employes and were released in bonds of $500 until April 16.

State's Attorney Lewis, who led the 40 state policemen in raids on five gambling establishments yesterday afternoon, in which 87 men and one woman were arrested, refused to comment on the federal raid when questioned tonight.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 5—(AP)—Loss of life and property damage mounted today as the southwest figured up the effect of yesterday's series of wind, rain and hail storms and small tornadoes, seven persons were known dead, several more were missing and more than a score seriously injured.

Four persons, three men and a woman, perished and two others are believed to have drowned.

The relief committee brought into existence at Shawnee after a disastrous tornado in March, 1924, took immediate charge, broadcasting an appeal for $50,000 for relief work. Many homes were washed away and others damaged. Property damage in Shawnee was estimated at $1,000,000.

JEWETT CITY

ELIMINATION HEARING AT HARTFORD IMPORTANT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, April 5—The hearing before the public utilities commission, with reference to the proposed plans for eliminating the railroad crossing on Main street, held in Hartford yesterday, was attended by First Selectman D. F. Finn, E. P. Burleson, Frank Johnson, William McNicol, L. G. Buckingham, John Sharkey, Robert J. Guy, F. S. Leonard, Frank I. Ray, Charles D. Wolf, Irving Bogue, O. Frank Durfey, Mrs. W. A. Richardson, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Gardner, Henry Wallace, Charles Arabic, A D. Tripp and Dr. G. H. Jennings.

George B. Allen of New York, engineer for the Fisk Rubber Co., represented the Ninigret Co. of Jewett City. After the statement of the proposed plans by Commissioner McDonald, he said the trunk line which passes over the crossing is the eighth busiest line in the state, and is about the most difficult to eliminate. There has been no record of any fatality, but he considered that there is the possibility of serious accident.

The cost is estimated to be, outside of property damage, $317,136.27. He gave in excess of $25,000 as an estimate for property damage. The total length of the proposed new highway is 1307 feet. The length of the steel bridge over the railroad track is 58 ft. 3 3-4 in. and the elevation 18 ft. A reinforced concrete 78 foot viaduct and sidewalks are included in the plans.

An opportunity was given for questions.

John Sharkey asked where the proposed new entrance to South Main street would be. He was told it would come down the driveway on his property within five feet of F. S. Leonards garage. Mr. Sharkey understood that it would not eliminate his house. Mr. Leonard found that the concrete viaduct will pass a few feet beyond the well in the rear of his house. He said that no one had any objection to the elimination of the crossing, but it should not be at the expense of the property holders. Mr. Allen was opposed to the change, as it would affect future plans for the extension of the Ninigret Co's. plant. A plan to divert the course of the Pachaug river, he was told, was under consideration.

E. C. Burleson asked if there would be any provision made for foot passengers to pass over the track and was told there had been none considered. Mr. Leonard asked how the crossing was to be closed and was told probably by a fence, but no plan had been made.

Mr. Bogue, who owns the former Partridge property claimed that by the diversion of traffic both his and C. D. Wolf's garage business will be killed and asked if they had any redress. Mr. MacDonald said not, a along as the state did not use their property. He described the effect on the truck traffic and from the freight depot and Aspinook Bleachery.

Mr. Johnson asked what houses in Lisbon would be affected and was told McNicol, Johnson and Fitch. The raise in grade in Lisbon will be seven feet.

Dr. Jennings inquired about any change in grade at the Slater library. A representative of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R., was asked by the commission if they had formulated any plan for the elimination of the crossing, and he replied that they had not. When Mr. MacDonald was asked what would be done with the trunk line now passing down South Main street and through Sylvandale, he said it would be abandoned by the state. When asked by the commission if other plans for the elimination had been considered, he stated that there had. A trestle over the crossing and through South Main street would damage most seriously all property on both sides of the street and be much more expensive for the state. This plan is the alternative, from cutting off all through traffic from Jewett City.

Mr. Durfey, representing Aspinook Co. spoke of the bad effect it was going to have on all trucking business for Aspinook and in the town and advocated a partial elimination of the crossing—allowing town traffic to use the crossing, and through traffic would use the new highway. He claimed the five per cent grade to the new road from the Sharkey property would be difficult and dangerous for heavily loaded trucks; proposed plans of elimination hit the borough very hard and should receive serious consideration before decision is reached.

William McNicol stated that two years ago, a number of citizens attended a similar hearing in Central Village concerning diverting the traffic from Jewett City through a proposed plan going through Lisbon; everyone was opposed to it, and it was not done. He favored the present survey, as the best plan for the good of all, in comparison to the other two, which would either divert all through traffic from the business of the town, or else ruin South Main street property entirely.

Selectman Finn spoke of the fact that the very dangerous Bend junction in Lisbon should be eliminated, which is where this new survey starts. He had rather see the traffic go through Jewett City than outside the borough. He also advocated some kind of overhead foot passenger bridge over the railroad crossing.

Henry Wallace inquired how much his property would be affected, and was told none at all. L. G. Buckingham spoke of the two sharp curves which he considered would be dangerous where the proposed road to South Main street, over the Sharkey property would enter and leave the new and old roads.

When the railroad representative was asked his opinion of a partial elimination of the crossing, as had been suggested, he said a partial elimination could not be considered. It must be complete. He presented to the commission a traffic record of January 18-19-20 in 1928 for their consideration.

The hearing closed with the promise that the matter would receive serious consideration, and if necessary another hearing would be called.

The Woman's Mission circle of the Baptist church held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. E. E. Gilbert Tuesday afternoon. NOANK

SCOUTS' WALKING RACE—DAN ROBERTSON WINNER

Two Boy Scouts were telling at Mrs. Jane Carson's news store how fast they could walk. Ben Chesebro said, "Why don't you have a race from Old Mystic to Noank?" The two Scouts are Daniel Robertson and Eugene Mallett, anxious to see who is the champion walker in the troop. The loser was to give the winner a new hat. The distance is eight miles. So Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 in the mill town, Walter Welles with his pistol fired the signal shot. Short Step Mallett was walking fast to get a big lead; But Long Wind Robertson thought his rival had a trick up his sleeve, so Robertson started a slow walk, until it looked as though a turtle could beat him. All along the line people would stop to see the two Scouts going it. Short Step Mallett was still in the lead with Robertson only a few steps behind. An auto was following them calling for action, but Long Wind Daniel told them to wait until he let out his belt and "you can tell who is the champion walker!" Mallett was smiling when the judges, Albert Fitch, Lyle Chesebro and John Ashby were waiting for them at the finish line, the town hall. The school bell rang for the day, and 200 children lined the sidewalks, with other people to give them a cheer. It was a pretty race. As they went by, calls came from the crowd, "Come on, Daniel!" or "Step on it Mallett!" With the goal only about 50 feet away, Robertson went ahead of his rival and won by only five feet. It was some race and Robertson is the champion walker of the Scouts. Mallett pluckilly gave the winner his hand for the victory. Robertson's time was 1 hour 15 seconds and Mallett's 1 hour 20 seconds.

The red fire engine left the fire house Wednesday evening loaded with smoke eaters. Behind the wheel was Driver Earl Foster, bound for Groton Long Point near the bridge at the boardwalk to test out 300 feet of new hose, to see if the hose could stand it with 120 pounds pressure. For 30 minutes the water went high into the air. Hoseman Sam Fish and Hoseman Robert Lamay were at the nozzle. The test was in charge of Foreman Walter Palmer. A quick drill was held getting on the end of the hose to see how long it would take to put on a nozzle while on the run. Bill Banks did it in 40 seconds. The laddermen getting out the ladders put them on the casino, going to the top of the roof with the hose in quick time. Chief Park was well pleased with the workout. The ringing of the bell on the engine on the way to the Point made people think there was a fire. Several hailed up the waiting room and wanted to know where the fire was. The drill lasted for two hours.

says Mrs. J. Anderson, 85 Oneco St.

"I WAS amazed to see how white clothes came, when I first used Rinso in my washer," says this delighted local woman, one of thousands who have written us.

"It's so easy to get them snowy now! Why, you don't have to boil or scrub a thing. No wonder clothes don't fray out at the edges as they used to! As for my colored pieces—they seem to get brighter and prettier every time I wash them with Rinso. It's so safe!

"It's great for washing dishes, too. Takes grease off like magic. I use it for practically all my cleaning now, floors, sinks, woodwork, etc. A little Rinso goes so far that it's the most economical soap in the long run.

"Rinso deserves all the praise it gets, and more!"

Lasting suds—in washer or tub

Rinso suds are the secret of its popularity! Rich and creamy in any water, hard or soft—these quick-working suds rinse out in a jiffy, and carry all the dirt and stains along. Clothes come from washer or tub the whitest ever.

No wonder 32,000 demonstrators use Rinso to show their washers at their best. No wonder the makers of 32 leading washers say, "Use Rinso for safety—and for whiter, brighter, washes!"

Whether you use a washer or do the week's wash by hand—Rinso is all you need. This famous granulated soap loosens and soaks out the dirt and stains, without the help of bar soaps, chips or powders.

Saves scrubbing and boiling

Why, with Rinso you don't even need to boil the wash—clothes come so sweet and sparkling from the washer or tub!

Clothes last longer, too, for there's no scrubbing to wear edges thin. The grimiest hems and cuffs come snowy with little or no rubbing.

Get Rinso in time for next washday. See how it saves your hands. Just feel how weighty the Rinso package is! You get your full money's worth when you buy this compact granulated soap.

For economy and best results, follow the easy directions on box.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 5—With the exercises at the high school building last evening, the sessions of Danielson's evening schools came to a close. A formal program was creditably presented and was a means of putting in evidence how well those attending the school have done.

The program given and the roll of evening school students is as follows: Opening—Singing, America, first verse; concert recitation—American Creed; reading—What the Flag Stands For, by Clara Gilbeault, (first year class); reading—A Good American, by Edmond Doyle, (first year class); reading—The Land of Freedom, by Alexander Bernier, (advanced class); reading—The Amercain Flag, by Romeo Bernier, (advanced class); Music—"We," "Simple Confession," "Saxaphone Waltz"; piano, Anita Ballard; violin, Alphonse Ballard; saxaphone, Grace Ballard; dialogue—The Process of Becoming a Naturalized Citizen of the U. Today the new traffic control device recently purchased by the borough was put in place over the intersection of Broad and Reynolds street—one of the worst danger points in Danielson and scene of a number of accidents. The new arrangement is a four-sided affair with the word "Slow" on each side. It is hung high enough over the intersection to clear the tops of high-loaded trucks and yet is clearly visible from all approaches to the intersection. Several traffic control devices have been used at this point, none of them up to this time proving satisfactory, for one reason or another. This new one appears a great improvement over those that have gone before. It was lighted tonight for the first time.

All the churches of Danielson will be represented in the Good Friday services that have been arranged. The day will be observed by the Danielson Federation of Churches with a service at the Westfield Congregational church at 7:30 in the evening. The cantata, The Story of Calvary, by Schecker, depicting the trial and crucifixion of Jesus, will be sung by a mixed quartet made up of Mrs. Harold B. Atwood, soprano, Miss Edith L. Fuller, alto, Henry A. McEwen, tenor, and Alfred P. Burns, bass. The sermon is to be preached by Rev. Albert Abbott, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Flying his plane over Danielson this afternoon for the first time this season, Alanson Colvin started a revival of interest in a subject that has been quiescent during the winter season—the matter of developing a local aviation field. A start in the development of one was undertaken last season on Wood's Hill farm, about three miles distant to the northwest from Danielson. There is the possibility of further development this year.

A Lenten supply of fish is being obtained for numerous families in Danielson through the inexpensive expedient of getting out a spear and a torch at night and taking suckers from brooks and rivers in this territory. The fish are said to be running in numbers just now and, this early in the season, are firm and in excellent condition. Some of the fish taken here recently are said to have weighed as much as three pounds.

The advance guard of the legion of holiday travelers expected through this territory during the Easter season were riding the motor coach lines through Danielson today on the late afternoon and evening trips. While Good Friday is not observed as a general holiday here, it will be the first of a three-day holiday for a great many people in other sections of New England.

With the annual borough election as near as next Monday, every indication points to its being a very quiet affair. There is only one ticket in the field—a non-partisan list of candidates, likely to be wholly unopposed. This has been the rule for several years past, and likely will prove to be this year. As usual, the ballots will be cast in the town hall.

Miss Alice Olsson presided at this morning's Lenten service for the young people at the Baptist church, Miss Ethel King assisting. The address was by Rev. Alma Gallup. During the service there were special saxophone numbers by Thomas Day. The Tri-Y girls had charge of this service. These services Good Friday morning are to be at 10 a. m., instead of the earlier hour that has prevailed throughout the week, and Rev. C. J. Armstrong will make the address.

Next Monday will mark the start of the real training period for Killingly high school's baseball squad, numbering about 15 members. The boys have been doing some light work during the current week, but will get down to the real grind right after Easter. Few veteran players are included in the squad this year, but there is promising new material.

Rev. David E. Johns of Meriden, who is to conduct the Easter day service at St. Alban's church will also conduct a service at Trinity church in Brooklyn at 9:30 Sunday morning.

A complete variety of Easter plants and cut flowers. A. Breischneider, 71 Mechanic St.—Adv.

Paul Bitgood of Connecticut Agricultural college is spending the Easter recess in Danielson.

At South Killingly Miss Beatrice Coffey has been elected president of the Camp Fire group. Betty Wilson has been elected vice-president, Mildred Young secretary, Iva Cole treasurer and Ruth Coffey guardian.

Arthur Williams, student at Connecticut Agricultural college, is in Danielson for the Easter season.

This afternoon in Danielson thermometers exposed to the rays of the sun were registering as high as 82 degrees, top reading since early last fall.

Bids by contractors for the work of constructing the Brooklyn Savings bank building were opened today at the offices of the architects in New Haven. Announcement of the award likely will not be made until a week from Monday.

It is being remarked by sportsmen that these early April days are about the best for trout fishing that have come in early April for years, yet this particular year the season does not open until April 15.

Next Tuesday the Fortnightly club is to meet with Miss Marion D. Chollar of Broad street.

There has been some informal discussion of forming a baseball league that would include teams from Danielson, Plainfield, Putnam, Webster and Southbridge, and more likely will be heard about this project later.

A deer thought to have been killed by an automobile was lying beside the highway on the Wauregan road near the quarters of the Danielson Rod and Gun club this morning.

PUTNAM

NEW ARMORY IS THREATENED BY EARLY MORNING FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 5—The new armory on Harris street was threatened by fire early this morning when a large truck owned by the Connecticut Service Express company of Putnam caught fire at 4:02 a. m., in the Whitman garage, which is on the ground floor of the state armory. A general alarm from box 12, which was rung in by one of the employes of the garage, brought the members of the fire department to the scene in time to prevent the spread of the flames beyond the vehicle. The hook and ladder company reached the building in less than three minutes after the alarm had registered at the central fire station. The blaze was extinguished with the use of chemicals. The report of Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston showed that the operator of the truck had examined the contents of the gas tank, when a light he was holding short-circuited, giving a spark which ignited the fumes. No damage was done to the building. Fire Chief Thurston complimented the two volunteers, who make the sleeping quarters in the fire station, upon their fast and efficient work.

The regular noon-day luncheon of the Putnam Rotary club was held Wednesday noon at the Putnam Inn. The members of the club were addressed by Chester M. Eliott, a Putnam shoe merchant, who spoke on the manufacture of foot wearing apparel. Mr. Eliott is well acquainted with the shoe industry and his talk was interesting. The shoe man started his talk with the raw product and finished with the finished product.

A large open lot in front of the Hopkins property on South Main street caught fire at 12:30 Thursday noon and threatened neighboring houses. A general alarm from box 113 brought the three pieces of city fire apparatus to the blaze. The firemen succeeded in getting the grass flames under control and allowed the center of the lot to burn off. No damage resulted to any of the dwellings nearby. The early morning blaze and the noon-day alarm were the 34th and 35th alarms of the year received by the fire department.

Wednesday's heat record of 78 degrees was broken Thursday when the mercury climbed to a new point at noon. The thermometer registered 81 at 12 o'clock. The discarding of the winter overcoats continued, and Thursday many were seen going to their daily toil in their shirtsleeves. The radio man gave out real Easter tidings Thursday when he reported that he held in view a continuation of the warm wave for the week-end.

Good Friday will be generally observed in Putnam today by the banks and some of the business houses. T. H. DeCoudres, president of the chamber of commerce, stated Thursday that many of the merchants had not favored the chamber of commerce's plan of declaring a legal holiday, but some had and will close. All of the city banks will observe the day and will suspend business operations.

COUNTY AGENT DAVIS TO RESIGN HIS POSITION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 5 — It became known that County Agent Frank L. Davis, of the Windham County Farmers association, is to leave his Putnam position on May 1 to become assistant director of the New England Dairy and Food council of Boston. The farming people of this community feel that they are losing the services of a man who has been a great asset to the farming districts of Windham county for over eight years. Mr. Davis came to Putnam in 1920 to take over his duties here. He succeeded B. W. Ellis as county agent, who resigned to take over a broader field at Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. During his few years as head of the local farmers association, Mr. Davis has accomplished considerable, with the standards of the organization of which he was active director. Mr. Davis has been a highly recognized authority on farming problems and his services have been sought by many other organizations outside of Connecticut. Mr. Davis is a graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural college. When the county agent leaves his position in Putnam on May 1, he will go to take over a larger and broader field. He will leave Putnam with the wishes of all the people with whom he came in contact, in this locality, for the highest success in his new field.

Checks are now being mailed out by the Putnam Building and Loan association on money that was paid into the association 12 years ago. M. H. Geissler, treasurer of the organization, stated that the amount will reach over $60,000.

Impatient local fishermen, who cannot resist casting the rod into the trout streams on these balmy spring days, have crossed the state line into Rhode Island to indulge in their favorite sport. The Rhode Island season opened on April 1, which is 15 days earlier than in Connecticut. Many sportsmen from this vicinity have been seen with the fishing equipment, were thought to be violating the law, but when asked, they said that they had a non-resident license to angle in "Little Rhody's waters."

Putnam psople were in general pleased with the appointment of Attorney Harry E. Back, of Danielson, as public defender for the criminal term of the Windham county superior court in Willimantic that is to open on Tuesday. The appointment was temporary and was conferred upon the Danielson attorney by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin, of the court. Mr. Back will succeed the late Charles L. Torrey, of Putnam, in that capacity.

Since the completion of house No. 6 by the boys of the various departments of the State Trade school, their ability as tradesmen is widely recognized by local people who were planning to have spring building and repairing done. The boys of the carpentry and masonry departments are now working on various outside jobs throughout the city. Director of the school, H. H. Ellis, stated that he is pleased with the large amount of interest and confidence that is being placed in the boys' work by the Putnam people.

Church services will be held in all the churches of the city tomorrow, with special sermons, music and instructions. A special Good Friday service will be held this Friday morning at St. Mary's church, with the making of the stations of the cross at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The masterpiece of John Stainer, "The Crucifixion," will be sung at the Second Congregational church by the augmented choir, in the evening at 8 o'clock. Other churches will also have the Good Friday services.

The annual "Ladies' Night" of the Putnam lodge of Elks will be held on Thursday evening, May 10. The committee in charge is now making preparations for the annual ladies' affair. The event is strictly limited to the Elks and their ladies.

Captain William J. Jarvis, of the Putnam police, feels that with the new parking regulations that have been drawn up to solve the parking problem on upper Main street will greatly aid in overcoming the danger of driving through two lanes of cars as they now park. When the regulations go into effect drivers will have to park the vehicles parallel with the curb on upper Main street. The space will be limited to fewer cars when the rule becomes a part of the city charter, but Captain Jarvis and the members of the police committee believe that the overflow can be taken care of in other parking districts of the city. More lights are to be provided by the street lighting committee of the common council on South Main street, opposite the Masonic club. This large space is in a convenient locality to the business section and will afford a large parking area.

At a meeting of the proposed auxiliary post of the American Legion, held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Martin M. Robertson on Pleasant street, the following officers of the new post were elected: President, Mrs. Martin B. Stanley Shaw; chaplain, Mrs. A. D. McIntyre; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Leon A. Talbot; publicity, Mrs. Raymond Medbury; finance, Mrs. G. S. Shaw; Americanization, Mrs. W. J. Jarvis; flag, Mrs. A. THE HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS

According to records kept by the motor vehicle department there were 26,832 motor vehicle accidents in this state last year, the largest number ever, 2,506 more than the previous year. There were 356 persons killed, 86 being children. This was an increase of five adults and 19 children over 1926.

Persons injured totalled 11,979, 2,177 more than in the previous year and the damage to property reached the total of $2,763,341.

While Connecticut was killing 356 persons in 1927 there were 7,106 killed in 76 large cities of the country or 450 more than in the previous year. Thus the accident and killing mania seems to be prevalent throughout the country. Each year shows a change in the wrong direction.

Just what good will be accomplished by it remains to be seen, but in the state of Pennsylvania the state highway department is conducting a "Save-a-life" campaign this month, the purpose of which is to carry out just what the name of the campaign signifies, and it is proposed to do it by having all car owners check their vehicles for safe and efficient brakes, lights and steering gear.

There is no getting away from the fact, as has been pointed out by the motor vehicle department of this state that a serious menace to the highways today is to be found in the defective cars. This condition rests to a large degree upon the shoulders of the owners. They may be satisfied to accept the risk which they face, but it is unjust that it should be forced upon other highway users. If these causes of too many of the accidents and fatalities could be eliminated many lives would be saved.

Keeping vehicles in fit condition may well be stressed in every state. Cars which are unsafe should be barred from the highways. If the requirement should be lived up to and if there was a greater degree of care exercised in the driving of motor vehicles there would be a marked reduction in the accidents, deaths and losses. It is deplorable that existing conditions should be accepted without a greater remonstrance on the part of the people or a greater effort to overcome them on the part of the auto drivers themselves.

CHANGING VETO POWER

The idea of giving the president authority to give his approval to certain portions of a bill and to veto others is not a new one. It has been advocated and urged before.

Such a proposal is the outgrowth of the methods that are adopted for the purpose of killing worthy measures and for forcing through unworthy riders. Many are the instances where amendments are proposed to bills with the object in view of making the measure so undesirable as to force a veto for the whole bill. Again it is a common practice to attach certain projects to appropriation bills or other measures which are sure to be adopted. These riders are invariably feeble and questionable. They would stand little or no chance if put forth on their own merits, and yet they are added to necessary legislation in order to get them through congress.

If the president had the authority to give his sanction to those portions of a bill which coincided with his views, or what he considered were for the welfare of the country, it would be possible for him to prevent much of the undesirable matter from being adopted. As it is his hands are tied. It is within his right to refuse his approval for the entire measure, but there are times when such is not advisable for to apply a veto for the sake of killing a minor, but unworthy, provision of the bill might easily mean that the whole would be lost in the jam at the close of the session.

Forcing the unworthy upon the chief executive without giving him a chance to separate the good from the bad places him in an unpleasant position. Such has been done repeatedly. Many presidents have been obliged to accept certain riders rather than to have the whole measure lost. That congress will not look with entire approval upon such a move as is proposed can be expected. Congress is jealous of the powers which it possesses. Nevertheless it is well to have an airing of conditions where improvement is needed, and this is certainly one of them. There is the possibility that if such a change is agitated enough and the merits of it pounded home some change may be effected eventually.

RUSSIAN RECOGNITION

In order to accomplish its much desired purpose to get the recognition of the United States, the soviet government of Russia has from time to time given indications that it was anxious to enter into negotiations. The intimations were that it was ready to meet the requirements which have been set forth by this country as necessary to such an end.

But there is nothing to show that the new efforts, if such is the case, are seriously accepted by Washington. In fact the situation appears to be just the opposite for Secretary of State Kellogg has declared that we are not getting ready for new negotiations.

There are reports which have come from abroad that Moscow and Washington are becoming more friendly. That appears to be somebody's imagination. Perhaps that is what Moscow would like. The recent refusal of this government to accept Russian gold at the mint for assaying certainly did not support the Moscow report.

When it is declared that Russia is ready to discuss with this government the financial obligations of Russia to the United States, it is the repetition of an old story. It has been ready before on its own terms, but this country hasn't gotten to the point where it is placing much faith in the soviet government. It fully appreciates what the experience of other nations has been. That experience fully justifies the attitude that was taken at Washington prior to recognition of Russia by other governments. Where other governments were ready to give Russia a trial under the unfavorable outlook, the United States was not. It established certain points with which Russia must comply. Compliance has not been forthcoming and other countries have regretted their haste.

The United States has had the opportunity to congratulate itself on escaping the experiences of other countries in their recent relationships with Russia. It hasn't fallen for Russian advances in the past and it isn't doing so now. When Russia is serious about it and ready to meet our requirements and prove it the situation may change. But that isn't now.

RUBBISH AS FIRE MENACE

How many buildings, how many homes, have similar conditions in regard to inflammable rubbish to those which prevailed in the East Great Plain schoolhouse cellar?

How many cellars are there where rubbish conditions which are a fire menace are much worse than those at the schoolhouse?

While it may not be known just how the firebrand was applied at the school house, there is a pointed illustration of the importance of fire prevention through the elimination of just such combinations.

It is highly probable that there are properties where the fire hazard is so much worse than that which existed at the East Great Plain that the latter would pale into insignificance. They form the makings for a fire wherever they exist and in most instances their elimination would require but a small amount of work.

Such conditions may prevail for a long time with no serious results, but there is no telling when someone is going to drop a match therein, or throw burning smoking material where it will mean slow but sure ignition.

The prevention of many fires is entirely possible. Such work is going on every day, but it is not the few but the many that should be actively engaged in just such endeavors. Get rid of the rubbish through destruction in the proper way and under safe conditions and one of the aids to dangerous and damaging fires will be eliminated. This applies equally to the private homes and business houses as well as public buildings. The unfortunate part of just such lessons as are to be drawn from many of the needless fires is that too many of them go unheeded. Real lessons in fire prevention ought not to be ignored. Give them a thought.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW

By the death of Chauncey M. Depew there has been removed one of the country's most widely known men, a figure who stood at the top as an after dinner speaker, a robust, regular republican and a man who was held in the highest respect throughout his long life and his many undertakings.

Through a recognition of his legal attainments he was called into service by railroads in which he was actively engaged as counsel for much of his life. His accomplishments were conspicuous in that direction but likewise in the field of politics. For more than a score of years he was representative from the state of New York in the United States senate. He was a prominent figure at national republican conventions and despite his years was planning to attend the next one at Kansas City in June. He was a candidate for the presidency 40 years ago and could have had a place in Harrison's cabinet as secretary of state.

Age has caused him of late years to curtail his activities, particularly as a public speaker, but that in no way dimmed his faith in humanity, his optimistic attitude or his confidence in the future of his country. He always had a cheerful note to sound.

Chauncey Depew made a name for himself which it will be difficult to efface from memory. His record is one to be proud of. His accomplishments have been many. The passing of such a man marks a distinct loss. There has never been and there probably never will be but one Chauncey M. Depew. He was termed the grand old man of the G. O. P., but he was more than that he was the grand old man of the grand old nation.

EDITORIAL NOTES

You have, of course, arranged for your usual supply of hot cross buns.

Colonel House has been making some predictions. Where have we heard that name before?

The man on the corner says: Remember Good Friday, or Fast day, doesn't mean a day for extra speeding.

If Secretary Mellon cared enough about it he might now waste a lot more time by demanding that Senator Couzens resign.

Now that it has been denied that Secretary Kellogg is going to resign, isn't it possible to concoct a rumor about someone else?

Now that the Borah fund in behalf of Sinclair has reached $6,183.60, there is a chance for someone to give the 40 cents and make it even money.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The arrival of a third member in the Wright household brought with it not a few difficulties, some of which were easily solved, and some—well.

At any rate, James T. Wright let out a lusty whoop when he learned that he was the dad of a boy, whose chief diversion was opening his mouth wide and slamming out gusts of sound for a startled world to ponder.

"The lungs of a cheer leader," remarked Wright senior with a broad smile. "I'll bet if you could translate it, it would mean: 'Yale, I am here.' James T. Jr., you're a good regular fellow!"

But the newcomer, who remained totally indifferent to parental enthusiasms, was not to have his appellation and future career determined upon so easily. His mother said she had an idea or two about names and as to playing football, well——!

Wright senior said he knew a football player when he saw one, and that it would be perfectly unfair not to give him the name he rightfully deserved.

"Now, Jim, your feelings about it are perfectly all right, but I'm sure sonny would much prefer the name of Charles Atkinson. You know, his grandfather Atkinson made a name as a statesman and it would mean so much to have the influence of that name behind him."

"He doesn't need anything behind him. He's got the original Wright push to begin with and that's all any youngster needs to turn the world on its ear. What say, old topper, am I right?"

"Besides," continued his mother, "his great-grandfather was Charles Atkinson also, who made a name in the business world. Just think how much it will mean for him, Jim." Wright the elder hummed softly.

"Personally, Ada, I don't think he's going to give a rap about what great things his grandfather and great-grandfather did. He's got to fight his own fights and I think he ought to fight 'em as James T. Wright, Jr.

"And—as for heritage and true blood ancestry and all that, say, he couldn't ask for a nobler name than James Terrence Wright. If that name didn't come over on the Mayflower it should have and it's got traditions behind it that any prince would like to live up to. What say, boy? Ha, look at that face light up, will you? Terry the III, you've got something pretty big to live up to. Your dad and his dad went to old Eli and hung the Wright name pretty high up and now we're counting on you to boost it a notch higher.

"Don't forget, Jim, that an Atkinson was a Phi Bet and a member of the debating team at Princeton," said Mrs. Wright.

But the issue hung fire for almost three weeks and both sides remained adamant. And the son and heir of the Wright family was no less than a couple of fellows for a while, as far as his name was concerned. To his mother's callers he was Charles A., "named after his grandfather, you know!"

"Both his grandfather and his great-grandfather made names for themselves, and—" his mother would continue to explain.

To his father's business associates he was James T.

"James T. the III, is now at home to friends," Wright the elder would announce with unrestrained pride. But all the while the Wright son would gurgle delightedly as much as to say, "Pooh, what's a name? It's the fellow who counts!"

Then Aunt Jane was precipitated into the affair as mediator.

"Why not compromise?" she suggested. "They're both good names, but heavens! He can't carry around such an assortment." So Aunt Jane arranged the compromise which officially made the Wright scion Charles James Wright, and apparently that was all there was to it. It was, as far as the world was concerned, but——

"Charles Atkinson James Wright, when you grow up you'll want to drop that fussy James and be a real Atkinson, won't you, sonny?" cooed his mother when they were alone.

Said his father, when they were alone: "Charles James Terrence Wright, when you get big enough you'll drop the unnecessary baggage before James like a hot potato, eh, old topper?"

But Charles Atkinson James Terrence Wright remained diplomatically noncommittal, gurgling with equal delight at both propositions.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bed-Rock Foundations

Mr. Editor: Notwithstanding the exceedingly strenuous efforts of certain newspapers and pro-liquor propagandists for the repeal of the 18th amendment, or the repeal or modification of the Volstead act, or for the nullification of both, it is increasingly evident to even the ordinary observer that these measures are steadily growing stronger in public favor and confidence. Bad as the reaction is, in spots among those who, as Horace D. Taft expresses it, "will have their liquor anyway," there is a vast improvement over the days when the "gilded saloon" with all its enticements was on every corner. Every test vote in congress shows the drys growing stronger. Even here in "wet Connecticut" where the leadership of both political parties is so manifestly pro-liquor, I venture the statement that underneath such misleadership there is among the people an increasing appreciation of the folly and ruin of alcohol.

Unfortunately, and yet inevitably, there is increasing suffering and degradation among the victims of that traffic which conscienceless bootleggers pursue for profit, but to say that these bad conditions will avail to influence public sentiment to restore the traffic is to accuse the people of a lack of common sense. To say that, whatever drinking there is among high school pupils or college students—conditions grossly exaggerated, as the officials of those institutions testify from knowledge—is having an influence to drag the remaining great majority of these young persons into the same bad conditions, is ridiculous.

Recently a dear, credulous lady told me that I did not begin to realize the "terrible conditions in the Hartford high school." "How many cases do you know about?" I asked her. "Oh, there are lots of them," she rejoined. "Can you specify them?" I continued. "Well, well, —er—er, well, I know one girl who has gone wrong through drink, anyway," and she admitted that she could not think of another one. Let any reader test his own knowledge of the circumstances and realize what gross exaggeration the liquor propagandists are responsible for!

I do not minimize the "bad spots," but I say that they are far from prevailing, and insofar as they exist they demonstrate the folly of alcohol even in moderation, and prove uniformly that the person has never yet been born who can beat King Alcohol at his own game even though playing with him mildly! Automobile accidents frequently reveal that fact. An overwhelming majority of the people everywhere are going about their daily business wiser in this day and generation than their fathers were, as to the nature and effect of alcohol, and wishing honest-to-goodness that these deluded fellows who still imagine that there is virtue or anything other than degradation and degeneracy in alcoholic drink would come to their senses and quit annoying and burdening the public and cluttering up the public business and politics with their senseless demands. This is the plain truth of the whole matter.

There are some who call for "moderation" and "self-control" but one might as well swallow a rattlesnake and then exercise "will power" (sic) to say, "now, dear snakie, don't bite, don't even rattle, just run around and make it interesting for me," as to imagine that any person can swallow alcoholic poison and escape the effects. Some of the "F. F. V's" of Hartford seem to think that they have only to issue a social manifesto, whereupon booze-to-the-taste will come back; but they fail to realize that old King Alcohol has lost his former reputation. Two farmers were discussing Neighbor Jones. "Old Jones ain't the man he used to be," said one. "No, an' he never was," replied the other.

It has always been true, as Gladstone expressed it in his day, that alcoholic drink has brought more disaster and ruin upon mankind than "war, famine and pestilence combined"; the supreme court of the United States emphasized an old truth when it declared the saloon traffic "a greater source of crime and misery" than any other business—and if the chief source of crime is not in itself a crime, what is a crime?—but the difference in these scientific days is that men have come to understand the reason why—emphasize that word—the reason why alcohol is inevitably damaging—because of its very nature, which no human manipulation can change.

It was my privilege to publish recently a remarkable array of testimony as to the fact that, as Dr. Charles Mayo of Minnesota, summed it all up, "alcohol's only place now is in the arts and sciences". This fact cannot be too often emphasized. In "The World's Work" for March, Dr. Howard A. Kelly declares:

"There is no single disease in the world of which alcohol is the cure. The fact is well known to science, but is rarely made clear to the layman. The purpose of medicine is to cure disease. Since alcohol cures no disease it is not a medicine. It has no place in medicine practice.

"There facts have not been established so very long. They run counter to old beliefs, which are hard to displace. But the effects of alcohol upon the mind and body of man have had very careful study during this generation; that study crowded alcohol first from the list of curative medicines into the field of stimulants; then from the field of stimulants to the company of depressants. It is now well known that alcohol does not cure, does not stimulate. It lessens mental and physical vitality, creating only an illusion of vigor that does not exist.

"All this has been proved by innumerable tests. A typist of known speed and accuracy has taken alcohol in graduated quantities. His speed and accuracy decrease in proportion to the alcohol he takes. Start ten men of comparable vigor up a mountain side, five of whom have taken drinks as stimulation. These five will fail to climb. Even a pint of beer will lessen their physical powers by 10 to 15 per cent. Railroads learned long ago that their operative employes must not drink at all. It has been shown that one spoonful of liquor lessens the ability to think and act quickly.

"Despite all this, considerable number of doctors hold on tenaciously to the prescription of liquors * * * But the forward-looking doctors, the ethical intelligent doctors are against liquor prescriptions almost to a man. All the evidence condemns it. Science demonstrates the inadvisability of it. The facts are becoming more widely understood all the time."

The moderationists attempt to "pooh pooh" these facts, but they are unable to disprove. The editor tries to minimize the effect upon public sentiment by the statement that "as much can be said for alcohol as against," but the public is beginning to realize that this is not true. Let me again emphasize upon the editor's attention that the testimony against alcohol is overwhelming and undeniable. And to the light of these facts, I submit that when a man fights for the "personal liberty" to muddle his own brain and undermine his own efficiency he places himself in a foolish position which reflects upon his own judgment; the citizen who seeks to restore the traffic in such stuff is working against the welfare of his fellow citizens; and those who traffic in the stuff for profit are public enemies. Why, then, seek to repeal or modify the fundamental law? Enlightened self-interest, as well as loyalty, counsels conformity therewith.

First Aid Helps.

Mr. Editor: Under the heading of "Pointers to Parents" I noticed a few first aid helps to mothers which reminded me of a first aid help I possessed in poetry form for poisoning. I enclose it for you to use at your discretion.

AN INTERESTED READER.

Norwich, April 4, 1928.

The enclosure follows:

Send for the doctor, name the drug suspected.
Keep any cup where poison is detected.
In every case, whate're the poison be,
You may give, water, milk and eggs and tea.
Oils may be used, but two exceptions lie—
In phosphorus poisoning and in Spanish Fly.
In every case where staining is not found
To give emetics is both safe and sound.
So mix at once, be quick and don't be flustered
Two tablespoons of salt and one of mustard.
If stains are present then proceed with care
And of emetics most of all beware.
The poison known to make the patient placed
For Alkali Corrosives give an acid.
An acid taken then reverses the matter
And give an alkali to kill the latter.
The acid antidotes in household use
Are table vinegar and lemon juice.
What alkalis to use needs no revealing—
Take whitewash, chalk, or plaster from the ceiling.
Carbolic acid poisoning to make the patient easier
Give two tablespoons of sulphate of magnesia.
In oolum poisoning, he snores like some old Druid
Give him a teaspoonful of Condy's fluid;*
In strychnine opium, when there's long stagnation,
Resort to artificial respiration.

YOUR HEALTH

MAKING ALASKA WITH BAD FEET.

By Edward A. Rich, M. D., Tacoma, Wash.—Member Gorgas Memorial.

I took a chap over the Chilcoot trail last year who couldn't walk six city blocks.

Fifty miles of climbing and descent, fording streams swollen by the summer rains, glaciers bounding all horizons, a grand canyon of mountains, and boulder valleys. The "Scales," the Summit, and then down Long Lake and Lake Linderman to the dream city of gold, Dawson.

In all the western world there is no 50 miles of trail so brimful of history and romance and tragedy as the Chilcoot trail of '98. It takes a strong back and strong legs to make it, for blankets and grub have to be packed. We all had the proper equipment for the five day hike except "Tommy Dear."

Tommy Dear insisted he was fit. We took him because he was young, looked handsome, and didn't appeal to be a bad egg. First night the poor boy confided his weaknesses. He couldn't walk. We were six miles up the valley and just had to patch him up and proceed.

Tommy Dear made the trip and I know anybody can do it if they know how to coddle their feet. Being an orthopedic surgeon I wanted to experiment with the wreck and see if he could do it.

Fortunately he had some heavy-soled boots along. These we soaked in our bacon grease every night after mess. Tommy had very high arches and callosities on his heels and under his anterior arches just back of his toes. We took adhesive plaster from all the party and patiently, layer after layer, we built up the middle of his soles so that he had to walk on the center of his feet. He declared he felt as if he were horseback riding on stirrups. At Sheepcamp we found an old boot and nailed on a cleat under his arch. We kept his feet dry by packing rags and old socks about the tops of his boots, strapping tightly, and changing after fording every stream.

Most of our talcum powder went into Tommy Dear's boots. At night we dried his boots out and scrubbed his feet in the icy streams. With the tenderest solicitation, at noons and nights, our party hovered over Tommy Dear's feet. We pulled off his boots and his borrowed socks and made a tour of inspection. Every callous and red spot was checked for adhesive plaster before the next march.

Tommy Dear not only made the trail but he covered the 50 miles and came through with better feet than when he sneaked in on us. We couldn't get the improvised, well-fitting shoes away from him while we lingered in Alaska.

Which all goes to show that a soldier or any one else is just as good as he makes his feet.

Fellowship of Prayer

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

"Hope through the Cross"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

Read: Isaiah 53.

MEDITATION: This is Good Friday. We hold before us the cross. The symbol of death has become to us the symbol of life and hope. It brings us the assurance of divine help in our extremity. A traveller in the mountains of Albania speaks of an overhanging wayside cross which tells travellers "of the help of God for weary men." The cross stands for the central fact of religion, the suffering good will of God for the poorest and meanest of mortals. The crucifixion of Jesus has become hope for us all. In His death we have found courage and salvation. The cross marks the way that leads to victory.

"O Cross that liftest up my head,
"I dare not ask to fly from Thee;
"I lay in dust life's glory dead,
"And from the ground there blossoms red
"Life that shall endless be."

PRAYER: Almighty Father, we would know the beauty of that life and death which this day commemorates. May the spirit which led our Saviour to the cross descend upon us now and fill our hearts with love of God and man. Amen.

The private lives of bacteria at work and work can now be filmed. Dr. S. Bayne-Jones, of the University of Rochester Medical school, has taken motion picture reels of thousands of generations of bacteria that enables a spectator to follow them through many days of growth and activity in a few minutes. Micromovies will aid biologists in working out obscure growth processes of many rudimentary forms of life, it is said, and in addition, classroom reels may be made for the instruction of students of medical and industrial bacteriology.

Hill of Kansas City today added the women's north and south championship to her list of golfing titles, rounding out three days of brilliant play with a decisive victory over Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago in the final round of the annual tournament. Mrs. Hill, who is the mother of a 14 year old boy and has been playing golf but six years, took command of the situation at the very start and was never headed. A 65 yard approach shot which ran true to the cup and dropped her a birdie and the first hole. She picked up another at the fourth after halving the second and third, but lost the fifth to Miss Van Wie's par three. A par three and a birdie four gave Mrs. Hill the sixth and eighth and a lead of three holes. The seventh and ninth were halved.

At the tenth, Miss Van Wie sliced into the woods and missed a four foot putt to go four down. The eleventh also went to the Kansas City woman, the twelfth was halved and a par four gave her the thirteenth and the match.

COMMITTEE HEARS EVIDENCE ON BREACH OF CONTRACT

Attorney John T. Burke of this city was engaged Thursday as a special committee, appointed by the superior court, in taking evidence in the case of Grace Desario Brogno and Joseph Brogno against Demetrio and Salvatore Chiningo, Jacob R. Slosberg, John Blum and Joseph Walski, all of Norwich, for breach of contract.

The hearing was conducted in the court of common pleas rooms. Attorney Burke is to make his report to the superior court.

The Brognos claim that they hired the Chiningos, who are contractors, to erect and construct an addition to their dwelling house located in Oak street, this city, and that the conditions were that the work should be completed by Thanksgiving day, 1926. They claim that the contractors failed to complete the work on time and that they failed to do good work, which the Brognos claim put them to an expense of about $1,000.

The Chiningos, after denying the allegations, sue for $2,000 on a counter claim, alleging that $1,916.07 is still due them for the work performed, [illegible] for $1,884.86, [illegible] Blum has one for $414.85 and Walski another for $133.50, all for materials furnished.

Attorney Thomas M. Shields appears as counsel for the Brognos, while Attorneys John H. Barnes and Edwin W. Higgins are counsel for the Chinings. Mr. Slosberg is represented by Attorney Charles L. Stewart.

MUST INCREASE CAMPAIGN FOR ACCIDENT PREVENTION

Connecticut cannot afford to reduce its efforts towards automobile accident prevention but should increase them to meet the conditions arising from a tremendous growth of traffic is the conclusion reached by Miss Ethel Usher, statistician for the state motor vehicle department, after a study of accident reports of the past five years. This study, with a particular analysis of the damage done by motor vehicles during 1927, is made the subject of a report which appears in the April bulletin of the department.

Vehicle operators, particularly, must be made to realize that their responsibilities are increasing, Miss Usher says. The reason for this is obvious, she points out, when the circumstances surrounding accidents are considered and the causes of the mishaps are studied.

The operators themselves report that they have been at fault in three-fourths of all accidents. This has been true in spite of the fact that in many cases where automobiles have collided with pedestrians, teams, trolleys, stationary objects and other things, the operator might have reported, without fear of contradiction, that he was without blame.

For 1927, Miss Usher finds but one really favorable condition or result. The ratio of killed and injured to the number of registered cars is showing a downward trend. Otherwise, unfavorable results are increasing. More persons were killed than ever before. More were injured. The property damage total exceeded that of any other year. Finally, the number of accidents was greater than in any year of the state's history.

A table giving to each town and locality a summary of its own motor vehicle accident situation has been included in the analysis. It discloses that only three towns were without accidents during the year, Hartland, Prospect and Warren. Hartland is the "banner" town of the state, having been free of accidents for the past three years. However, its population is only about 310 and there are but 75 cars registered there. Warren is on the list of "without accident" towns for the second consecutive year. Its population is approximately 260 and it has 91 registered cars.

The "hit-and-run" driver was reported as operating more frequently last year. Miss Usher finds that this group increases in number steadily. Also passengers in cars appear to be growing careless more rapidly than formerly. During the year 118 were injured because of some careless act of their own.

Friends of car owners were the drivers of more than one-fifth of all cars involved in accidents during the year. Employes, part owners, and lessees were the drivers of another fifth. Less than three-fifths of all cars involved were operated by the owners.

As is commonly believed to be the case, most accidents occurred at intersections of streets and highways, but contrary to the general impression, the majority happened during the daylight hours, on dry road surfaces and in clear weather. Of the 26,832 accidents last year, 13,651 were at intersections; 18,194 occurred on good road surfaces; 16,404 happened during daylight hours, and 20,948 in clear weather.

Miss Usher has a good word for visiting motorists. "How often," she says, "is the reason for a high accident record in any locality given as the visiting motorists. If by that term is meant out-of-state cars, it is not to be credited for it will be noted in accident tables that they are not as a whole such a bad lot, after all, but that those owned locally or in the immediate vicinity of the accidents are the ones that cause the trouble."

A summary of results shows that the increase in the number of persons killed is largely in the class of children under 16 years of age, while the increase in the number of injured is among the adults or those 16 or more. There is apparently no difference, Miss Usher says, in the chances taken whether riding in a motor vehicle or as a pedestrian meeting one, except in the seriousness of the result, for more pedestrians are killed each year than occupants of cars, while more occupants than pedestrians are injured.

Miss Janet Atkins who attends school in Cos Cob, is spending the Easter vacation with her mother, Mrs. A. K. Atkins who is in Old Lyme for a lengthy visit with her father, Commodore N. M. Terry.

SUES FOR BALANCE OF $4,000 COMMISSION

David J. Kerr and Clarence Shobes, both of this city, are the plaintiffs in a suit brought in the superior court for $2,500 damages against Harry Trefes and Charles R. Johnson, both of Stonington.

The suit is brought on a claim for a balance due on a commission for sale of real estate to H. P. Ballou of Hartford.

It is alleged that the defendant agreed on April 2, 1925 to pay $4,000 commission and they did pay $2,000. It is claimed the defendants further agreed to pay the $2,000 balance of commission if the agents would secure a first mortgage of reasonable amount; or if the purchaser made a payment of $5,000 then the sellers of the property agreed to pay $1,000 commission and the balance of $1,000 when a further payment of $5,000 was made by the purchaser.

Now it is alleged that Trefers and Johnson have refused to pay the $2,000 balance on the commission although the purchaser has paid the defendants the sum of $5,000 as one payment and the agents secured a first mortgage of a reasonable amount, but the defendants refused to accept this mortgage.

The suit is returnable in May.

The distance from Seattle to Tokio by the route Lieut. Hall will follow is 4 300 miles.

CROWDS INSPECT NEW STORE OF SILBERMAN FURNITURE COMPANY

Between 5,000 and 6,000 people attended the grand opening of the new Silberman Furniture store, 37-41 Main street, Thursday evening. A formal reception from 8 to 10:30 o'clock marked the opening of the new store which is one of the finest and most attractive stores of its kind in New England. So great was the throng of visitors that a long line of people filed in and out of the main entrance on Main street throughout the greater part of the evening. No count of the number of people who visited the store was kept but it was estimated that over 5,000 people inspected the new store. The number of visitors was probably much larger than the estimate. There were souvenirs for all visitors, large packages of needles for the adults and Indian wigs for the children. Throughout the evening Brennan's orchestra furnished a concert programme which was interspersed with vocal solos by Mrs. William Schwolow of New Haven, who is a radio singer of considerable note.

Congratulatory telegrams from leading furniture manufacturers throughout the country were received during the afternoon and evening by the store manager and there were also a number of beautiful floral baskets received from admirers and friends of the Silberman company.

It was early last fall that the new $200,000 home of the Silberman Furniture company was started. The razing of the old structure on Water street which the company acquired when they first came to Norwich started last August. The new building, eight stories above the Water street level and six stories above the Main street level is entirely of brick and steel construction and the building is one of the most modern structures in the city.

The building is of fire proof construction throughout and all floors above the basement on Water street are of hardwood. The new front is of Indiana limestone and the entrance to the main floor is in the center of the building. Large plate glass show windows extend on either side and on all six floors above the Main street level.

At the rear of the main floor is a self service Otis elevator for passenger service which gives rapid access to all floors. The lighting fixtures are of the latest indirect lighting system and an oil burning furnace will provide heat for the entire building. The modern interior construction makes the store one of beauty and attractive design. A sprinkler system has been installed throughout the entire eight floors.

In all there is approximately 45,000 square feet of floor space in the new building, making it one of the largest stores in the state, devoted exclusively to home furniture and furnishings.

On the Water street level is a large room devoted to a garage and a shipping department. The second floor level, Main street side, is to be devoted to storage and for the display of stoves and hardware stock. There are special demonstration rooms for cooking purposes and for showing gas and coal ranges.

The third floor, which is the Main street level, is devoted to the display of living room furniture, home furnishings, etc., and at the rear of this floor is located the business office, the ladies' lounge room, attractively furnished, and a modernly equipped lavatory.

On the fourth floor is displayed dining room furniture. Over 50 suites can be displayed on this floor. Beds, dressers and bed room furniture are on display on the fifth floor and on the sixth floor is the children's department. Here are seen juvenile furniture, carriages, strollers, playthings, etc., in which the younger generation are interested.

Reed furniture, camping outfits, porch swings, hammocks, floor coverings, etc., are seen on the seventh floor, while on the eighth and top floor there are two score or more of bedroom suites and chamber suites. On the latter floor is also the rug department. The rug racks are arranged so that they will swing freely for daylight display.

A Stamford firm was awarded the contract for the erection of the new building and local concerns were given the heating, plumbing, lighting and other sub contracts. The Silverman Furniture Co., came to Norwich in November, 1926, having purchased the old Shea & Burke furniture store. At the time they came to Norwich the company officials immediately started plans greatly to enlarge the store and the new building is the result of their efforts to give the people of Eastern Connecticut a modern furniture headquarters.

Starting in 1890 in Stamford, on a small scale, Philip Silberman, sole owner of the business, built up a flourishing business and several years ago he erected a modern six story building in Stamford, which is one of the largest and most modern furniture stores between New York and New Haven. Herman Sharne, son-in-law of Mr. Silberman, is the manager of the Norwich store

BRISTOL LOSES TO LITTLE CARR CREEK FIVE FROM KENTUCKY, 19 TO 13

CHICAGO, April 5 —(AP)— Carr Creek, the Kentucky Mountaineer team that is showing basketball fans in these parts a new and potent type of basketball, tonight won its way into the quarter-finals of the National inter-scholastic at the University of Chicago, defeating Bristol, Conn., 19 to 13.

The style, which has but one principal and that to follow the ball, has now carried the boys from "Old Kaintuck" through three tournament games. The powerful Vienna, Ga., five one of the greatest teams ever to play in the stagg tournament, will be the next opponent of the lads from the Blue Grass state. They are scheduled to meet at 9 p. m. tomorrow.

As in previous games it was Shelby Stamper, brilliant curly headed forward, that led his team to victory. Completely covered, Stamper directed the offensive and defensive play, passing accurately and carrying the ball down the floor. The two Adams brothers led the scoring, Gurney and Ben. Gurney connected three times from the field and Ben two.

Had the Mountaineers been able to hit free throws the score might have been larger.

Might Have Made Score Larger

They missed 10 out of 15 shots from the free throw line, and during the first part of the game missed many short shots from under the basket. The first quarter, which ended two to two, was a wild scramble for the ball. In the second period, Carr Creek ran up a count of 11 to 5. Bristol rallied in the third session and pulled up 11 to 15, but two free throws by Rae were all they could collect in the last quarter while the Adams combination dropped in two long baskets.

Hugret and Roberts divided scoring honors for Bristol, each getting one field goal and a free throw.

The Mountain team made its first substitution in 19 games when Ben Adams was forced out on personals in the closing minutes of play. His place was taken by Cornet.

Vienna Wins Easily

Vienna, Ga., one of the smoothest teams ever seen in a Chicago tournament, swept through Oak Park, Ill., 40 to 15. The Cotton States champs played a tireless brand of basketball that no other team in this year's tourney has equalled. The half ended with Vienna leading, 15 to 8, Horne led the Vienna scorers with 8 field goals and one free throw.

Ashland, Ky., state champs won its way into the quarter finals, easily defeating Oregon, Mo., 41 to 22.

After the first half, which ended 14 to 11, the Kentuckians got started and rolled up a count of 22 to 15 at the third quarter. The fourth period saw them going at even a faster pace, with substitutes failing to slacken the hot pace.

TEAMS FROM MIDDLEWEST AND SOUTH FAVORITES

CHICAGO, April 5—(AP)—Basketball teams from the middlewest and south today became ranking favorites to win the National prep school title when each section qualified two fives for the quarter-final round of the University of Chicago tournament. The far west placed its only remaining entry for the fifty qualifiers of the day's play.

The five-man defense and delayed offense, as perfected by Canton, carried the Illinois state champions past the powerful Tulsa, Okla., team in the feature event of the day's program. As the result of its victory Canton is being picked by many to represent the upper half of the bracket in the finals Saturday night. The play of the Illinois boys matched that of the tall Tulsa team after the first few minutes and the Canton boys broke through to a 19 to 15 victory.

St. George, Utah, upheld the honor of the west, taking a close battle from Stivers of Dayton, Ohio, 27 to 25. The westerners however, will meet much harder opposition tomorrow, in Canton for the opening game of the quarter-final round.

A giant team from Grand Forks, N. D., ran pell mell through the Mize-Miss., defense to win, 38 to 20. Mize, the village that the map makers forgot, was no match for the fast travelling Flickertails.

By reason of its victory Grand Forks tomorrow will have the opportunity of matching its style of basketball against that as played by Alexandria, La., Alexandria, one of the two southern teams to advance another round upset the dope to defeat Jacksonville, Fla., 24 to 19, in a closely fought contest.

Morris, La., disposed of Couer D'Alene, Idaho, 31 to 21 in a game that marked the southerners as a dark horse in the race for national honors.

ONE-BOUNCE RULE NOT LIKELY TO GO IN BASKETBALL

CHICAGO, April 5 — (AP)— Any changes in the present basketball rules will not receive the approval of the National Association of Basketball coaches. Hhis was the consensus of more than 100 coaches who expressed themselves today at the annual meeting of the association.

Advocates of the one-bounce rule were much in the minority. Walter Meanwell of the University of Wisconsin, who favored the abolition of the dribble when it was first suggested a year ago, was indifferent as to probable changes.

Ward Lambert of Purdue, chairman of the association's rule committee expressed himself as being against any changes without first giving them a thorough trial.

Tomorrow, all the coaches will turn in written reports of their ideas of improving playing conditions.

While practically everyone present deplored reliable stalling it was decided that no ligeslation could be taken against it as such playing was a problem of the defense.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

PHILADELPHIA, April 5—(AP)—Beef isn't usually associated with speed but the good big man, nevertheless, usually will beat the good little man in sprinting. It is an axiom that holds good on the track as well as in the ring.

This can be taken on the word of Lawson Robertson, Pennsylvania and Olympic head coach, who was himself a "good big man" in his younger and spryer days.

When it comes to sprinting "Robby's" word is authority, he was himself a competitor in three Olympics and is in a coach's role this year for the fourth time. He has shouldered the full responsibilities of head coach for 1928 but he will find time to keep a close watch on the sprinters who are expected to score heavily for Uncle Sam at Amsterdam.

Big Man Will Do 9 2-5

It will take a "good big man" to startle the athletic world some day with the long looked for "100" in 9 2-5 seconds—the goal of all great sprinters.

"It will be done," Robby believes, "but it will take a strong six-footer, long striding and with lots of nervous energy to shave off that fraction of a second that has withstood attack for so long.

"We've got a great crop of dash men now in America, from coast to coast. One of them may turn in the super-effort. Some of them, like Borah, Paddock, Locke, Quinn, Bowman and others have come close to it."

"Nine-two" has been claimed for several speed kings but none has withstood official scrutiny satisfactorily enough to find a way into the record books. Since 1906, in fact, the only 100-yard mark under 9 3-5 seconds—the present world's record—that has been officially approved is the 9 5-10 of Paddock. This is limited to American recognition because the International Federation does not regard the tenth second watch as accurate.

Jimmy Rector, the old university of Virginia Star, was credited with 9 2-5 for the "100" back in 1905. So was Alf Leconey, the famous Lafayette speed merchant, four years ago at Allentown, Pa. Both were disallowed on the ground that the wind aided them.

Rector, however, was a "winder," in Bobby's opinion and the veteran ought to know because he raced Jimmy several times and beat him, in fact, in the 1908 Olympic trials.

"He was the fastest man off the marks I have ever seen," Robby recalls. "He would open up gaps of three to four yards on first class men within thirty yards. But after fifty yards he was 'lost.' He was a highly nervous type and smoked incessantly, even when in training."

Wefers Was Good

Paddock is probably the greatest all-around sprinter America ever has produced, in Robertson's opinion, but the veteran coach is reluctant to take the palm from Bernie Wefers, now coach of the New York Athletic club.

"You can get a fair idea of how good Wefers was by the fact that he ran the '100' seventeen times in 9 4-5, held the 220 record of 21 1-5 for over twenty years and still holds the world's 300-yard record he set in 1896."

But the record books favor Paddock now. The blond Californian holds the only 9 5-10 mark for the 100 on record, has equalled the world's standard of 9 3-5 five times officially, held the 220 mark until Roland Locke lowered it two years ago and also possesses world's marks for 100, 200 and 300 meters.

At the "100" alone Robertson ranks Howard Drew, the famous Negro star of 15 to 20 years ago, as the greatest of them all.

"Drew was a great competitor," Robby declared. "More sensational than his times was the decisiveness with which he beat good men when he was right. But Drew's career was cut short because of brittle legs and troublesome tendons. He broke down in the semi-finals of the Olympic 100-meters in 1912 but to show you how good he was he finished eight yards ahead of his nearest rival, Rupert Thomas, then intercollegiate champion, after pulling a tendon at the 90-meter mark."

LAYTON INCREASES LEAD IN NATIONAL TOURNEY

CHICAGO, April 5—(AP)—A former titleholder, John Layton of St. Louis, increased his lead in the National three cushion billiard tournament today by defeating Art Thurnblad of Chicago, 50 to 38, in 44 innings, in the third round of play.

The youthful Earl Lookabaugh of Chcago, who upset the defending champion, Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, in last night's play, met his master today in the veteran Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago. With a high run of eight, Kieckhefer beat Lookabaugh 50 to 30 in 35 innings, Lookabaugh's high was five.

Willie Hoppe of New York and Allen Hall of St. Louis today were the only other remaining undefeated entrants, each having won one game. Reiselt has won one and lost one.

Allen Hall, St. Louis, defeated Len Kenney, Chicago, 50 to 40, in 73 innings. Hall's high run was seven, Kenney's three. Hall took an early lead and held it.

Gus Copulos will meet Lookabaugh at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow. Reiselt will meet Weston at 3 o'clock. In the evening, Hall will play Kieckhefer and Hoppe will play Kenney.

SLATTERY SUMMONED TO TENN. FOR CONFERENCE

BOSTON, April 5—(AP)—Manager Jack Slattery of the Boston Braves has been summoned to Boston from Nashville, Tenn., for a conference here tomorrow with President Emil Fuchs and Vice-President Charles F. Adams of the club, it was announced tonight. No intimation was given as to the subject matter of the conference.

During Slattery's absence Rogers Hornsby will act as manager of the Braves.

Lambert's All-Stars Win

Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Lambert's All Stars defeated the Y Emps third team, 22 to 18, in a very fast and close game the outcome being undecided until the last minute of play. Rizzuto played a very fine game at center. The lineup for the winners was Lambert f, Falcone f, Rizzuto c, McNeil g, Christy g, Niedwicki g.

PUTNAM EDGE WANTS GRID GAME FOR NOV. 12

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 5—Coach L. F. Noyes of Putnam high school would be pleased to receive word from some school grid eleven in regards to a game to be played on November 12. The Putnam coach will contract for the game either at home or away. Any school football manager interested should write at once to L. F. Noyes, coach of athletics at Putnam high school.

HIGH SCHOOL PROSPECTS

Killingly High

Killingly high in Danielson is, of course, a small school and plays its baseball games accordingly. A good schedule has been arranged, practically equal to that of any other club of its size.

The outlook here is fairly good. Killingly will probably win a few more game than it loses and its team may have a few record-breaking days but against clubs above its class it ought not to do much. Killingly has games scheduled with Chapman Tech and these ought to be interesting tests to definitely determine how the Danielson team is against clubs in other parts of this section.

The material is pretty good although there are no outstanding fielders or hitters. With proper coaching Killingly ought to have a team that will work smoothly and finish with not the worst record in these parts.

Killingly, Putnam and Plainfield are three strong rivals in the Quinebaug Valley and they ought to furnish some lively conflicts this season.

Tomorrow—Weaver high of Hartford

'BOUT SPORTS

The Academy-Bulkeley baseball series this year will be fought on two of the best-equipped high school grounds in the state and, yes, in New England. The local campus and Mercer field in New London are fine layouts. Bulkeley's is a bit more pretentious than the Red and White's but the Academy has the advantage of school and field adjoined.

Some hefty attendance marks ought to be set up in this series with the campus able to seat 1500 or so and accommodate twice that number. Mercer field has never been tested at a diamond tilt but it is big enough to house many hundreds.

PAT E MARR, LOS ANGELES, LEADS RUNNERS IN STORM

AMARILLO, Tex., April 5—(AP)—Snow and rain hampered the racers in the coast to coast foot derby today but failed to impede Pat De Marr of Los Angeles who showed as his best when the rough going to lead the van into Amarillo over a 37 mile stretch from Vega, Tex.

De Marr's time was 5:29:42. He is well down the list on the basis of elapsed time, having covered the 1,189 miles from Los Angeles in 297:24:44.

John Saulo, Passaic, N. J., finished second in 6:05:07. His elapsed time is 223:27:57. In third place was Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., who ranks second for the total distance with elapsed time of 201:15:28.

Philip Granville, Hamilton, Ont., was fourth in 6:20:13, while Arne Souminen, Detroit, holder of first place in the race, was fifth with 6:22:23. Souminen's leadership time is 196:07:43. Granville's total is 225:33:33.

Others among the first sixteen finishers today in the field of 91 survivors were Louis Perella, Albany, N. Y.

David Davies of Sandwich, Ont., quit the race today because of a stomach ailment, reducing the field to 90.

The hard going in today's lap over a snowswept highway had its effect on others. Five men, including Mike Kelly, Goshen, Ind., and Billy Bush, Boston, temporarily dropped out. They were picked up by patrol cars but announced their determination to make up the mileage.

DAVIS CUP TEAM HAS FINAL PRACTICE FOR MEX. CONFLICT

MEXICO CITY, Mex., April 5—(AP)—The American Davis cup players went through their final practice drill today for the forthcoming play with Mexico, William T. Tilden vanquishing Junior Coen, the Kansas City schoolboy, 8-6, 6-4, 6-3.

"Big Bill" was in superb condition for his singles match against Robert Kinsey, cup player for Mexico, which will take place tomorrow.

An exhibition double match will be played tomorrow morning with Wilmer Allison and Coen opposing Lanuel Llano and Mariano Lozano, who are not members of the Mexican Davis cup team but among the best of the Mexican players.

Davis cup play starts at 2:30 p. m. with a singles match between John Hennessey and Ricardo Tapia, at 4 o'clock the second singles match will bring Tilden against Kinsey.

BILL MELHORN WINS RICHMOND OPEN WITH 288

RICHMOND, Va., April 5—(AP)—"Wild Bill" Melhorn, of Pittsburgh with a total of 288 for the 72 holes, won the Richmond open golf tournament here today, leading Joe Kirkwood, of Albany, Ga., by four strokes. Melhorn shot 140, two under par, for the final 36 holes.

The winner's prize was $1,000 and Kirkwood's $700, the rest of the field divided $1,800.

Emmett French, of Southern Pines, S. C., and Al Espinosa, Chicago star, finished with 289 each in third place. Johnny Farrell, of Quaker Ridge, N. Y., finished seventh and Bobby Cruickshank of Purchase, N. Y., eleventh out of the money. Cruickshank played through the day suffering from rheumatism and had a dismal 81 for one of his rounds today.

NEW BRITAIN GUARDS TO CLOSE SEASON SATURDAY

Failing in an attempt to arrange a post-season playoff with the New Haven Atlas for the State league title, the New Britain Guards have decided to close their season with the clash with the Original Celtics Saturday night at the Stanley Arena in the Hardware City.

This means that the Guards will not finish out their series with the Plainfield Pros. This set of games was advertised as for the state championship but, after Plainfield won the first game, there was a disagreement over guarantees and as to when the second tilt would be played.

E. CONN. HIGH SCHOOL SEASON TO OPEN SATURDAY

The first game of the eastern Connecticut scholastic baseball season will be played Saturday afternoon at Morgan Park, Chapman Tech furnishing the opener against Deep River. Tech's candidates reported only Tuesday so that there is little time to prepare for this game, which always proves more or less hard.

ACADEMY FINISHES FIRST WEEK'S DRILLS, STILL IN PRELIMINARY WORK

The Academy finished its first week of practice Thursday afternoon still in the green as far as any first team has been named or extra hard work been held. The week was devoted mainly to preliminary work with all candidates getting an equal chance to display their wares.

The practice yesterday was devoted mainly to hitting, with a seven-inning practice game to terminate the session. Of the two teams that started, the one that looked most like the varsity took a 4 to 2 defeat, although there were so many substitutions by Captain Goldblatt, in an effort to give everybody a chance, that little cognizance can be taken of this fest.

The infield is still in bad shape, although considerably dryer than the first of the week, and for this reason there was little chance for any work in the field.

Younger players continue to show real class on the squad. An infield

WALTER MISH
Academy Outfield Candidate

of Chet Berghinzo at first, Navick at second, Witkin at short and Mickey Breen at third looked exceptionally good and when it is considered that all but Witkin are lower-middlers, the outlook is even more pleasing to N. F. A. followers. Cummings and Walter (Fat) Mish in the outfield continue to do well.

Alumni Lineup Announced

The lineup for the alumni team was announced Thursday by Manager William McKnight and it sure looks like one that can test the Wildcats to the utmost. The infield is three-quarters composed of members of teams of the past two years and it should stop many drives down through its territory.

The team of graduates will take the field a week from Saturday, April 14, with Pete Labenski or Henry Couture pitching, Al Mish behind the bat with Chick Stanley, class of 1914, at first, Steffy Cimikoski at second, Pheno Tombari and Ray Yerrington at third with Couture or Labenski in left, McKnight, class of 1913, in center and Manchester, class of 1911, in right field.

There will not be any practice for the rest of this week, the next workout coming on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Quite a few are watching the boys go through their paces these days. Captain Goldblatt was in charge of the squad again Friday, Coach Brigham having gone to his home in Worcester. He will be back to start the squad on the final grind on Tuesday.

The flaming red shirts and stockings sure are something different in the line of high school uniforms. With the forthcoming Wildcat sweaters, they ought to make the Red and White some classy club.

BROWN TO PLAY WITH ACADEMY INDEPENDENTS

Aubrey Brown, C. F. C. and Taftville Crescents flash, will play with the Academy Independents in their clash with the Windham High Indies next Wednesday night at the Willimantic state armory. This will be the preliminary to the All Heller-Hartford Yankees game.

Brown will replace Lloyd Jarvis at a forward. Jarvis is now in training for baseball and it is deemed unwise that he cavort on the court any more this season. The rest of the local team will be the same as performed all year officially wearing the school colors, namely Les Pingree at the other forward, Joe Viau at center and Jim Kelly and Buck LaCroix at guards. This game is expected to give some idea as to what the local school quintet would have done with eastern Connecticut fives had they met them in the last month while at the top of their game instead of in the early or middle part of the season when they played miserably. Windham's lineup for this game will also be the same as that which played all year except for one post, also a forward, where Max Heller, who will play with his brothers will have Artie Miekle for a sub.

BULKELEY VARSITY BEATS SECONDS BY SCORE OF 5 TO 1

Bulkeley, which expects to have a state champion this season to wrest the title now held by the Academy, held a long workout Wednesday afternoon at Mercer Field. The first team beat the scrubs by a 5 to 1 score.

Waterbury Sells Catcher

WATERBURY, April 5—(AP)—Sale of Catcher James "Yama" Bradshaw to the Lewiston club of the New England league was announced tonight by Manager Dick Rudolph, of the Waterbury club. Bradshaw played with Lewiston last season under option.

LAUFER BREAKS ANOTHER WORLD'S SWIM RECORD

CHICAGO, April 5—(AP)—Another world's indoor swimming record tumbled tonight. Walter Laufer, 20 year old star of the Lake Shore Athletic club, Chicago, won the National senior championship in the 150 yard back stroke at the National amateur athletic union meet with the time of 1:37:8. The old record, 1:38:1, was held by the defending champion, George Kojack of the New York Boys club, who finished second.

David Young, of the New York Athletic club was third and George Finzler of the same club fourth.

By his backstroke victory, Laufer clinched high individual honors for the meet with a total of 16 points.

Johnny Weissmuller, of the Illinois Athletic club, won second individual honors and defended successfully his national 500 yard free style championship in a runaway race with three other national stars. His time was 5:35, which was 6 3-5 seconds slower than his own world's record.

His team mate, Paul C. Samson, was second; John Hawkins, former Princeton ace and now competing under the colors of the University of Michigan Union, was third, and Alberto Zorilla, New York A. C., fourth.

Weissmuller was content to lope along. At the finish he was one lap or sixty feet ahead of Samson.

Weissmuller's total point score was 15.

Interscholastic Sports

Chapman Tech opens its own and the eastern Connecticut (probably the state) baseball season with the game against Deep River tomorrow afternoon at Morgan Park, New London.

Bulkeley and Westerly meet next Wednesday in an important game.

The Academy campus is expected to be put in shape shortly for the baseball year. With no practice over the week end, that is, from last night, this affords plenty of time to get things ready for the opener next week, Saturday, with the Alumni.

The first scholastic tilt is with Deep River, Friday, April 20 and then Plainfield the next day, both at the campus.

Eddie Mansfield, former Bulkeley high player, is doing well with the Catholic university varsity, playing first base regularly.

Windham high is back at its baseball workouts after a day's rest because of the track meet held between its own students.

The Thread City school seems to lack a capable moundsman but Coach Tom Callaghan expects to remedy that situation shortly. Last year, Windham was very weak in the battery positions.

In the Academy game her flingers gave a terrible exhibition, walking something like 21 men.

BOXING JABS

Henry Bell and Paddy Jones are slated to meet at the next amateur card in Waterbury. They both are heavyweights and Big Boy Burlap knocked out both recently.

Next week, Friday, fights return to Norwich with the Pastime amateurs at Olympic hall.

The Duwell show will then be the following Friday.

Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, hits the comeback trail Monday night, meeting Clem Johnson at Fall River. April 20, he fights Johnny Urban at Syracuse.

Lew Tendler, veteran Philadelphia ringster, is slated to retire from the ring after his bout with Joe Dundee in the Quaker City Monday night.

Corporal Izzy Schwartz, recognized by the N. Y. commission as the world's bantam champ will defend his title against Routier Parra Monday night at St. Nicholas Arena, New York.

SUSIE CONTINUES HER CASUAL SURVEY OF NORWICH CONDITIONS

Susie runs up against some really tough snags in making her survey of the conditions in Norwich. She writes as follows:

Dear Ed:—

I see that the first of my survey was accepted so I have continued it and I gure do hope that I won't have to make no apologizing for it either 'cause I started it. Now this surveying racket ain't what it's cracked up to be, it couldn't be. Most people think that it is a soft snap to make a survey of a town but it ain't, not if it's done right. Of course I might sit down some where and let all the people what has a bone to pick and a couple of axes to grind come and whisper in my ear what was wrong with the burg. If I did this I'd have a survey that read like the lament of the Grand Pessimist of the noble and honorable order of chronic grouches and knockers. Believe me, Ed, since I started this survey I've had so many people tell me what was wrong with Norwich that if it was all true this old town has sunk so low that it would take two months to climb a ladder tall enough to look a snake in the face.

No Ed. I hope you know I ain't the kind of a person to just sit down and let people come to me and tell me what's wrong with the town. I'm going to find out for myself. I ain't going to dig up a lotta old records of the fire department and the reports of the city treasurer and tax collector and write a survey from them, not me. I went to see them people and I talked with them too and I got the real low down on the thing and it ain't so bad at that.

One of the first places what anybody in making a survey should visit is the tax office. Believe me Ed, you can find out a lot about things you don't know nothing about up there. Well I goes into the tax collector's office and there's Harold Robinson, the tax collector, all smiles, them ear to ear kind. "Hello, Shrimp," I says. You know we used to call Harold "Shrimp" when we went to school together. "Hello, Sousie" says Shrimp which was entirely uncalled for. "I suppose you don't want to see no more surveyors, do you " says I thinking that with so many going around that he must be pestered to death. "Ain't seen none yet but yourself" answers said tax collector. Well what do you know about that? Gosh I thought that according to things I'd read about 40 surveyors had camped in the office. Well we talked about politics, golf and the high price of pulty for a couple minutes before opening up on the survey of thetax situation.

Speaking of politics there's a election coming pretty soon ain't there? Well I ain't no candidate for mayor this year, nor any other, I got enough mud slung at me without being put up on no pedestal to be shot at. I see Harold Burt has been made town clerk, more power to him, he's a darned nice kid. Sure Ed, you an' I use to go to school with him. Yep, I be going to survey his office pretty soon. And Charlie Colt is city treasurer, praises be. Somebody says to me the other day that they wondered if "Carl" would carry the city money around in that black bag of his.

Well to get back to the tax office, me and the Shrimp sets down and chews the fat over the situation as has been told to us by a Boston fella. In looking over the tax situation I found that the situation was a whole lot bettern a lotta folks thought it was. Of course we gotta a low valuation and high tax rate but we is just as well off as most of the cities in Connecticut. We pay fifty-two dollars a thousand while another city pays thirty-one dollars. But we pay on a grand list of $22,000,000 while the other city pays on a grand list of $43,000,000. Now sit down and figure it out who pays the most. As for the city treasurer collecting the taxes and also paying out the money to save expenses, whose going to watch the city treasurer. When they put that system of having the city treasurer collect the taxes and pay 'em out at the same time I'll tell Charlie Colt he's going to get some opposition for office 'cause that's my idea of a position.

Say Ed, did you hear about the feller what thought he was signing a petition and signed away some of his property to the city for a lone buck. The city was planning to accept a certain street and all the residents on the street had deeded land to the city except one man. Those that had the work in charge being good friends of the man goes to him with a paper which he, for some reason or other thinks is a petition to have the city accept the street, and he signs it without reading it. Then he finds out that he has given about 450 feet of his property to the city for the sum of one dollar. Boy you should seen and heard him when he found it out. And the joke is that he ain't got his dollar yet.

Well Ed, old dear it's a long lane what don't have no ash cans and he may beat the city yet. Who knows and who cares. I guess this will be about all the surveying I'll do in this letter although they's a lot of other things that I have given the once over, including business ethics among the merchants if you know what I mean.

Yours as ever SUSIE

JACK DELANEY SIGNS FOR SHARKEY BOUT

NEW YORK, April 5—(AP)—Jack Delaney, former light heavyweight champion, tonight signed through his manager to fight Jack Sharkey, of Boston, in a 15 round heavyweight match at Madison Square Garden April 30. Sharkey signed articles last Friday.

The bout is just a "fight," Jess McMahon, matchmaker at the Garden, elimination tournament that brought defeats for both Delaney and Sharkey and a heavyweight title shot for Tom Heeney.

Delaney delayed signing articles almost a week, demanding that the winner be guaranteed a bout with Gene Tunney in September. The winner may battle Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, for the tournament consolation prize early in the outdoor season.

MAROONS BLANK RANGERS IN FIRST GAME

MONTREAL, Que., April 5—(AP)—The Montreal Maroons shut out the New York Rangers by 3 goals to 0 tonight in the first game of the series for the world's hockey championship.

About 14,000 enthusiasts packed the forum for the opening of hostilities between the divisional titleholders, International and American, of the National Hockey league. The second game for the Stanley cup will be played here Saturday night.

The teams battled through a scoreless first period apparently evenly match in attack and defense. The Maroons, however, took a one goal lead in the second period when Dutton, husky defense player, crashed through the Rangers' defense, took his own rebound and scored.

Furious exchanges and dazzling play marked the beginning of the third period. The Rangers held an advantage in the first few minutes but the Montreal squad broke away and Phillips, substitute forward, took a pass from Munro to Garner the second counter for the Maroons. Faced with a two goal deficit, the Rangers fought back desperately but could not penetrate the Maroon defense.

"What's this?" inquired the mother hurrying in.

"Why," explained the older boy, "lions don't eat bananas!"—Stray Stories.

Justice of the Peace Geary of St. Louis, Mo., announced that he would give leap year couples a good start and marry them for nothing, provided the bride frankly admitted she did the proposing. To Miss Ruth Bates of Wells, Me., has just been accorded a rare distinction, that of being admitted to membership in a church established nearly three centuries ago by a progenitor. Miss Bates is a lineal descendant of the Rev. John Wheelwright, an exile from the Massachusetts bay colony, who founded the First Congregational church of Wells in 1642.

Mrs. Emily Glazier recently died in the Emily Glazier Home for Aged Methodist Women at Pontiac, Mich., which was founded years ago with wealth inherited from her banker husband. Her son's financial difficulties swept this wealth away and she died in one of the rooms she had furnished soon after she had given the land for the home and advanced $10,000 for its erection.

If Gus Kennion of Florence village, O., had not been such a small man he might have saved himself five hours' imprisonment. Kennion's small stature permitted him to crawl into the back end of his coupe while he replaced a worn battery. But while thus engaged the cover came down and locked automatically. He yelled himself hoarse, but nobody heard. After squeezing and squirming he got a knife from his pocket and in five hours unscrewed the hinges of the cover.

He is widely known as the "Boy Preacher," who has been attracting much attention throughout the town, because of his remarkable sermons. Second Annual Spring Celebration

A Thousand Opportunities To Save

WE CALL THIS OUR SECOND ANNUAL SPRING CELEBRATION. In all sincerity it would be more truthful to call it "your" Spring Celebration, for while last year we did a great business during this event, and to show our appreciation we have decided to make this an annual affair. You will profit as much in proportion as we do.

First, you will participate in the great savings we make by purchasing in tremendous quantities with twenty-two (22) other great furniture stores. You will pocket a substantial savings on everything you buy here. Then, you will have the choice of the latest and finest furniture, as selected by the most capable buyers in the business—and by the manufacturers themselves.

New shipments are arriving daily. Every piece we receive is absolutely the latest and finest in furniture fashion, design and construction, and any piece or suite may be yours at a price lower than you can get it for anywhere else in the city.

Come in and look around—you are under no obligation to buy—and we can assure you that you will be welcome to visit this store even if only for a comparative shopping tour. By visiting our store and seeing the beautiful furniture displayed, we set a standard of beauty in your mind—so that when you want furniture you will know where to get it—at real savings—and convenient terms.

Buying Power

Our store operates under practically the same conditions as the great industrial enterprises of this day do to be able to sell their products at such prices that every one can afford them. Mass Buying—Mass Production—these are the keynotes of modern business.

We are affiliated with a great organization of 22 leading furniture stores in the East—we all buy cooperatively—in tremendous quantities—guaranteeing our manufacturers such a volume of business that they can afford to give us substantial savings in prices. In turn, we pass these savings on to you—actually putting money into your pocket.

Our Spring Celebration offers you a thousand opportunities to save money through this gigantic buying power. Don't forget—we are the only store in this city operating under this plan.

Values

There is a great distinction between a low price and a good value. Any cheap grade of furniture can be sold at a low price—but fine furniture at a price much lower than is ordinary—and much below what other stores charge for the same articles—that is good value. Our buying power enables us to give you really fine furniture at prices substantially lower than you can get them elsewhere. Our Spring Celebration is just full of such good values. We are very proud of them, too. Come in and see for yourself, then, if you like, go elsewhere and compare prices—you will come back—we know that.

Terms

Anything in this store can be bought out of your income—you can practically make your own terms. You don't have to deprive yourself of anything you need, nor of anything you want. A small down payment delivers your purchase—the balance can be paid in divided monthly payments that you won't even miss. Let us show you how.

The Advertised Price Is All You Pay

No need to explain this—the price you see in the newspapers or on our price tags is all you pay—not one penny added for credit. Assuring you that at all times our advertised prices will be as low, if not lower than any store in this territory. Come—look—compare and be convinced.

Triple Guarantee

Last, but by far not least—everything you purchase here is triply guaranteed—but the manufacturers—by our purchasing organization—and by ourselves. You realize that the reputation of this firm for the past 23 years would be sufficient guarantee for any purchase that you desire to make, for we at all times assure our customers of satisfaction.

To The Public

During our Annual Spring Celebration all merchandise sold, whether for immediate or later delivery will be delivered free, within a radius of 100 miles—the same terms and service will be given our out of town customers. Transportation expenses will be refunded in every instance. It will pay you to set aside one day next week to attend this Annual Spring Celebration Sale.

To The Public

Our President has authorized us to advise our friends and customers and prospective customers that the savings on furniture this year will be as great, if not greater than one year ago this month—your splendid response to our Spring Celebration Sale, April last year was sufficient evidence of your approval and faith in what we know to be genuine reductions.

Second Annual Spring Celebration

Spring—the most beautiful season of the year—when Old Mother Earth drops millions of years from her age and blooms into a riot of color—very much like a modern woman changing from sombre winter garments to her Easter Parade regalia.

And millions of Homes take their cue from Mother Earth—from staid winter furnishings they change into the bright, fresh colors of Spring. Millions of wives commandeer millions of golf-and-fishing-fevered husbands to the arduous labors of rug beating, wall dusting and what not.

But it's all worth it. Within a short week or two the transformation is complete—and both home and occupants get into perfect tune with the season—ready for a pleasant, cheerful summer.

Our Spring Celebration commemorates this best beloved season—it is our most elaborate effort to please our patrons. New Merchandise, fresh in style, color and design, harmonizing in every possible way with Spring, awaits the beauty-hunting women of Norwich.

THRIFT.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

One of the biggest department stores of New York city, for some reason best known to its managers, is trying to "sell the idea" of thrift to that prodigal town.

To anyone at all acquainted with the customs and tendencies of New York city people, the idea of interesting them in thrift seems almost as absurd as would an attempt to sell ulsters in Africa or palmleaf fans in Greenland. But this particular store deals more or less in what the slang of the trade calls "novelties," and it is possible that the managers may think thrift comes under that head—in New York.

Wise to the sentiments of its customers and fully appreciating their average tastes, these advertising managers are not directly appealing to either reason or good sense in their campaign, but rather to those simian and apish instincts which their long experience has shown them are the chief motives of New York city's manners and practices.

They base their appeal on the newly invented slogan that "It is Smart to be Thrifty." This, is self-evident appreciation of the fact that New Yorkers are much more likely to heed an appeal to be "smart" than one to be sensible.

Well, whatever their motive, and regardless of the methods they use, one can't help wishing them well in their campaign. If New York city can, by any human means, be converted to the idea and practice of thrift, there is nothing imaginable which may not be hopefully expected.

If and when New York turns thrifty, no one will dare doubt that the desert of Sahara may be transformed into a garden and the North Pole into a summer resort and bathing beach. One may even look to the gathering of grapes from thorn bushes and of figs from thistles. Or the resumption of intelligence in the U. S. senate.

For, if there is any one thing on its face more widely implorable than any other thing it is the association of thrift with New York city and its people.

There need be no suspicion out that the dwellers in that modern Gomorrah are mentally acute enough. Nor any question about their sense of acquisitiveness. Nor one lisping momentary doubt of their greed for gain. But as to their comprehension of what thrift means all past experience and present observation go to prove that they haven't any.

It happens that no less than seven of the old farms neighboring me have, within 20 odd years, passed into the hand of New York city buyers, who use them chiefly as summer residences. And not a single one of the seven has thus far shown, in his or her management of the properties, a single gleam of thrift. Two of the seven are stingy, beyond even the ordinary rural meaning of that term. And stinginess is just as far removed from thrift as extravagance. The other five are simply wastrels, whose only idea of pleasure seems to be the keeping things in an incessant turmoil, even if they have to pour out their money as reklessly as a housewife pours dish-water down the kitchen sink.

They can't seem to see an inch beyond the ends of their noses nor to be able to plan farther ahead than tomorrow morning. One of them moves the barn to a new site because it obstructs his view. Then he rebuilts it—at about twice the cost of an entirely new barn—because its internal arrangements do not suit him. Then he moves it again, because he finds it isn't so handy to drive his car in as he expected. And then he moves it, still again, into an excavation in the hillside, because some landscaping expert tells him it is too conspicuous standing on the level.

Another one rebuilts his old barn into a modern cattle barracks, at great cost. Then he learns that other people are going out of the cow business because it no longer pays expenses. So he sinks several thousands more in the erection of a palatial hennery, brooder-house, etc., and the purchase of a thousand or two baby chicks. Then he finds the cost of grain, attendance, delivery, etc., is more than the income from his eggs, so he sells off the whole flock at any attainable price. And the empty hen houses join the empty cattle barn, as standing monuments of sheer waste.

All are constantly remodelling or rebuilding or tearing down something, because they haven't foresight enough to see into the future or thrift enough to deplore the wastefulness of needless mistakes.

That, however, isn't by any means the worst of it. They all of them, seem to have money enough, acquired in the big city by methods best known to city money-makers, to afford being thriftless. Their improvidence and wastefulness doesn't appear to worry them any. If they pour a thousand dollars into a thirsty hole in the ground down which the money disappears without visible result, they simply send to the bank for another thousand or two. They can afford it.

But the contagion of their example is spreading and infecting work-a-day farmers, who haven't big bank deposits to draw on, and who can't afford to waste even pennies on fads or whims or crotchets.

I have in mind a fellow farmer who who still keeps a dozen cows and sells the milk. Last summer he turned down several offers of haying "on shares" and at least one where the desperate meadow-owner offered him all the hay on a ten acre lot, if he would only cut it, for the future good of the field. It was the ball season and the circus season, and the highways were tempting for long auto drives. Now, that same farmer is buying hay from a barn several miles distant, paying good money down for it hiring help to load and unload and drawing it in order to get fodder for his hungry cows.

Several other farmers, impelled by the difficulty of hiring help and the greedy inefficiency of such help as is procurable, have bought tractors, though most of the farms hereabouts are hilly and uneven. One, whose arable acres lie mostly in a level stream intervale, still uses his and finds it passably economical. The others have found them uneconomical, incapable of doing good work except under rarely favorable conditions, and have either discarded them or are vainly struggling to get crops from inadequately plowed and tilled fields.

Now, there isn't any calling in the whole long list of human activities which so imperatively demands the exercise of thrift as farming. It is increasingly difficut to succeed at it even with the aid of all the gumption and all the thriftiness latent in the farmer's make-up. It is impossible to succeed at it without the fullest exercise of that gumption and that thrift.

In the former days, every farmer recognized this fact and antede upon his knowledge, accordingi to his lights. In those times the prevalent danger was that thrift would degenerate ipto stinginess and miserliness. Farmers of that time were too apt to be close and grasping in their dealings. That seems to be one of the weaknesses of human nature. It can't practice a commendable virtue without over-doing it and falling heels over head into the vice which abuts upon it.

But, now-a-days, there seems to be less danger on that side than on the other. Many a farmer of the old days has lost money on his potatoes or his corn because he wouldn't take a fair price, but held for a bigger,—and held too long, till the market bottom dropped out. Now, his son or grandson is more apt to take the best price he can get at digging time, in order to get the money for his gas-wagon or his radio. Besides, selling at the field saves the trouble or sorting and binning. When it comes to a showdown between thrifty foresight and "saving trouble", the latter contender too often wins out.

Thrift doesn't consist in hoarding up pennies, but in so spending them as to get dimes in return.

Thrift isn't so often money-saving as opportunity-grasping.

Thrift is as utterly unlike miserliness as it is unlike prodigality.

Thrift is no utilization in full of all one's requirements,—those which come as side-issues, as truly as those which we call direct.

That means that it isn't any more willing to waste potato-parings than dollar bills.

It seeks to put everything earned or projected to some effective and profitable use.

And it indignantly refuses to stint either trouble or work in this attempt.

It isn't open-mouthed for any "easy snap" but is ardently ambitious for results,—for accomplishment.

It is not only a means of personal advantage but a service of the world and the future.

It does not seek to dam up and reservoir all the waters of the stream, but to direct their irrigating or power-producing values into productive channels.

"Waste not, want not," is its immemorial slogan.

It is the one practical virtue most needed,—and most lacking in this slap-dash age.

If that New York city department store can "sell the idea" to that town, its example of reform may lead the city imitators in the "rooral deesticks" to follow after.

Viewed in that light, its effort deserves commendation and co-operation.

But I can't say that it inspires any very great outburst of optimistic hope.

THE FARMER.

A statute similar to the Baumes law, which provides life imprisonment as a penalty for a fourth felony in New York, is to be considered at a conference of Pennsylvania judges and districts attorneys in Philadelphia today.

Bobby Consults Boomer the Nighthawk

What one doth know, another may;
It frequently turns out that way
—Bobby Coon.

Bobby is quite right about it. It is surprising how often a person thinks no one else knows what he knows, only to find that it is common knowledge. So if you cannot find out a thing from one person, it is a pretty good plan to try another. Bobby Coon knew that Scrapper the Kingbird and Sunshine the Yellow Warbler visited the faraway Tropics every winter. But he didn't know of any other of the feathered folk who went so far. So Bobby was more than a little surprised when Scrapper told him that if he had any more questions to ask to go ask them of Boomer the Nighthawk.

"It can't be," thought Bobby Coon, "that Boomer the Nighthawk goes way down there. I don't believe it. It doesn't seem reasonable."

So sure of this was Bobby that he just dismissed the matter from his mind; and, then, just in the dusk of early evening a day or two later, Boomer the Nighthawk came sailing low over Bobby's head. Before he realized what he saw saying, Bobby cried, "Is it true, Boomer?"

Boomer swung around and up. He darted across above Bobby. Bobby heard a faint click, as Boomer caught an insect in the air. He went up and up and suddenly he came shooting down. My, how he did come down! It looked as if he would dash himself against the ground. And, suddenly, close beside Bobby, Boomer checked himself, and there was a loud booming noise, caused by the air under his wings. He flew back and forth for a moment and then alighted lengthwise on a limb just above Bobby's head. You see, he didn't quite trust Bobby. He knew that Bobby Coon has a liking for fresh meat. "Did you ask me something, Brother Coon?" inquired Boomer.

"Where do you spend your winters?" inquired Bobby abruptly.

Boomer chuckled. "You wouldn't be any wiser if I should tell you," said he. "It is a long, long, long way from here."

"Perhaps I would," retorted Bobby Coon. "Do you go as far as Scrapper the Kingbird?"

Boomer fairly chuckled this time. "Brother Kingbird goes a long way," said he, "but I've only just begun to fly when I get down where he goes."

"I don't believe it," said Bobby, to him shortly.

Boomer chuckled again. He was feeling very good-natured. "I knew you wouldn't," said he. "Didn't I tell you wouldn't? It is no use wasting time talking to people who won't believe what you say. So, if you'll excuse me, I think I'll go look for some more flies."

"Did you ask me something, Brother Coon?" inquired Boomer

"Wait a minute! Wait a minute!" cried Bobby Coon. "I guess if you say that you go farther south than Scrapper the Kingbird, it must be so. I really didn't mean to doubt you, Boomer. Do you ever see Scrapper when you are down there?"

"Sometimes," replied Boomer. "Sometimes I see him when I'm passing through. In fact, almost every year I see him down in the land of Banana Bill."

At that, Bobby Coon fairly hopped off the ground. "So there really is a Banana Bill," he cried.

"Certainly," replied Boomer. "Banana Bill the Toucan is very well known down there."

Bobby nodded his head knowingly. "Scrapper has been telling me about him," said he. "You know, between us, Boomer, I wasn't quite sure whether all that Scrapper has told me was true. I certainly would like to see that land where Banana Bill lives. I suppose there are many queer folk living down there."

Boomer chuckled again. "When I've told the folks who live down there about you folks who live up here, they all think you are queer," said he. "Take Prickly Porky's cousin, for instance. When I told him about Prickly Porky, he just grunted and said, 'What a queer fellow.' So there you are!" said he.

Disputed Ownership

It's just me and my pipe and my rod and my line,
And all of the world, and the sunshine are mine.
The meadows are mine, and the trees and the rills,
And the clouds are all mine, and the skies and the hills.

The cows low for me, and the birds sing for me,
And the wind in the grass, and the bloom of the sky,
Are mine—they're all mine. Everything that is good,
The prairie and stream and the mountain and wood.

Another holds deeds to the prairies, I know,
And others lay claim to the cattle that low,
And another lays claim to the hills and the trees;
They say they are theirs, all their own, if you please!

Doesn't that make you smile? All this glad out-of-doors,
The beams in the grasses, the wild bird that pours
Its soul out in music should belong to them, too;
They might as well claim them as claim them they do.

Sometime they'll go away, and they'll go all alone;
And they'll not take a thing they now claim they own—
And neither will I when life's playtime is through,
But while I am here I am claiming them, too.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW YORK

IS YOUR CRANKCASE READY FOR SPRING?

Socony dealers will save ... motorists of New York and New England many thousand dollars this week by asking courteously, "Is your crankcase ready for spring?"

WE have instructed Socony dealers to ask this question.

Cars are ruined every spring because owners merely add a little clean oil to the dirty, diluted oil that has been in the crankcase all winter.

Now, at the beginning of warm weather, is a good time to get this straightened out. Winter driving is hard on motor oil. Cold weather starting demands repeated use of the choke, shooting raw gasoline into the cylinders. Some of this seeps down into the crankcase, cutting the oil, diluting it. This thin, diluted oil is almost as bad as no oil at all.

Every automobile engine accumulates dirt. Some of this comes in through the air-intake as dust. It is collected by the oil, and eventually it gathers in the bottom of the crankcase as a sediment.

It contains grit. Oil that has grit mixed in it ceases to be a good lubricant and tends to become a grinding compound. And grinding compounds are worse than no oil at all.

Drive in to the most convenient Socony Station and tell the Socony man to get your crankcase ready for spring. He will drain the old oil. He will flush your crankcase with Socony Flushing Oil. This cuts out all the sediment and leaves in place everywhere a thin protecting film of lubricant. Then he will fill up with Socony Motor Oil.

You pay only for the small cost of the oil. There is no charge for the service.

Set aside the few minutes today that are needed for this service. Insure the joy of your spring driving. Protect yourself against expensive repairs later on.

Will be Assistant Announcer

Miss Betty Budnick (Betty Selwyn), popular local radio star, is visiting for the holidays at the home of her parents at No. 23 Colt Street.

Miss Budnick has recently received the honor of being selected from among New York's radio entertainers, to go to WPG at Atlantic City, N. J., to serve as assistant announcer and as a broadcaster.

Her many friends in Norwich are pleased to learn that she is soon to be heard over the station at "The Playground of America," and, remembering her many appearances before the microphones of metropolitan stations, feel certain that at WPG she will also prove a feature.

Metropolitan papers have been liberal in their praise of Miss Budnick's work over the radio. Sunday edition this week giving considerable space to her work.

LARGE VOLUME OF PROFIT-TAKING FAILED TO WEAKEN THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, April 5—(AP)—A broad upward movement of prices on the New York Stock exchange today lifted more than three score issues to record high levels. Despite the large volume of profit-taking inspired by the approach of the three-day holiday, the general market ploughed steadily forward with final quotations in many cases at or near the high levels of the day. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, the day's sales totaling 3,897,500 shares, the 20th consecutive full session that the 3,000,000 mark has been crossed.

There was little in the day's news to influence the price movement. Eastern railroad executives met to discuss consolidation plans and adjourned without making an announcement, but the persistent accumulation of the carrier stocks indicated that important developments were brewing. Call money went from 5 to 5 1-2 per cent but the increase was regarded as incidental to the heavy Easter demands for funds, and had no influence on the price movement. The weekly federal reserve statement on brokers' loans showed an increase of $153,929,000, bringing the total to a new high record at $3,979,308,000.

General Motors regained its position as a market leader on buying influenced by reports that a new pool had been formed in the stock, which closed 7 3-4 points higher at 193 3-4 after selling slightly above that figure. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Buys Uncasville Property

An inviting country estate at Uncasville has just been bought by Willis P. Austin of 265 Washington street, who will make it his home. This is the property formerly owned by Earl H. Fitzhugh, retired railroad president, who sold it about four years ago to James Knott, secretary of the Knott hotel corporation. Mr. Knott put in a playball court at an expense of over $1,000 and beautified the grounds considerably. The estate consists of 24 acres, has a 12-room colonial house with three bathrooms. It is about three-quarters of a mile west of the main Montville highway, has extensive orchards, a small pond and is a very sightly location. About May 1, Mr. and Mrs. Austin will move to the new place which they bought through the agency of Archa W. Colt.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

CHICKS MUST GET GOOD START IN LIFE

The ability to rear strong pullets, birds that are capable of standing up under the strain of continued heavy egg production, is one of the essentials of success in the poultry business. Getting away to a good start is of the utmost importance in rearing good pullets, and in this connection a few suggestions are offered on brooding and feeding chicks.

Chicks must have feed as soon as they see daylight. In view of the universal practice of withholding the first feed for 48 hours, the only alternative is to keep the chicks in the incubator or in chick boxes until ready for their first feed. Much digestive trouble in young chicks has been caused by placing chicks under brooder stoves a day or two before the first feed, after which the chicks invariably "fill up" on the indigestible material to be found in the litter.

The New England ration, or a good chick "starter" is satisfactory feed for the first few weeks. Hard grain is unnecessary. Chicks should be fed hard grit.

For sanitary reasons, all feed should be given in hoppers.

As used with brooder houses, wire floor runs are superior to board platforms.

The California milk ration is the best treatment for coccidiosis.

HINTS FOR THE FARM.

Old, thin pastures often can be greatly improved by sowing a few pounds of lespedeza, commonly called Japanese clover, on each acre. It makes excellent pasture, will thrive on both acid and sweet soils, and will reseed itself and spread everywhere.

Farmers frequently waste fertilizer by failing to combine with it other needed soil treatment. Lime will correct the acidity of most soils, and until it is corrected it usually is impossible to get full value from plant foods.

It is a poor policy to put weanling calves on pasture without a grain supplement. The little animals do not have the stomach capacity to eat such a quantity of the watery grass as is necessary to their nourishment.

Improperly selected seed frequently has been responsible for the winterkilling of alfalfa. It is a hardy legume crop when the right variety is seeded on land that is not acid. Alfalfa is no more difficult to seed than clover or other small seed legumes and as a rule is no more subject to winterkilling.

Seed sets from large potatoes are just as productive as similar weight sets from normal tubers. If seed potatoes are high and there is an opportunity to buy oversized stock at low cost because of the prejudice against unusually large tubers, it may be advisable to do so. Larger potatoes will require a larger weight an acre for seed and would have to be correspondingly cheap if they are to be practical.

Traps, poison and proper care in storing food, clothing, or other material attacked by mice will quickly diminish their number. Sacks of seed corn or other field seeds may be protected by naphthalene over and around the bags. Mice dislike the odor of the flakes and usually will keep away.

CIGAR BOX MAKES GOOD SEED BOX

The ordinary cigar box is an ideal "flat" for raising small quantities of seeds indoors. They are always easily obtained and the only preparation necessary is to punch a few holes in the bottom of the box for drainage. The heavier the wood in the cigar box the better, for the thinner ones are inclined to warp badly and some seed raisers bind the boxes with a few strands of wire before placing the soil in them to guard against this fault.

Cigar boxes are very convenient for it is an easy matter to set three or four of them in the ordinary window. The florist's flat, a fine arrangement for a large window where there is plenty of light and for placing in cold frames or hotbeds, is any shallow box about 18 inches square. Soap boxes, raisin boxes and similar boxes from which the contents have been removed are usually available at the grocer's for the asking. The soap boxes need to be sawed in half.

The chief factor is not to get a box that is too deep and unwieldy to handle. Two to two and one-half inches of soil is sufficient. Give good drainage with broken flower pots or crockery over the holes is the simplest method. Another is to cut a piece of burlap to fit the bottom of the box and place this over the holes. This permits drainage and prevents any soil escaping.

It is now time to get the seed boxes into action for the early vegetables if there is no frame available for the purpose. Make a resolution to start a frame another year as you plant the seed boxes. It is a great convenience, much easier to handle and the first expense is the chief one. The average frame which is only six feet will accommodate all the flower and vegetable seeds the average gardener will need and it will take much less care and attention than the indoor seed box which must be turned daily to keep the seedlings growing straight as they will always incline to the light.

PUREBRED DAIRY COWS EXCEL IN ECONOMICAL PRODUCTION

The statement is sometimes made that grade dairy cows produce as much milk and butterfat per cow as purebreds. Even when it is admitted that purebreds produce more than grades, it is sometimes claimed that the grades produce more economically. Such conclusions, according to Dr. J. C. McDowell, dairy husbandman of the United States Department of Agriculture, have, as a rule been based on general observations or on a comparatively small number of records.

As a matter of fact, after comparing the records of 29,397 purebred cows and 71,745 grades in dairy-herd-improvement associations, Doctor McDowell finds that these purebreds excelled the grades in both production and in income over cost of feed by 7 to 10 per cent. The results of this study are discussed in Circular 26-C, "Comparison of Purebred and Grade Dairy Cows," just issued by the department.

On an average, in one year the purebreds of all ages ate $14.52, or 23 per cent worth of feed more per cow than the grades. They produced 10.6 per cent more milk and 6.7 per cent more butterfat than the grades, and in yearly income over cost of feed they excelled the grades by 9.7 per cent, or $8.66 per cow.

The records also showed that the purebreds, on the average, excelled the grades in milk production until the age of 12 years, in butterfat production until the age of 11 years, and in income over cost of feed per cow until the age of 11 years. After these ages the grades slightly excelled the purebreds. Doctor McDowell attributes this to the practice of closer culling in grade herds than in purebred herds. It is obvious that culling out the low producers from the grade herds is largely responsible for only high producers reaching the aged group. In purebred herds, however, culling is not so generally practiced on a production basis. Close culling is practiced in grade herds but the purebred herd is improved largely through breeding.

Both grade-herd owners and purebred-herd owners can draw a lesson from these facts, says Doctor McDowell. Closer culling is important in purebred herds and better breeding is essential in grade herds.

BETTER PREPARATION OF STRAWBERRIES FOR MARKET

The unsatisfactory condition and grade of strawberries often found on the markets indicates a need for more attention to standardization and better handling methods, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, nUited States Department of Agriculture, following a field survey of strawberry marketing methods.

Growers, says the department, should aim to produce berries of such uniformly high quality that no hand grading is necessary, as any extra handling adds to the possibility of decay. In many instances, however, hand grading is necessary and profitable, but the logical place to grade berries is in the field. Whether or not the berries have been hand or field graded, the filled boxes should be classified as to grade before they are placed in crates for shipment.

Field grading under proper supervision is preferred to grading in

BUILDING PERMITS GIVEN OUT UNDER NEW SYSTEM AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 5—In order that prospective builders of this city may not experience any difficulty in the new zoning that has gone into effect here, Building Inspector William Gunn has inaugurated a new system of giving out building permits. Henceforth the person applying for a permit will receive a copy for permanent filing. The object of the new practice is to enable building inspectors to easily learn whether or not buildings under construction are conforming with the zoning system. Hitherto only one copy of the permit was used, and the inspector, to check up on work, was forced to refer to the records at the city hall.

GOOD FRIDAY SUSPENSION OF BUSINESS EXPECTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 5—Good Friday is to be generally observed in New London. Most of the stores will suspend business throughout the day, while others will remain open only until 10 o'clock. Solemn services will be held in St. Joseph's and St. Mary's Star of the Sea churches and St. James' Episcopal church.

ROTARY CLUB DIRECTORS ELECTED THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 5—At the meeting of the Rotary club of New London, held today at the Hotel Mohican, the following were elected directors: Robert L. Smith, Ward T. Alling, Frederick A. Baker, William A. Holt, Ezekiel Spitz, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, Edward S. Huntley. Within a short time these directors will meet and elect officers for the year. The meeting was a very enthusiastic one. An industrial film company of New York, showed moving pictures of the making of emery grinding wheels, as manufactured by a company in Worcester. A representative of the film company was present to explain the picture as it was shown.

BIG ARMISTICE DAY ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 5—Armistice day this year being the tenth anniversary of the closing of the World war, will see a tremendous celebration in this city, if plans of the Legion materialize. A tentative organization for arranging the affair was formed at the meeting last night.

ORAZIO SPINNATO DIES—NEW HAVEN R. R. EMPLOYE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 5—Orazio Spinnato, 47, of 123 Jefferson avenue, laborer in the employ of the New Haven railroad, died last night at Lawrence Memorial hospital from a fractured skull, sustained yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a steam shovel. He is survived by his wife, six sons, Marcy, Tony, John, Victor, Joseph and Orazio, Jr., Spinnato and a daughter, Miss Lena Spinnato. He had had been employed by the railroad 20 years. Spinnato and his son were included yesterday in a gang of laborers engaged in removing gravel from along the tracks east of Groton station. During the work by the steam shovel in transferring the gravel to cars, the elder Spinnato did not observe the heavy iron shovel as it swayed about five feet from the ground and was struck on the head. He was rushed to the hospital in an unconscious condition and an examination revealed a bad fracture. He remained in an unconscious state until his death.

At a special meeting of the councilors last night, the tax rate of New London for the fiscal years 1927-28 was set at 30 mills. This was slightly less than was anticipated and was made possible through a reduction of $30,000 in the street maintenance fund. The tentative appropriation called for improvements on Grove street, Connecticut and Walden avenues, which would have cost the city $30,000. After a vote it was decided that such improvements could wait, as the thoroughfares are not in such bad condition. The new rate of 30 mills was opposed by Mayor May. The reason for his opposition was simply a continuance of his argument that the increased expense entailed by the city in installing a new system of collecting taxes was the contributing cause for a rate this high. The appointment of Hibbard N. Alexander as tax collector means about $8,000 additional expense in the maintenance of the office. With the increase in the tax rate the city should experience no difficulty in meeting its budget, which covers from October 1, 1927 to September 30 of this year. Actual expenditures for the 1926-27 period were $1,542,643.47. The tentative budget for 1927-28 amounts to $1,642,672.00 and with an increase of one and one half mills in the rate the revenue derived should be more than adequate to cover the slight increase of the tentative budget.

The membership drive of John Coleman Prince post, No. 9, American Legion, which was launched January 1 to last until April 1, ended with the securing of 33 new members. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Camp Lewis, Washington, famous cantonment where during war times over 100,000 men have been barracked at one time, has been a "deserted village" for ten years.

It came to life recently, when Richard Barthelmess and First National's "The Patent Leather Kid" company went north from the Burbank studios to make the big war scenes for this epic of the tank corps which comes to the Breed theatre Sunday, following its long Broadway triumph.

Probably the largest crowd Camp Lewis has had since war times gathered there when the night shots for the picture were made. Thousands of residents of the Northwest flocked to the camp by train, auto and on stages until the resources of the military police were taxed to the limit to handle them.

The crowd was well rewarded for their visit, however, for the night battle scenes, showing the troops and tanks moving up to the front under a heavy barrage of artillery fire, were spectacular in the extreme.

Barthelmess plays a "tank nurse" in these scenes, plodding along by the side of an iron monster while shells are bursting on all sides.

Breed Theatre

"The Last Frontier," a great story of the old west that boasted such adventurous spirits as Buffalo Bill, General Custer and the Indian scout and guide, "Pawnee Killer," will be on view at the Breed theatre today and Saturday.

William Boyd plays the role of Tom Kirby and Beth is portrayed by Marguerite De La Motte. This historical figures of Buffalo Bill Cody, Wild Bill, "Pawnee Killer" and General Custer, hero of the Little Big Horn Massacre, are featured in the film.

Jack Hoxie, former Universal star, was engaged for the important role of Buffalo Bill, a part he is particularly suited for because of his experience in western roles and his likeness to the great scout. Wild Bill Hickock, who slew many men while serving as a peace officer, is played by J. Farrell MacDonald, who made his mark in "The Iron Horse," and he supplies much of the comedy in "The Last Frontier." Mitchell Lewis takes the role of Lige.

The balance of the cast is composed of Gladys Brockwell, as Cynthia Jaggers, Junior Coghlan, as Buddy and Frank Lackteen as Pawnee Killer.

The invasion of the Navajo reservation was made possible through the efforts of Indian Commissioner Burke at Washington, who gave Director Seitz permission to enter the Indian agency and make his camp sites where he chose. Through the same authority 1,500 Navajo and Hopi Indians were employed.

A herd of 3,000 buffaloes appear in many scenes of the photoplay.

Strand Theatre

Charlie Chaplin, gloom chaser extraordinary, is paying a visit to the Strand. In this classic comedy, Charlie has the same troubles that befell Old Mother Hubbard, for Charlie finds no bones in the cupboard for his dog or himself. Charlie is a wandering son who tramps the streets looking for a "help wanted" sign. Things are looking up when he finds the sign in front of a brewery and Charlie takes his place in the line of rough laborers. He's a tragic figure indeed and the mutt that trails him everywhere adds to his forlornness. But Charlie turns hardships into laughs. There is a big cast in this production headed by Edna Purviance. The scenes are laid mostly on the streets of a great city and in a tenderloin dance hall where Charlie and his mutt look for new worlds to conquer and free lunch. It is a scream of a picture. Don't miss it!

"Tentacles of the North" an adaptation of the story by James Oliver Curwood, is also being shown tonight and Saturday night. The story of a whaling expedition which went wrong, as described by the story teller, Curwood is presented on the silver sheet with no less effect. Gaston Glass as the young naval officer hero, has ability, feeling and the strong personality which is needed for the characterization. Alice Calhoun makes a lovely lost lady aboard a deserted whaler and the balance of the cast is expert. Joseph Girard as the savage Dan Blake is a massive figure and so is Frank Baker as the hairy-chested first mate. Suspense and thrills, romance and action, follow one another in breathless sequence. Mystery, passion and arctic madness combine to weave a thrilling plot.

Strand Theatre

"Motherhood," the picture announced for special showings at the Strand theatre for four days starting Easter Sunday, has aroused nationwide interest as the first serious screen attempt to portray the problem of modern maternity. It is a picture for adult intelligence and children under 16 will not be admitted. But it is not merely a clinical exhibition. It tells a straightforward, engrossing story of two women in different social strata, as they face the supreme problem of the life of the world.

In making the picture, Blue Ray Productions, Inc., had the cooperation of leading members of the medical profession and of the Knickerbocker, Bellevue and Allied Hospitals of New York city. As a result, "Motherhood" gives important and well authenticated advice that should have a powerful effect upon fathers and mothers throughout the land as well as upon prospective fathers and mothers.

The leading roles are played by George E. Patten and Adelaide M. Chase, as a young clerk and his flapper wife, and by J. Thomas Hopkins and Nance Newman, as a society couple. Of especial interest are the scenes in the delivery room at the hospital, which have been done with profound fidelity to the best modern medical practice.

WILL BUILD AN OVERHEAD BRIDGE FOR HIGHWAY AT FRENCH'S CROSSING

An overhead highway bridge at French's crossing to eliminate this railroad grade crossing in the town of Plainfield on the Norwich-Putnam highway is in the plans of the state highway department in the improvement of this state highway and a hearing is to be held at the state capitol at Hartford on Thursday, April 19, at 10:30 a. m. on the state highway commissioner's petition to eliminate this grade crossing.

The construction is to be very similar to the method which was used at Bishop's crossing, erecting a bridge over the railroad tracks and raising the road at each end to reach the level of the bridge. The line of the highway will be altered a little to the east so as to straighten the road and this will bring the new layout through the point where a house now stands in the angle between the Norwich-Putnam road and the road which branches off to Moosup at this point. The house will be moved out of the way.

The Tadpole bridge situation, just outside Jewett City, on the Norwich-Putnam highway, is also to be improved so as to eliminate the sharp turns there where the present highway bridge crosses the railroad track. Going north from the end of North Main street at the borough line, the new layout for the roads sweeps straight through the lots to the bridge. At present the bridge is at righ angles to the railroad tracks, bu in the new layout the bridge will cross the tracks at an oblique angle and the northerly end of the new layout will run through the point where there is a highway sign at the present time.

A hearing on the Tadpole bridge change has been set for Thursday, April 12, at the capitol at Hartford.

GALES FERRY LAND TO BE GIVEN TO HARVARD

Harvard university will be presented with land in Ledyard, near Red Top, on which are to be erected a boat house, dining hall and other buildings, it is reported.

Robert Herrick of Milton, Mass., former Harvard oarsman, has purchased from Carl W. Brown of Norwich, a tract of land 600 feet by 250 feet, adjoining the tract owned by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, on which the freshmen quarters are located, with a view to presenting it to Harvard, it is said. On the purchased tract is one small building, a club house which was used by the Golden Circle club, memberships in which were held by New London and Groton men.

Parties said to have represented Mr. Herrick, attempted to purchase the tract on which the freshmen quarters are located from the New Haven railroad but the railroad would not sell the property.

Mr. Brown told a reporter that he had sold the tract of land to Mr. Herrick, but he said that the plans of the latter were not definitely known to him. Mr. Herrick, who has offices at Boston, is now abroad, but he is expected home soon, and will confer with Mr. Brown the latter said.

Had Mr. Herrick been able to secure the tract on which the freshmen quarters are located, it is said that plans were to build an overhanging bridge over railroad tracks which separate the Brown property and the property on which the freshmen quarters are located.

STATE POLICEMAN NELSON WAS KILLED BY BANDITS IN THE TOWN OF POMFRET

Policeman Nelson Was Shot About 7.15 Last Night as He Pulled Up on His Motorcycle Beside the Car Containing the Bandits in an Effort to Force It to the Side of the Road—Six Shots Were Fired at the Officer, Two of Them Taking Effect—Earlier in the Evening the Bandits Had Had a Running Gun Fight With a Patrolman in Springfield.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 6—State Officer Irving H. Nelson, 30, assigned to the Danielson barracks, for several years past, was shot and killed by bandits in the town of Pomfret at Green's corner about 7.15 tonight. The killing of this officer resulted in a broadcast covering all of southern New England and enlisting the services of the Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island State police in an effort to apprehend the killers. Officer Nelson was shot twice, one bullet entering his right side between the fifth and sixth ribs and passing entirely through the body, while the other bullet struck in between the eighth and ninth ribs, flattening against either one of them and later being found between his body and clothing. The bandit car a Willys-Knight sedan, No. 401,976 Mass., sped on and later was observed passing through Putnam, where trace of it was temporarily lost, leaving only an assumption as to whether it swung north into Massachusetts or continued east into Rhode Island, the borders of these states being only a few miles distant from Putnam in both instances.

Early this evening Willimantic officers notified the Danielson state police barracks that the car, which had carried men out of Springfield where they had engaged in robbery of gasoline stations, had passed through Willimantic and was heading toward this section of the country. All officers of of the Danielson barracks were immediately ordered out to cover all the trunk lines in this section. Officer Nelson taking his motorcycle rushed up to Putnam and over into Pomfret, taking up a strategic point at the north end of Pomfret street at Green's corner, where one road branches and runs north through Woodstock into Massachusetts, while the main highway continues east into Putnam. Young men who were in the vicinity say that the state officer stationed his motorcycle on the edge of the state highway watching intently at all cars coming from the direction of Willimantic. When the bandit car hove in sight he immediately started after it, pulled up beside the machine and tried to force it over to the side of the road. Immediately a revolver inside the car barked and the officer staggered on his machine to be almost instantly shot again by a bullet fired from the rear of the car. Six shots in all were fired at the officer, two of them taking effect. Game to the last the officer swung his machine into a driveway, leading to the Briggs place, which is unoccupied, evidently with the intention of calling for help by telephone. He got off his machine and had nearly reached the steps of the house when he fell. Those who had seen the affair and rushed to assist him say that he only groaned once or twice. They picked him up, carried him to the office of Dr. S. B. Overlock, chief surgeon of the Day Kimball hospital, only a short distance away, but he was dead when they reached there. Dr. Overlock made an examination to determine the nature of the wound, which were as previously described. The body was taken in charge by a Putnam undertaker and conveyed to his rooms in that city.

Officer Nelson's home was in New Haven. He was a veteran of the World war having served overseas, had a good department record, and was generally recognized as a high class and efficient officer. His death is a real shock to all the people in this section of the state.

WIFE EXPECTED NELSON HOME FOR EASTER

NEW HAVEN, April 6—(AP)—Bandit bullets, fired tonight by the occupants of a speeding automobile at State Policeman Irving H. Nelson in Putnam, ended, as far as Mrs. Elsie Nelson and her three year old son are concerned, the joyous prospects of having their husband and father with them on Easter Sunday.

Words cannot describe the grief into which the house at 17 Clifton street, was plunged by the news of the policeman's death at the hands of the men for whom the police of three states are hunting.

Nelson, a state officer for the past four years and attached to the Danielson barracks most recently, told his wife on his last visit in March, that he would try to get home for Easter and she was in the midst of her preparations for the day when the news was given her.

In her grief the thought uppermost in her mind is that her husband served during the war with Machine Gun Company D, of the 26th division and came out without a scratch only to fall a victim to bullets on his own soil.

His parents, three sisters and three brothers, also survive the dead policeman.

AUTOMOBILE WAS STOLEN IN WORCESTER WEDNESDAY

WORCESTER, Mass., April 6—(AP)—The automobile used by the bandits who shot and killed Irving W. Nelson, 37, Connecticut state trooper at Green's Corner, Pomfret, Conn., at 7:15 tonight, was stolen Wednesday night from Walnut street, Worcester, where theatre-goers are accustomed to parking their automobiles for the evening, police here say. It was owned by Francis J. Higgins, of 37 West street. It was a Willys Knight, Massachusetts registration 401,976.

THE CAR HAD PASSED THROUGH WILLIMANTIC

WILLIMANTIC, April 6—The Massachusetts sedan containing the bandits who shot and killed State Police Officer Irving H. Nelson near Putnam, passed through this city about 6.45 o'clock tonight. The Willimantic police department were requested by the Springfield, Mass., police, by telephone at 5.45 o'clock this afternoon to be on the watch for the machine and its occupants, which was reported headed in this direction.

The car was noticed passing through this city an hour later and Police Sergeant Grant Sombria and Officers Rudolph Laramee and Albert Montie set chase after it in a commandeered public service machine. They trailed the machine as far as Sherman's Corners, Chaplin, where they lost track of it and were forced to give up the chase.

FIRST STATE POLICEMAN SHOT IN LINE OF DUTY

HARTFORD, April 6—(AP)—State Policeman Nelson, it was said here tonight, is the first member of the state police force who has been shot to death in the performance of his duty since the organization of the force. Robert T. Hurley, state police commissioner, tonight praised Policeman Nelson as "a good officer, one who tended to business and was able in the performance of his duty." A detail of men from headquarters here was added to the Danielson barracks force in the search for the fugitives. The plan of search was not revealed by Commissioner Hurley. Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart is in command of the state police in the vicinity of the shooting.

HAD A RUNNING GUN FIGHT IN SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 6—(AP)—Massachusetts registration 401,976 was sent out to Massachusetts and Connecticut police late today after a wild chase through Springfield traffic which resulted in a sedan bearing those number plates escaping from a Springfield motorcycle officer.

Patrolmen Ray Gallagher, on the lookout for suspects following a series of store hold-ups here in the last two weeks and acting on a tip, tried to stop the sedan, the driver of which immediately forced him into a ditch, breaking his carburetor. He was able to give chase, however, and followed the speeding fugitives through a maze of five o'clock traffic, in which they lost him after an exchange of gunshots. One bullet tore a hole in the officer's jacket.

The entire police force of the city had been mobilized in a hunt for a trio known as the "Ice Box Bandits" because of their proclivity for placing their victims in store ice boxes while they rifled the cash registers and safes and escaped. Since March 20 they have terrorized various sections of the city, including ten major hold-ups in their sweep, defying police by returning to the scenes later and looting their victims again.

BANDITS ABANDONED AUTO NEAR WEBSTER

WEBSTER, Mass., April 7—(AP)—The automobile sought in connection with the shooting of Trooper Irving W. Nelson at Pomfret, Conn., last night, was discovered near here early this morning. Police were searching the surrounding thickets for a trace of the men who abandoned the car.

GRASS FIRE SPREAD TO BARNS AND GARAGE

SOUTHINGTON, April 6—(AP)—A grass fire which spread into woodland this afternoon got out of control of fire fighters for a time and partly burned the home of Mrs. Alexander Carey, in Andrews street, and took also two large barns and a garage in which there was an automobile.

The property is outside the fire limits and water was not available in sufficient volume to enable the Southington firemen to save the buildings, although they worked on the house and saved some contents. The loss was placed at about $15,000.

Held For Poisoning A Community Well

Mrs. Nancy Lynn, 70, and Her Brother Charged With Intent to Kill.

TEXARKANA, Ark., April 6—(AP)—Mrs. Nancy Lynn, 70, and her brother Robert Morris, both of Fouke, Ark., were arrested on charges of assault with intent to kill for placing poison in a community well. Virtually the entire populace of Fouke was sick tonight, several children dangerously.

Authorities became suspicious when virtually every resident of the village, a lumber camp of 300 residents, became ill a few days ago. Investigation of the well, which provided drinking water for the entire camp, showed that the water contained arsenic, officers declared.

Further investigation, they said, revealed that Mrs. Lynn had obtained a quantity of the poison from a drug store and her arrest followed. Every member of five families was ill today, and physicians said that at least one member of every family in camp was affected. Children were suffering most although none was in a critical condition, considerable apprehension was felt.

The aged woman, authorities reported, was suffering from an hallucination that her children were selling her birthright and that her remaining years would be spent in poverty. Her children told officers she probably believed sale of timber she thought herself could be prevented if the lumbering crew at Fouke was removed.

When arrested and brought here, the aged woman refused to make a statement and her brother, several years her junior, was likewise silent. They will be arraigned tomorrow.

Easter Hymn

O sun and moon, bless ye the Lord!
And stars of heaven replying,
With showers and dew in sweet accord
His praise be magnifying;
Lift up your voice, ye winds of God,
And sing aloud His glory,
Bloom earth, anew, like Aaron's rod,
And echo the same story!

For the glad Easter comes again,
Earth's highest hope renewing;
Sing and rejoice, ye sons of men,
For death and sin's undoing!
Now is the yearning tomb no more
A dark and hopeless prison;
O grave, thou art but heaven's door
Since Christ the Lord has risen!

What shall we render in return
For love all love excelling?
Come, Lord! our hearts within us burn
To make these hearts Thy dwelling;
Free them from every bond of sin,
O Mighty to deliver!
And come and throne Thyself therein,
Our sovereign King forever.

The Irish army authorities today granted Colonel Fitzmaurice leave of absence.

Mrs. Knapp Enters Denial of Charges

Bail Was Fixed at $6,000, or $1,000 on Each of the Six Indictments.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 6—(AP)—Arraigned in supreme court, Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp of Syracuse, the only woman who had ever held state office in New York state, today entered a formal denial that her administration of the 1925 state census had been sullied by criminal acts. Mrs. Knapp pleaded not guilty to each of six indictments handed down last night by a special grand jury convened for the express purpose of determining whether the charges of malfeasance and misfeasance in office warranted her being placed on trial.

Although Supreme Court Justice Stephen H. Callaghan had said last night, after the indictments were handed down, that Mr. Knapp must be in court at 10 a. m. today, the former secretary of state did not appear at the courthouse until 2.20 p. m. She had not known of the indictments, she said, until she read the morning papapers in New York, and then came to Albany on the earliest available train. She was accompanied to the courtroom by Mrs. Florence Squyer of Syracuse, a close personal friend, and Robert P. Levis, an attorney at whose home in New York she had been a guest. Mr. Levis explained in court that he was representing Mrs. Knapp temporarily only.

Mrs. Knapp's bail was fixed at $6,000, or $1,000 on each of the six indictments. While arrangements were being made with a surety company for the bail bonds, Mrs. Knapp remained in the justice's chambers. Here a formal statement was given out by her, through Mr. Levis. She said:

"When I formally pleaded not guilty, it was a plea that meant I am not guilty of any charge that may be made, and I can say this without having read the indictments, because there was no action during my administration of which I am ashamed."

Mrs. Knapp's composure during her arraignment was noticeable. She paused before entering the courthouse to pose for newspaper photographers, and again faced a battery of cameras after leaving the chambers of Justice Callaghan.

Conversing with the justice, her face registered a wide range of emotions. At times, she laughed. Again her eyes blazed, and she brought her hand down sharply on the arm of the chair, but her compogure remained unshaken.

JEANNE EAGLES IS TO DEFY ACTORS' EQUITY

NEW YORK, April 6—(AP)—The Actors' Equity association today banished Jeanne Eagles from the legitimate stage for a year and a half, but the defiant star of "Rain," "The Garden of Eden," and "Her Cardboard Lover," announced that she would be back on Broadway during the coming season, Equity or no Equity.

"No group of actors," she told reporters angrily in her apartment, "for whom, with few exceptions, I have no respect, can keep me from earning my living."

"The suspension," Miss Eagles said after Equity had announced its decision, "is ridiculous and unjust. I have the word of 12 of the most prominent physicians in the United States that I was really ill when I did not appear."

IDENTIFIED AS HUSBAND OF MURDERED WOMAN

DETROIT, April 6—(AP)—A man who gave hi sname as Herman Zeidman, 22, of Chicago, alleged jewel thief, held with two companions in connection with an attempted $100,000 diamond robbery here Tuesday, was identified by finger prints today as Gordon Chambers, husband of Betty Chambers who was slain in Chicago February 13 last.

Zeidman, alias Chambers also was being questioned in connection with a $60,000 Cleveland jewel robbery.

According to police Alex Swiraky, member of the Cleveland firm from which the $60,000 in jewels was taken, identified Betty Chambers as the lookout in that robbery.

POSTMASTER ARRESTED ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

BOSTON, April 6—(AP)—The post office inspectors department announced tonight that Alfred N. Andrews, postmaster at Topsfield, had been arrested on a warrant charging embezzlement of about $700 of government funds. He was held in $1,000 bonds.

The inspectors said that some time ago Andrews reported that burglars had taken several hundred dollars from his home. The post office registrations allow postmasters to keep money and stamps in their homes if there is no other safe place available. An audit soon afterward, it was said, revealed a shortage of $700 in the postmaster's accounts.

Andrews has been postmaster at Topsfield since 1922.

NATION'S LEADERS GATHER FOR THE DEPEW FUNERAL

Services Will Be Conducted at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, New York, at 10.30 a. m. Today—Group of Pallbearers Will Include Some of the Most Distinguished Members of Every Walk of Life—Messages of Condolence Continue to Arrive—By Order of Governor Smith Signs of Mourning Were Displayed Throughout New York State.

NEW YORK, April 6—(AP)—In a silent brownstone house, located immediately around a corner from the speeding traffic of Fifth avenue, the body of Chauncey Mitchell Depew rested tonight, while leaders in the nation gathered to pay him their last tribute on the morrow.

Through an atmosphere of peaceful quiet that contrasted oddly with the noisy movements in surrounding blocks, vehicles moved silently and hundreds of visitors or curious pedestrians entered or passed the house at 27 West 54th street where the aged financier, politician, humorist and philoopher lived and died.

None in a steady stream of visitors remained in the house more than a few moments. None would talk to reporters, even to give his name. Shoppers from Fifth avenue, hoping for only a glimpse of some noted figure among the visitors, strayed into the street to wait idly and curiously as long as the police would allow them.

Arrangements for the funeral of the 93 year old chairman of the board of the New York Central railroad were announced today. From the family home the body will be taken to St. Thomas' Episcopal church in Fifth avenue where funeral services will be conducted at 10.30 a. m. by the Rt. Rev. Ernest M. Stires, bishop of Long Island, assisted by Rt. Rev. William T. Manning, bishop of New York, and the Rev. Roelif F. Brooks, rector of St. Thomas'. The boys' choir will sing. After the services the body will be taken under police escort to Hillside cemetery at Peekskill, Mr. Depew's native town, where committal services will be read by Dr. Brooks.

Forty patrolmen will be on duty at the funeral and the block in which the Depew home is located will be closed to street and pedestrian traffic preceding the church services.

A group of pallbearers that will include some of the most distinguished members of every walk of life will be supplemented by delegations from Mr. Depew's clubs, many of them among the foremost clubs of the country.

Honorary pallbearers will comprise: Elihu Root, former secretary of state; Mayor James J. Walker, Patrick J. Crowley, president New York Central railroad; Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university; Myron C. Taylor, finance committee chairman, U. S. Steel corporation; U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland; Dr. James Rowland Angell, president Yale university; Newcombe Carlton, president Western Union Telegraph company; Ogden Mills, under secretary of the treasury; John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; Edward L. ROselter, treasurer New York Central; Fred W. Sargent, president Chicago and Northwestern railroad; former Supreme Court Justice Charles B. Seger, president United States Rubber company; Charles H. Sabin, banker; George F. Baker, banker; John S. Webb, intimate friend of the Depew family; and the following directors of the New York Central, Edward S. Harkness, William K. Vanderbilt, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, Albert H. Harris, William C. Proctor, Warren B. Hayden, Bertram Cutler.

Officers and directors of the Lotos club of which Mr. Depew was a member will attend the funeral in a body. A delegation of 50 is expected from the Union League club and the France-America club will be represented.

Representatives of the National Republican club will include Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state; Charles D. Hilles, vice chairman republican national committee; George K. Morris, republican state committee; Albert Ottinger, attorney general; James W. Wadsworth, former United States senator.

Messages of condolence continued to arrive today. Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to Washington, said, "I have received a cable from the Prince of Wales saying that his royal highness is deeply distressed to hear of the death of Mr. Depew."

Signs of mourning were displayed throughout the state, by order of Governor Smith, flags on state buildings were at half-mast, Grand Central terminal and other railroad stations were draped in black.

COLD WEATHER MIGHT AVERT FLOOD IN ARKANSAS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 6—(AP)—Forecast of fair and colder weather offered Arkansas some hope that her numerous rivers, rising steadily towards the danger point, would recede before material damage was done.

The White river was flooding in its upper reaches and the Arkansas was nearing flood stages while turbulent tributaries of both stmeams were out of their banks and doing damage in scattered sections.

Barring further rains, the Arkansas will not reach flood stages at any point weather officials said but the river had already risen to dangerous heights and caused considerable damage. The White, which rises rapidly in its upper reaches and falls the same way, had risen 5.5 feet as far south as Newport, behind the only major levee in Arkansas to withstand last spring's flood. At Batesville the river had risen 18 feet and was 4.5 feet above flood stage. The river was also above flood stage at Calico Rock, having risen 16.5 feet.

None of the towns had been damaged but farm lands along the White were inundated.

The Arkansas had risen 8.1 feet at Fort Smith.

Rainfall varying from 1.83 inches to 4.20 over the state gave the streams impetus and despite encouraging forecasts, overcast skies here tonight gave promise of more rain.

2,000 FOOT PARACHUTE LEAP WHEN PLANE CAUGHT FIRE

DUBUQUE, Iowa, April 6—(AP)—Edward Dickson, a Chicago pilot, made a 2,000-foot parachute leap to safety near here today when his airplane caught fire. He landed in a field ten miles east of Dubuque.

He said he had lost his bearings during a storm when suddenly his plane caught fire, apparently from sparks from the exhaust.

Dickson was flying a mail plane. The plane and its mail contents, consigned to Omaha, were destroyed. It was Dickson's tenth leap since entering the air service eighteen months ago.

ANOTHER POSTPONEMENT OF TRANSARCTIC FLIGHT

SEWARD, Alaska, April 6—(AP)—Postponement of the trans-Arctic flight attempt of Captain George H. Wilkins for at least another day was the interpretation placed by United States signal corps radio operators here today upon the silence which has enveloped the expedition since a brief message from the explorer last night.

Wilkins, waiting at Point Barrow for a favorable opportunity for his 2,100 mile flight to Spitzbergen, pierced the isolation of Arctic darkness last night with the news that cloudiness had prevented the take-off yesterday. The radio signalled a faint and fragmentary mention of "tomorrow," indicating that Wilkins awaited better weather conditions today.

OMAHA THE CENTER OF AN UNUSUAL STORM

CHICAGO, April 6—(AP)—Omaha, with its telephone and telegraph lines broken by a severe snowstorm, remained in communication with outside points today largely by wireless and radio.

Transportation systems reaching the city were crippled and there was apprehension of a milk shortage. Omaha was the center of an unusual disturbance extending from Des Moines to Lincoln, and north to the Canadian border.

FORD IN EUROPE SITE SEEING, NOT SIGHT SEEING

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 6—(AP)—Henry Ford's visit to England will be a site seeing trip, not a sight seeing jaunt, if Southampton's woman mayor and numerous industrial communities have their way about it.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford arrived here today on the steamship Majestic, and almost the first thing they heard about as soon as the ship touched the shore was the advantages of Southampton as a manufacturing center. This was related proudly by Mrs. Foster Welch, who wore the chain of the mayoralty office and was eager to set forth her arguments in favor of her home town at the earliest possible moment.

It seems that Mr. Ford has owned a factory site in Southampton for some time, but there have been delays in the erection of the plant and Mrs. Welch feels that she would like to have Mr. Ford himself take a look at the property. Her hope—and the hope of all Southampton—is that on this visit the automobile manufacturer may decide to go ahead with the plant to which the city has been looking forward for years.

REPARATIONS DISCUSSED AT MEETING IN ROME

ROME, April 6—(AP)—S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations payments, and Count Volpi, the Italian minister of finance, had a preliminary meeting today and presumably discussed reparations, finances and all questions relating thereto. But Mr. Gilbert was uncommunicative as to the result of the conversations, and the semi-official press refrained from venturing any speculation.

The agent-general came here yesterday, and when questioned as to his mission, said, "this is merely routine business." He remained invisible most of the day. He and Count Volpi pursued their talk in the seclusion of a villa on the slopes of the Sabine hills out of reach of inquiring minds. They will have another discussion tomorrow.

MUDSLINGING BY REP. FACTIONS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 6—(AP)—From the maelstrom of accusations, recriminations, mudslinging which the April 10 primary campaign by two republicans has become, the statement by Mayor William Hale Thompson that he would resign if Robert E. Crowe, co-leader with him, was defeated for state's attorney stood out today. He is opposed to Judge John A. Swanson, who is seeking the nomination on the Lowden-Deneen ticket.

From the candidates for the nomination for United States senator down to the humblest county office candidate all found the order of the day to be mudslinging.

COLLIE WAS HELD CAPTIVE IN JAWS OF STEEL TRAPS

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 6—(AP)—Gripped by the right forepaw and left back leg in the jaws of two steel traps which had held her captive in the James Kellogg woods in Aspetuck district of Easton, Goldie, a prize three-year old collie missing for fifty-five days, was recovered alive late last night. The dog belonged to William Wakeman of Easton and was discovered in the trap by a farm hand.

It cannot be determined how long the dog was in the trap but it was nearly dead from exposure and starvation. Every bit of grass, brush or edible material within a yard of the place where Goldie was held had been eaten, and one forepaw had been torn away in an effort to reach grass beyond that distance.

MANY CALLS FOR GRASS FIRES IN THIS VICINITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 6—The whir of fire department sirens has become but a passing attractions as Engine company No. 1 continues to respond to nearly half a dozen calls a day for brush fires. The menace of these blazes had prompted Acting Fire Chief Michael J. English to issue an urgent appeal to the public to obey the law and secure a permit from him before starting brush or refuse fires. The acting fire chief points out that it is only through good fortune that more valuable property damage has not been caused the past few days as brush fires, started through carelessness rage in various parts of the city. Five calls, one of them for the same fire, were registered at the Bank street engine house today. The first was at 8:38 o'clock this morning to the Natchaug street bridge where a tar kettle owned by Contractor David P. Ahern became overheated. Chemicals were used. The other calls were for grass fires, the first on property of Claude Mathewson on Gordon avenue at 3:20 o'clock; the second on property of Mrs. Fay Smith at 275 Prospect street at 11:45 o'clock and the third early in the afternoon at Park Spring on city property. DANIELSON

THREE FIRES WITHIN AN HOUR KEEP FIREMEN BUSY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 6—A unique experience for Danielson during the noon hour today was the sounding of three fire alarms within a very few minutes of each other. The alarms came in such rapid succession that there were those who gained the impression that something had gone wrong with the fire alarm telegraph system, which was far from the facts.

The first call came in about 12:20 from box 312 on Morin avenue and was for a grass and brush fire in the rear of the state police barracks on North Main street. This fire, though filling the air with billows of smoke in that vicinity, caused no important damage.

While the fire apparatus was up in that part of the town another alarm came in, about 12:30, for a fire in a pile of lumber in the rear of the plant of the Brookhill Manufacturing company on Mechanic street. This fire was attacked by numbers of people with pails of water while others pulled the pile of lumber apart as rapidly as possible, and they were so successful in their efforts that they had the fire out as the firemen came racing along. Meanwhile box 52 had sounded for a fire at the house occupied by Charles Francis on Broad street—a chimney fire that was quickly extinguished.

All in all, the firemen had a busy noon hour. None of the fires caused material damage, but the one at the Brookhill plant was dangerous in that if it had gone out of control it would have quickly set the big three-story frame structure afire.

Even old-timers in the fire department here could not recall this afternoon another instance when three box alarms came in within such a short period of time. The incident set some to thinking just what would have happened if all of these fires had proved to be of a serious nature.

MRS. O. FRECHETTE SLIGHTLY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 6—A rather strange accident this morning in the business section resulted in minor injuries for Mrs. Oscar Frechette, and a close call with death. A big touring car being operated by Stephen Young was being backed out of the areaway at the north side of the town hall building into Main street, when Mr. Young found he could not disengage the clutch and the machine shot backward across the street and crashed into a Ford truck belonging to the Crystal Water company that was parked at the curb in front of Gallup Bros. and Lindner's. The crash tossed the truck up on to the sidewalk and knocked down Mrs. Frechette, who was passing. Eyewitnesses of the accident say that Mrs. Frechette, after being thrown, scrambled along on her hands and knees across the walk and up to the wall of the building, a maneuver that undoubtedly saved her from being crushed under the truck as it continued to be pushed back. As it was, Mrs. Frechette escaped with a bruised foot and the shock always attendant upon such experiences. The cars that figured in the accident, which was checked up by Chief John McFarland, were considerably damaged.

In keeping with the solemnity of the occasion, Good Friday was observed here with church services that were attended by hundreds of people. There were morning, afternoon and evening services at St. James' church today, and at all of these the seating capacity of the church was tested. Continuing the Holy Week services at the Baptist church this morning at 10 o'clock, there was much devotion upon the part of the young people. This evening the Danielson Federation of Churches held a union Good Friday service in the Westfield Congregational church, with a large number in attendance.

Operations have been resumed at the plant of the Central Worsted company in Central Village, which has been closed for a time. Charles Bragg, head of the concern, said today that by next week production at the plant will be on a larger basis. The mill is understood to have a considerable amount of business booked, and with prospects brighter in the industry than for some time past. The concern makes high class worsteds that have established a splendid reputation for the mill.

Traffic has badly battered the highway surface on the trunk line into Brooklyn. The condition of the road just now is worst from the top of Ledge hill into Brooklyn Center. This route is to be rebuilt this season, and operations already are under way. Meanwhile there is the possibility that some temporary repairs may be made to the highway that cars may not be liable to be damaged in running over it.

Some manufacturing plants in this district closed this evening for the remainder of the week, giving the employes two full holidays at the Easter season. Others that are busy with orders are to run until Saturday noon, getting in a full week.

It is regarded here as very nice of State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, on his recent visit to Danielson, to pay the tribute he did to the abilities of this town's three tax collectors—James R. Walsh, town collector; Sidney H. Perry, borough collector, and Arthur A. Dean, personal tax collector. The commissioner is familiar with the efficient work of these men, knows the good records they have made and said that they should be kept in office.

There have been no developments during the week that have been made public relative to the negotiations that have been pending for some time between Powdrell & Alexander and the Connecticut Mills company for the purchase of the C. M. mill just on the northern outskirts of the borough. It is understood, however, that the matter still is under consideration.

Bids for the work of constructing the new line of state highway from Main and Hutchins streets to a point on the Providence road near the Mazzerelli place are to be asked for by the state highway department within a few days. There is the prospect that the work will be undertaken late this month or early in May.

Special musical programs have been prepared for the masses at St. James' church Easter Sunday. The two masses at which these programs will be given by the choirs are the 9:15 and the 10:30. The music is under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Gareau, organist. At the 9:15 mass the soloists will be Miss Pauline Boulaine, Mrs. Henry Bodo and Mrs. John Breayea. Rossi's musical mass will be sung at 10:30. The soloists of this mass will be Mrs. Albert Bernier, Miss Lucille Caron, who will sing at the offertory, Mrs. Henry Bodo and Messrs. Henry Woisard, tenor; Raymond Ballard, baritone, and Donat Beaudoin, bass.

In the town court this morning Ernest Adams was presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward to answer to a charge of operating a motor vehicle without lights, the charge preferred by State Officer Holman Bell. The fine imposed was $1 and costs.

The cases of several held at the Brooklyn jail to answer to criminal charges will get consideration at the April term of the superior court that is to open in Willimantic on Tuesday.

A debate is to feature the meeting of Brooklyn grange next Tuesday evening. The subject has to do with whether the average worker in trades and professions encounters more discouragements than the farmer. Sidney R. Bard and Mrs. C. House are scheduled to have the affirmative, and D. M. Havens and Catherine Tinsley the negative.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Getty, of Boston, are to spend Easter with Mrs. Marie Getty, of Academy street.

In Monday's borough election the polls are to be opened in the town hall building at 4 p. m.

Cook Arthur Berry had a surprise box lunch, of pressed ham, cheese sandwichgs, with West Mystic sponge cake and coeffe. Howard Perkins an ex-army soldier who was with the Rainbow Division told how he spent Good Friday in France. When the war was going good. His company was back in a small French town where two houses and a store was about all there was in the place. "We did not have any Hot Cross buns from God's country," he said. "It was army bread with corn beef for sandwiches and coffee black as an iron hat. It was Good Friday and we had to take a 10-mile hike in heavy marching order. I will never forget Good Friday in France!" He was given a cheer. Arthur Berry then appeared dressed like a woman and Clifford Dobson as Henry Ford. John Jensen was at the piano and Mr. Dobson sang "As Henry Made a Lady Out of Lizzie." The act made a big hit with the Lexionnaires. PUTNAM

BRUSH FIRE THREATENS GILMAN STREET HOUSES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 6—Dense clouds of smoke coming from the west side of the city in the rear of the Silas Wheelock residence on Gilman street brought the members of the hook and ladder company to the scene to fight a brush fire that started on old golf links at noon. The wind greatly aided the blaze and it spread toward houses on Gilman street, threatening the dwellings. The members of the hook and ladder company were unable to get the fire under control and a general alarm was sent in from box 45, bringing additional help. Eight hundred feet of hose was laid and a stream was directed on the blaze, subduing the flames in the Gilman street section. Onlookers started the water question rolling when high pressure was unavailable.

The wind changed and the blaze started creeping toward Woodstock avenue but was extinguished with chemicals from the Hose 2 of the Eagle fire station. The blaze was of a stubborn nature and the lack of high water pressure during the noon hour greatly handicapped the firemen. It was estimated that five acres of woodland were destroyed by the flames. The origin of the fire was not known and the investigation of the cause was not completed by the officials of the fire department late Friday afternoon.

Good Friday was generally observed in Putnam yesterday by banks, a few stores, and some of the industrial plants. Textile plants in the city closed at noon, opening again this morning. Special services in churches were held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at St. Mary's church and St. Philip's Episcopal church. Large crowds attended the singing of the "Crucifixion" at the Second Congregational church and other special services at other church throughout the city in the evening.

Trains, motor coaches and other public service utilities were carrying their extra Easter holiday passengers Friday. Specials were added to the bus lines with extra coaches to take care of the holiday business on the regular trains. A great many people passed through Putnam on their way to their New England homes to spend the greatest holiday of the year yesterday.

Extra equipment for the city fire apparatus ordered by Chief Ralph E. Thurston will prove the necessity to the department in fighting the many brush fires during the present dry season. The booster tank to be added to the hose No. 1 will be a much needed piece of equipment when it is installed in service. The tank has a capacity of 60 gallons of water and will replace the old chemical tank that is on the truck. Friday's grass and brush fire on Gilman street would have been more easily extinguished had the members of the department been able to direct such a stream on the blaze. Foamite extinguishers recently purchased by Chief Thurston proved their value at the gasoline tank fire in the garage under the state armory Thursday morning, when they aided in confining the flames to the large truck that was afire. The new braking system and pneumatic tires for the Hose truck at the central fire station will be installed soon.

The heavily stocked trout brooks in this vicinity showed many of their specimens during the warm days of the current week. The speckled beauties were seen Friday afternoon, shooting through the fast running streams near the county home. In former years it was thought by many that brook trout of any number were contained only in the famous Snake Meadow brook in Killingly, but the action of the local fish and game club has proved valuable in stocking the brooks in this locality, that have been fished out. Sportsmen, who spent their half holiday in the field on Good Friday, reported that they saw many of the fish that will be taken out when the law lifts on Sunday, April 15. None of the local anglers who have fished in the Rhode Island brooks have brought back any evidence worth mentioning to prove the "lengthy" tales of the ones they lost when the line broke.

Thursday evening at the Second Congregational church a special communion service was held in honor of the commemoration of the Lord's supper. At this service 15 new members were enrolled into the membership of the church. Rev. James F. English, pastor of the church, was in charge of the service.

A committee consisting of James E. Murray, J. A. Gagne and George Lewis, Jr., representing the Putnam lodge of Elks, are now working in conjunction with the Putnam high school athletic field improvement committee to make arrangements for the holding of a spring carnival by the Elks. The date get for the affair will be on May 24, 25 and 26. The entire proceeds from the carnival are to be given to the high school athletic committee for the improvement of the athletic field, erection of bleachers and other necessary repairs. The local football and baseball grounds are now in a run-down condition and there are no facilities to allow the fans to sit down to watch a game being played. Principal E. L. Robinson has sanctioned the affair, as have the other school authorities. All proceeds derived from the carnival will be turned over to the committee in charge of the fund now being raised.

Choirs in all the churches of the city have been rehearsing for the special Easter anthems that are to be sung in places of worship on Sunday morning. At all the masses at St. Mary's special music will be rendered. Sister 'Arc Ange, music instructor at St. Mary's school and organist at the children's mass, has arranged the following selections to be presented by the children at the 8 o'clock mass: Prelude, "Alleluia, Alleluia, Let the Holy Anthem Raise," followed by the anthem, "Resurrection," from Gravier. The closing anthem to be sung will be in three parts, "Pilli et Filiae." At the 9:15 and 10:30 o'clock masses the regular choirs will sing under the direction of Organist Rose Metras, assisted by an augmented orchestra under the direction of Joseph Belair.

Choirmasters at the Methodist, St. Philip's and the Baptist churches all have special Easter selections prepared to be presented at the services on Sunday. Special services will be presented at the Second Congregational church in the morning, with the Easter cantata at 7 o'clock in the evening.

The Lenten season will officially come to a close at noon today and with the closing of this season, sacred to many, will come the opening of the post-Lenten season social activities. The first social affair to be held will be the Easter Monday ball of the local council of K. of C., to be shortly followed by the promenade of the Junior class of Putnam high school, on next Friday evening.

Sub-Master and Mrs. L. F. Noyes, of Quinebaug avenue, left for Bridgeport to spend the remainder of the Easter recess. Mr. Noyes is head coach of athletics at Putnam high school.

Mrs. Joseph Guertin, of 249 Providence street, died at her home in this city Thursday at the age of 67 years. Mrs. Guertin is a native of Canada but has lived the greater part of her life in Putnam. She is survived by one son, Eleazar Guertin, who is also a resident of Putnam.

April boxing shows that were planned by the Putnam Sporting club have been further postponed by the promoters, awaiting a decision from the state Amateur Athletic association.

The alarm on the fire whistle at 3.40 Friday afternoon was for a threatening grass fire on upper Aspinook street. Station 34 was sounded on the big whistle. Forty gallons of chemical did the trick. No damage. Although the chemical, used in an open lot, with a considerable breeze blowing, is no more effective as a fire quencher than the water in which it is contained, yet with the old truck it is all the small means available. With the big new LaFrance pumper, a booster tank, so called, with handle any small blaze like that of Friday afternoon. The explanation of the chemicals value, made here in course of an address to the firemen by Chief Howard L. Stanton of Norwich, was of such that in a closed room or chimney the application of the chemical forms carbonic acid gas, thus with the absence of oxygen, combustion becomes impossible.

The mercury did an altogether unseasonable stunt Friday in rising from 49 at 7 a. m. to 81 at 2 p. m.

A nearby apple raiser was seen on the streets of the borough Friday afternoon retailing russet apples, just as sound and smooth as when they were picked six months ago.

Mrs. W. B. Montgomery, entertained the Harmony club Friday afternoon.

Miss Marian Strickland of Middletown is spending the Easter vacation at Mrs. H. E. Paul's.

Mr. H. Gordon Willis is in Southbridge and Webster for the week end.

One of the old timers, reading in The Bulletin of the death this week of Jeremiah Sullivan of Providence, recalls his long term of residence in the village of Jewett City—40 odd years ago, and remember what a remarkably sweet tenor voice Mr. Sullivan possessed. And recalls the great hit he made here when he sang "How Is the Major Gilfeather."

WOMAN STOLE $80 MEANT TO BUY TICKETS TO CANADA

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, April 6.—Thursday about 2 p. m., Mrs. Benjamin La Blanc went into Anthony's store. The woman had her baby in a carriage, which she wheeler through the store door and left just inside, while she went further down the counter to make a few purchases. In the front of the carriage on the robe, at the baby's feet, Mrs. La Blanc left her pocketbook. Even as she was paying for the small articles she had bought, and as she looked toward her baby, she saw a woman leaning over the carriage, evidently admiring the child. Presently the woman hurried out, and as quickly Mrs. La Blanc ran to the door, to find the pocketbook gone There was $80 in the wallet, it being the price of tickets for Canada, where she and her husband are expecting to remove soon. Mrs. La Blanc had earned the money working nights in the Ninigret plant of the Fisk Tire Co. The woman was broken-hearted and at once notified Officer Henry Vegiard. Today it is learned that the identity of the woman is pretty well established.

It seems reasonable to believe, as the police think, that anyone with a spark of honesty or sympathy will return the money to the address which was in the wallet, to save arrest or prosecution, if for no higher motive.

LEDYARD

Ralph Krout preached to a good sized audience in the Congregational church Sunday morning, Palm Sunday. His discourse had reference to the day. At the offertory Frederick Allyn and Mr. Osborne sang "The Palms." At the close of the Sunday school, the annual election took place. Joseph A. Clark was re-elected superintendent; Billings T. Avery, assistant superintendent (re-elected); Carl H. Holdridge, clerk and treasurer (re-elected); Miss Nellie W. Geer, superintendent Home department (re-elected); Henrietta Finnegan, superintendent Cradle Roll; librarians, Gilbert Hayen, Alfred Clark, Hazel Gray, Marthe Babcock.

The Sunday school has had a very prosperous year. It has had an average attendance of 49, the largest in several years, very good for a rural church.

John Barrett of Cornell University has been spending his Easter recess with his mother, Mrs. A. D. Barrett. Frederick Allyn of the same college has been spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Allyn.

Kenneth Main has been with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin R. Main, during the past week.

The annual Missionary Society meeting of the Congregational church was held at the parsonage Thursday afternoon.

Ralph Krout conducted the services at the funeral of John Shella at the Town Farm Sunday afternoon. Mr. Shella was of German descent and was the last inmate at the Town Farm.

The regular meeting of the Town School committe was held at Ledyard Center Monday afternoon. All of the members were present. Bills were approved and ordered paid. Some of the members of the board, with the selectmen, will view different sites offered at Gales Ferry for a new school house. Achievement lists are used by Supervisor Connelly in the different schools with marked success.

All the Ledyard schools closed Thursday for the Easter recess and will open for the spring term Monday, April 16.

The Sunday evening meeting of the C. E. Society was held at the residence of Joseph A. Clark. Gilbert Hagen was leader of this meeting.

The Missionary society held its annual meeting at the parsonage Thursday with a good attendance of members and several visitors. The meeting opened with the hymn, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee." After scripture reading and prayer, a number of letters were read of interest to the members. A letter from a missionary in China was read by Mrs. Carl Holdridge and Mrs. Everett Gallup. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Miss Nellie W. Geer; first vice president, Mrs. Joseph A. Clark; second, Mrs. Carl Holdridge; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Flora I. Gray; assistant secretary, Mrs. John Finegan. Miss Geer in behalf of the society presented Mrs. Gray a plant in bloom, as a token of appreciation of her long and faithful services as secretary which has been continuous since the formation of the society. Mrs. Gray expressed cordial thanks. After the hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds," sandwiches, cake and tea were served.

STATE ROAD WORK

Scan the first of the bulletins by the state highway department and it will noted that from one end of the state to the other and from the Massachusetts boundary on the north to Long Island sound construction work is underway or employes are engaged in piling the roads.

This corresponds to the housecleaning and reconstruction work that is going on in many households today and with the exception of oiling, it can be expected to be continued to a greater or less extent throughout the year It means detours or considerable rough driving.

The building of new stretches of road, the construction of bridges, the replacement and maintenance work are all part of the necessary labors in connection with the completion of the system of state roads. Such work involves much confusion for the time being but it is part of the price that has to be paid for good roads.

The extension of the improved roads during the present year gives promise of much satisfaction to various sections of the state. Locally two stretches of road are getting needed attention and the improvement when completed will be of great benefit to travel down the east side of the Thames and on the cross road to Poquetanuck. To an extent it will vie as far as it goes, with the great improvement which was made last year on the west side of the river, and it marks the beginning of what must eventually result in the removal of many of the bad curves farther down on the east side.

Each year brings decided changes in the way of highway betterments. Connecticut is being gradually covered by better roads, many of them of permanent construction. But in addition to the trunk lines good roads are being pushed into sections where improvements have long been needed and where the state is able to do what towns cannot undertake. This means not only the opening up of additional territory, but it puts residents in touch with cities and makes it possible for them to obtain services and supplies often denied in winter to country road residents. While good work is being done in this direction there is still opportunity for more as each year's construction programme discloses.

THE BORAH FUND

Senator Borah set out to raise a fund of $160,000 for the purpose of returning it to Harry Sinclair. The sum would have represented the contributions which were made by Sinclair to republican campaign funds and regarded as tainted.

The senator from Idaho thought he would have no trouble in collecting the money. He figured that the dollars would flow in to him so rapidly that the amount would be in hand long before this. He has learned to the contrary. He has found out that there was much opposition to his plan for while there might have been a willingness to eliminate the taint there was a strong feeling that the money should not go back to Sinclair. If he wasn't entitled to it there was no reason why it should be paid back to him just because he had given it away.

The idea aroused much more opposition than it did favor. This is revealed by the fact that he has collected only about $7,000 and now he is stumped to know what to do with it. The suggestion has been made that he turn the money over to the striking miners or some other organization.

If Senator Borah is to abandon the raising of the fund the only thing that he can legitimately do with the money which he has in his possession is to either pay it over to Sinclair or to return it to those who gave it to him for that purpose. It doesn't appear that it is his to do with as he pleases. Probably the donors might be agreeable to the use of the money for some worthy charity but there was no such understanding at the time the contributions were made.

Had the object been declared in the first place to devote the complete fund for some worthy cause it would have met with much more general approval. It is conceivable that the effort might have succeeded but no moral purpose could be served in returning the alleged ill gotten gain to the responsible head. But in view of the course adopted, the failure to reach the goal and the need of disposing of the contributions it is the duty of the senator to return the money from whence it came unless consent is obtained for other use.

RUBBER RESTRICTION

It was a clever scheme which was put through by the British government when it enacted that legislation known as the Stevenson bill for the purpose of controlling the rubber supply of the world, and as some have claimed collected from the United States increased rubber prices with which to offset the costs of the war. Because this country is a big user of rubber it felt severely the effects of the British restriction law.

There were difficulties which were not anticipated when the law was adopted for while the law worked well at the start it was impossible to control rubber production permanently. The forcing of British growers to curtail their output would corner the business and boost prices, but it also made it apparent that other growers should strive to supply the requirements. This was undertaken by the growers in the Dutch East Indies. It prompted increased attention to rubber growing everywhere. American capital has been put into Liberia and into Brazil for the purpose of overcoming this situation and there is no question but what it was bound to succeed.

Upon investigation it has been found that the British effort could only temporarily accomplish what was undertaken. The result is the decision to abandon the effort and it gives proof to the claims which have been persistently put forth by this country that such a limitation was a violation of fundamental economic laws. It needed time to demonstrate it but time has upheld the American contention.

The Stevenson act was a mistake. It received opposition from rubber interests in England even as elsewhere and now it has been tried and found wanting. It has been a costly experiment, but it has demonstrated the wisdom of providing this country with legislation which will permit of some degree of protection in case similar conditions arise again in Great Britain or elsewhere.

Such legislation is now before congress and will permit American importers to form combinations by which importation of necessary products may be obtained. It will leave us in a position to act in case of other attempts at similar restrictions.

EASTER

Easter's message is a message of hope. It is a season of triumph and rejoicing because of the assurance which comes through the Resurrection.

As has been so well said by Albert M. Ewert, "In city and country; in art domed cathedral and isolated church; in mansion and cabin is sung in harmonious cadence, sometimes soft and low, and then again, in accelerated movement, the glad tidings of Eastertide, with its message of the day and to the day's toilers, "Christ is risen!" So man must ever seek to rise superior to the destructive forces around him. He must measure up to his ideal if he would escape the debasement wrought by the dominence of his lower self. In no other way can he expect to live the ideal life. His inspiration and ideal are found in Christ. His entrance as an amateur into the Christian life is but indicative of his growth into that of an artist. And in this progressive, accumulative ascendency he is conscious of the leadership of one, who, by one decisive stroke of matchless power, in the resurrection from the death, proved his Sonship, authority, superiority and divinity.

"Therefore, however wild and steep your path may be; however mighty the sweep of sinful propensities and habits; however dark and threatening the clouds that cross your path, take heart and press on! Easter's message is for the world. It puts a song in the individual heart. So as nature responds to the touch of spring, may mankind everywhere enter into the spirit of Easter."

We can appreciate at this season what another has said that "The lesson of Easter plainly tells us that we must die to our selfish selves, to our littleness, narrowness, pride and hate, and rise to the eternal life of service."

THE WHITE SHIP BILL

When the senate adopted the bill which was sponsored by Senator Jones, calling for a permanency in the government ownership and operation of the merchant marine which could not be broken, or the ships sold, it was believed that it would fail of adoption. That hasn't as yet received its final test, but the indications that the house would present a measure which would upset the senate plan are bearing fruit in the shape of the decision by the house subcommittee to report the White bill for dealing with the shipping problem.

Under the terms of the White bill provisions would be made for the building up of the merchant marine but with the idea of finally having the vessels turned over to private owners. This may not indicate that the government is going to get rid of its ships as quickly as might be desired, but that is the ultimate object.

By this bill it would also be possible for Americans to borrow up to three quarters of the cost of vessels from the government, the rate to be at 2 1-2 per cent. and such a loan to continue for a period of 20 years. The purpose is to make possible for Americans to build or acquire ships which will be up to date, meet speed requirements and in every way be able to compete with modern vessels under other flags.

The aim is to not only keep the American flag upon the high seas but to increase the number of vessels flying it. The White measure is a bill that is far more satisfactory than the Jones bill, but though the shipping problem needs prompt and favorable treatment there's no certainty that the two houses of congress can come to an agreement concerning it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

May it be a bright and happy Easter.

The man on the corner says: There's always two guesses when people refuse to step on the scales.

Tammany democratic leaders and candidates have gone or are going south, and they refer to it as a vacation.

All that is needed is a continuation of the fine April weather to make the Easter parade a big success.

There are always those who think tax reduction is not worth while because it is not large enough. But it is to be remembered that while tax reduction can be indirectly effected by a surplus such is not possible through a deficit.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The poets of all ages have been wont to rave over the springtime and from their point of view, are perfectly justified. Is it not much the same with us, the more practical fellows—so called? Are we not a bit inclined to go into ecstacies over the glorious season with its birds, foliage and flowers? But it is not exactly with the same tone that the poets are wont to use. While they are seeing the birds come out of the south we are seeing the garden tools come out of the garage or summer house. What delight it is going to give to the backbone that has hibernated for several months to spade up the garden! How hard it is for us to wait patiently for the gladsome hour! What joy it will be in fighting rose bugs, Colorado beetles and their numerous offspring, caterpillars and their flock of little children. And after the garden has been planted and saved from destruction, what heavenly music will come from that celestial oriole, commonly called the lawn mower! Oh the Good Old Summertime!

A Striking article appeared in a recent magazine on "Business as a Civilizer." It certainly shows us that in one direction, at least, the "good old times" have been made a good deal better. "Forty years ago," says this writer "a boy without enough brains or enough money was destined for business." College men for the most part went into the professions. All this has been radically changed. Business itself is regarded as a profession, and many branches of it require ability of the highest quality and training. Once it was said that a man with scruples was out of place in business. The cardinal principle was to get the better of somebody. Now this has radically changed. It has been discovered that the source of prosperity is the gaining the reputation of candor and honesty.

Much has been said of late about slackers at the polls. Considerable light has been thrown on this matter by the illuminating article in the National Municipal Review by Dr. William B. Monro, professor of government in Harvard university. Prof. Monro puts an emphasis on the moral side of the question that the professional politician is likely to overlook. Is there anything in civic morality that makes it the duty of a man to vote unless that ballot will contribute to the greater effectiveness of popular government? Is any real service rendered by herding the crowd to the polls under the urge of militant propaganda? Men and women who go to the ballot-box under the urge of the politician's whiplash are only a menace to popular government. An examination of the register's list will show that those of the community most capable of voting intelligently are those who do vote.

It would seem from the testimony of experts that the whole question of criminology is undergoing a radical change. The idea of retribution so long the controlling motive in punishment is largely giving place to reformation, which is far more humane, and gives more stability to human society. The effect of crime is three fold, looking at it from the legal standpoint: (1) the guilty party, (2) the party injured, and (3) human society in general. It seems perfectly reasonable that the underlying motive of punishment should be the best interests of human society in general. Now in the case of a capital offense, will the best interests of society be subserved by putting the criminal to death, or to make his punishment of a reformatory character, so that he may be a useful citizen? In other words, is it better to kill him or to make a man of him? The latter, at least is worth trying.

On one occasion when General Washington was receiving an ovation in New York city, his attention was attracted to a beautiful child in his mother's arms. The mother saw that glance, and, smiling, lifted up her little one as the great general passed by. He paused a moment, then took the little one up in his arms and kissed him. A great shout rent the air as the people saw this beautiful human touch. Then and there the mother decided that her little one should be christened "Washington." But little did she think that her child, in the providence of God, would become a household word throughout the civilized world. Not because she had given him the name of "Washington," but because he was Washington Irving. America will never forget that while George Washington was her first great general, Washington Irving was her first great writer to gain an international reputation. This child was born April 3, 1783.

Kindness is one avenue through which love finds expression. Drummond, whose book on this subject was the best seller of the day, makes this fact perfectly clear. His treatment of the subject quite agrees with the difinition of love which Professor Julius H. Seelye of Amherst college used to impress upon his students. "Love," he said "was the leaving of self for the good of another." This conformed to the old Anglo-Saxon word from which "love" is derived. The Latin word "Amo" expresses the coarser idea of "love," as we find in "amatory"—a derivative. The "voluntary leaving of self for the good of another" represents its higher ethical value. And perhaps "kindness" reveals that permanent characteristic of the word "love" better than any other. That it is the highest expression of the human personality hardly needs any argument in its support.

Probably the word "love" has more attributes than any other in the English language. One old Greek writer came very near to the Christian conception of "love" when he compared it to the sun. To make this emphatic he drew an hollow circle. Instead of writing the word "Sun" in the center of that circle he substituted the word "LOVE" in capital letters. Then he drew tangents as thickly as they could be arranged on the outside of this rim, representing, not the rays of the sun, but what they stood for in the spiritual world: the attributes of "love." These rays stood for everything that a cultivated thinker could impute to that mighty emotion that we call "love." This celebrated ancient writer would quite agree with Professor Henry Drummond that Love was the Greatest Thing in the World. He would likewise be in perfect harmony with that glowing description of "love" that Saint Paul has made immortal in the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians.

Did you ever think that improvement in travelling conditions not only tends to banish distance, but also mutual misunderstandings between nations and the different sections of any one great nation? When it was impossible, or exceedingly difficult, for one nation to get reliable information as to how other people lived, they were liable to rest a good deal upon imagination or on untrustworthy evidence on the part of unscrupulous travellers who longed to make a sensation. It is quite probable that the English people have a better opinion of Americans since they have been able through better means of travel to visit us and see us at different angles. New England has most decidedly better opinions of Texans and Californians since the railroads have gotten these two sections of our country nearer together. With the automobile and the airplane in a few years we shall all be uncles and aunts.

NEW EXPEDITION TO VENEZUELA

An "aerial" exploration that has no connection with aviation, but with bird life, is about to be launched in South America by the National Geographic Society-Carnegie Museum Venezuelan Expedition.

Ernest G. Holt, who will head the expedition, is in Washington conferring with Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, preliminary to the study of the first "good will flyers" of Pan-America—such as the warblers and shore birds that summer in the United States and winter in Venezuela.

Original American "Explorers"

These birds, the original American explorers, have their winter homes in areas of Venezuela which Mr. Holt's party will explore.

Mr. Holt will leave the United States from New Orleans where he will sail for La Guaira. In northern Venezuela he will bowl along in motor cars over the fine roads which the government has built in the inhabited areas of the Republic. But when he pushes into the largely unexplored areas south of the broad Orinoco he will take to canoes to penetrate the thickly forested country where one expedition lost lives and explorers have been turned back by hardships of tropical travel. In the mountainous regions pack mules will be used.

Bird study is the major objective; but observations of the land, its animals and other life forms, and its amazing variety of tropical trees will also be made.

To Study "Bird Zones."

Birds flying blithely overhead seem, to the envy of landbound laymen to have complete "freedom of the air." But birds have distinctive habitats, comparable to wheat belts and timber lines, and it is by exploring cross sections of these life zones that Mr. Holt hopes to make an exhaustive survey of the bird life of Venezuela.

The bird explorer is interested in the origin of existing forms, in the distribution of species, and to arrive at these facts he must find what species now exist in given localities. North America knows some birds, the scarlet tanager, for example, which have originated in the Tropics but now are familiar to temperate climes. Certain of the West Indies Island which are remnants of a former continental mountain chain are believed to have been the highways for the dispersal of various kinds of birds. Further studies will determine these and hundreds of other facts dear to the students of bird lore, which facts also may shed light upon the making and changing over of our continent at various geologic times.

Beauty and the Grotesque.

In the course of his study Mr. Holt will amass photographs and collections of such Wonder birds as the Scarlet Ibis with its brilliant red plumage which is the envy of the textile dye maker; the Cock-of-the-Rock with its curious double crest formed of two groups of feathers pressed together; and the ungainly Jabiru Stork, with its white plumage and naked black head and neck, which stands higher than our Sandhill Crane.

Venezuela is a happy hunting ground of the ornithologist because of its variety of climatic and physical zones, ranging from mountain peaks that pierce the sky at some 17,000 feet to the low plains along the sluggish Orinoco. There also are arid regions, where the cactus and thornbush hold sway, as in our own West; the llano country, carpeted with grasses and scrub trees; and the vast, humid and swampy delta of the Orinoco, bordered by mangroves.

Amazing Variety of Trees.

"However, the unexplored area, lying between the Rio Caura and Rio Branco, is a region of dense forests. In those forests are scores of kinds of trees, wood from which some day will be as highly prized as mahogany, walnut, and teak are today. The chicle is there, already of economic value for its gum, but providing also a beautiful, deep wine-colored wood which has been known to endure for hundreds of years.

Mahogany has forged ahead of other tropical woods in popularity because it floats, and thus can be removed from otherwise inaccessible forests. But as the world's timber demands increase, ways will be found to transport many other tropical woods to civilization centers, and dense forests which now are called jungle will become prized commercial timber stands.

And the perils of jungle travel?

For this area lies just north of the Brazilian border, and east of the region where, near the town of Esmeralda, the giant basins of the Orinoco and the Amazon so overlap that the flip of a bird's wing may determine whether a drop of rain will reach the sea at the Orinoco's delta, or flounder half way across the continent to emerge at the island-flecked mouth of the Amazon.

Insects, Not Jaguars, Perilous.

Mr. Holt is not greatly worried about jaguars, anacondas, and boa constrictors.

"I have recently traveled 16,000 miles through the interior of Brazil," he said. "By count we saw, in that distance, just eight snakes. Other experience in tropical America leads me to believe the jaguar will not harm the traveler unless the animal is molested."

"What then is your chief difficulty?" he was asked.

"Disease," he replied. "disease and its chief cause—ubiquitous insects. Mosquitoes are the real peril of the Tropics, while nine-tenths of the naturalists' discomforts are due to ticks, harvest-mites, fleas that burrow in the feet, and other parasites."

Fellowship of Prayer

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

By Rev. Jay T. Stocking, D. D., Federal Council of Churches in America — Copyright 1928.

"The Living Christ"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Because I live, ye shall live also" (John 14:19).

Read: John 14: 12-24.

MEDITATION: Yesterday we thought of the dying Christ. But it is in the living Christ that we have our hope. He died on Calvary nineteen hundred years ago that He might live everywhere today. Nothing has so moved men and strengthened them as His living spirit. It has inspired the greatest deeds of men. "Not I live, but Christ that liveth in me," said St. Paul. In the sense of His presence men have done the impossible. What means the gradual conquest of suffering, ignorance, and hatred but that Christ is living in the world and carrying on His saving healing and redeeming work? Because He lives, we are full of hope for the future.

PRAYER: O God, give us sight to behold our unseen Lord. And may we have such fellowship with Him in sorrow and in victory that we may know the secret of His strength and peace and see even in our darkest and most difficult hour the shining of the eternal Light. Amen.

Sunday Morning Talk

He Is Risen.

In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre, and behold there was a great earthquake; for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door and sat upon it. His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow. And the angel answered and said unto the women, "Fear not yet; for I know ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here; for he is risen, as he said. Come and see the place where the Lord lay." Matt. 28: 1, 2, 3, 5, 6.

It was with the deep sorrow that Mary went to the sepulchre that morning, one of the most glorious mornings that this world has ever known. A risen Saviour and oh, the joy that filled the hearts of those sorrowing ones when they again beheld the one that had been laid in the grave but a few days. And today our hearts should be filled with joy for He is the same risen Christ as He was at that time. We of today have that great and wonderful promise, Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.

May we, like those disciples, after the resurrection, it was their one desire above all other things to follow in their Master's footsteps, and win others to follow Him who is the way, the life eternal.

May our Easter mean more to us this season than ever before. May it mean a full consecration to Him who hath loved us, who died for us and has risen. May we each day of our lives follow in striving to win those for whom He died.

Stories That Recall Others

The 11th Commandment

The pastor of the church recently conducted a revival and one of his ambitions was to make the meetings of interest to young folk, particularly the children. Two active members of the congregation are the parents of little Louis, a sharp minded youngster who, apparently, encounters home difficulties occasionally.

When, one night, the minister had succeeded in getting a number of children in the front rows, he asked several of them to repeat the ten commandments. Many of them succeeded but when Louis was called on he rose and, looking about for his parents, shouted:

"Thou shalt not whip!"

Latest in New Theories

A teacher had given a number of examinations. These were some of the answers she found:

"In case of drowning, put on dry clothes as quickly as possible and yell for help."

"When chickens get old their teeth fall out, so they eat stones, and the stones fall into the old holes left by the teeth and make new teeth."

"A molar is what my daddy is in the factory."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

More About Woodchuck Hill

Mr. Editor: I have read E. C. Peck's nice letter about Woodchuck Hill and that district. I know every foot of the ground Mr. Peck went over and I followed him all the way.

But he was a number of years ahead of me. Even before I was born the people he met had passed away or moved before my time, that is the most of them. I remember Wm. Lyon and the Perry Bruthert place. The Elias Williams place just north of Wm. Lyon's was bought by my grandfather in 1864 and he lived there until 1896 instead, as Mr. Peck had it, from '64 to '69.

I hope Mr. Peck will pardon me for calling his attention to the way he has the name spelled. It should be Daniel Boyens instead of Daniel Brown.

My uncle Charles Boyens was agent at the Versailles depot for many years and now lives in Occum and my mother lives in Norwich. That is all that is left of a family of six children.

Mr. Peck speaks of a school house near Lyon's four corners. I never heard of one being there but there was one at Williford's four corners about a mile from there where Cyril Whitford made cigars. Mr. Whitford was a cripple so he learned to make cigars and did a good business at it in those times. Going back to the Williams place and going north from the house, there was a steep short hill called Bennett hill. At the top of the hill on the left was a piece of land that the Williams family reserved for some church society to build a church on, and I guess they still hold that right. The church never was built.

Now a little more about Fort Ned. I would like to know more about the Nipmuck trail. If I remember right it was on the east side of the river from Hanover to Fort Ned. There it crossed the ford and went up the other side of the river through Egbert Bingham's woods. There was a good path there when I was a boy. Beside this path is where the small pox patients are buried. I have visited the graves many times years ago. I guess it is all grown up with brush and woods now.

I see in the Social Corner a member that was a school mate of mine when I attended school at the red school house and I was glad to know that there are a few of us still living. I would like to know your name, Sis, God bless you.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Prickly Porky's Prickly Cousin.

The well protected, you will see,
Are independent as can be.

Bobby Coon.

Bobby Coon was all interest. Boomer the Nighthawk had spoken as if Prickly Porky the Porcupine might have a cousin way down in the Tropics. "Boomer," said Bobby "do you mean to tell me that Pricky Porky has a cousin down there?"

"I certainly do," replied Boomer.

"Does Prickly Porky know it?" asked Bobby.

"How should I know?" replied Boomer. "I never asked him."

"Does this cousin of his look like Pricky Porky?" continued Bobby.

"Yes and no," replied Boomer.

"What do you mean by that?" demanded Bobby.

"Well," replied Boomer, "he has a prickly coat, but he has a long tail."

Bobby pricked up his little round ears at that. "Did you say a long tail?" he cried.

"Isn't your hearing good tonight?" asked Boomer politely.

"It's perfect," replied Bobby. "But who ever heard of a Porcupine with a long tail?"

"You've heard of it now," retorted Boomer.

"Is that long tail covered with little spears?" inquired Bobby.

"It isn't covered with anything but skin," replied Boomer.

"But Prickly Porky's is," said Bobby. "That is the most dangerous part of Prickly Porky. If you keep away from his tail, you will keep out of trouble. Prickly Porky fights with his tail. So his cousin down there has a long tail. Well, well, well! With a long tail he must be able to fight even better than Prickly Porky."

"Who said he fights with his tail?" demanded Boomer.

"Nobody," replied Bobby. "I'd forgotten you said there was nothing on that tail but the skin. Aren't there even a few teeny, weeny little spears?"

"No," replied Boomer. "That tail is to hang onto branches with and not to fight with. If it was all covered with little spears he couldn't hang onto the branches with it the way he does now."

There was Prickly Porky himself, shuffling along clumsily

Bobby looked puzzled. "What does he want to hang onto branches for? Prickly Porky doesn't hang onto branches."

"Well, Prickly Porky isn't Prickly Porky's cousin," replied Boomer dryly. "There is no more reason why he shouldn't have a long tail than there is why your cousin, Nosey the Coati, shouldn't have a long tail. If Old Mother Nature didn't think they had a use for long tails she wouldn't have given them long tails. Old Mother Nature doesn't make any mistakes."

"Ho, ha, ha!" laughed Bobby Coon. "Ho, ho, ho!"

"What are you laughing at?" demanded Boomer rather suspiciously. "Are you laughing at me?"

"No, oh, no!" cried Bobby, hastily. "No, indeed! I wouldn't laugh at you for the world, Boomer. I was laughing to think how Prickly Porky would look with a long tail."

"Did some one mention my name?" a voice grunted.

Bobby and Boomer turned. There was Prickly Porky himself, shuffling along clumsily.

POETRY

The Easter Lily

The lily rests for many a month
Within the bulb entombed
In dust and darkness, where it once
So radiantly bloomed,
Until upon its sepulchre
God's shining finger lies—
His sunshine, reaching through the gloom
And bidding it arise.

It twists the bulb and breaks the clod,
And lifts above the mold
A bud unfolding in a flower
Of fragrant white and gold,
And from the altar Easter Day
In all its pure perfection,
It proves anew the miracle
Of death and resurrection.

—Minna Irving.

Strange Clamor

Wake up in my heart the strange thing
That makes the wild clamor of spring,
The strange clamor, the music that seems
Tongued by the hounds of dreams.

The rain makes it, and the mist,
And there's a note of it hidden and slow
In the buds mouth, being kist
By the first ardor and glow.

Oh, heavily strain of passion awake!
The mountains, rivers, forests are alive;
The meadows quicken with it, and its spell
Is in the waves that drive.

Does so the sun sing in his state on high,
And the moon and the sweet stars splight?
The white roads carry it, the breeze
Is a clamor of symphonies.

Wake in my heart its echoes burning strong,
And I am clamor, as the flowers and spray
Of ocean—and the warbling, wild song
Of insects and birds at play.

—Baltimore Sun.

A farmer had agreed to deliver 20 hens to the local market. Only 18, however, were sent, and it was almost evening before the 20th bird was brought in by the farmer.

"Man," said the butcher, "you're late with this one."

"Aye, agreed the other. "But, ye see, she didn't lay till this afternoon."—Tit-Bits.

"I keep boarders," said the butcher's new customer. "Pick out some of your toughest turkeys, if you please."

The delighted butcher very willingly complied with the unusual request, and said in his politest tones:

"These are the tough ones, ma'am."

Upon which the customer coolly put her hand on the remaining pile and declared:

"I'll take these!"—Montreal Family Herald.

As a further step in the democratization of the German army, Wilhelm Heye, commander-in-chief of the defense forces, on his return from the United States issued an order that in future a general—on or off duty—was to be addressed as "herr general" and that the former appellation of "your excellency" was to be dropped as being obsolete.

More than half of Germany's revenue for 1928 is appropriated for expenditure resulting from the world war which ended ten years ago. War pensions and allowances account for 33.6 per cent., and reparations payments absorb 23 per cent., a total of 56.6 per cent. And this is likely to last for another generation.

Three flat-bottomed river steamers, specially constructed for shallow waterways, have been built at Cosel, near Breslau, Germany, for Colombian account. The boats are intended for transport service on the Magdalena river, which abounds in rapids, and on which navigation is very difficult. Trial trips on the river Oder, near Breslau, having been very successful, the boats have now been shipped to Colombia.

Thumb prints as trade-marks have been adopted by some of London's most exclusive dress designers with the aim of outwitting smaller dealers who retail copies of their gown creations as genuine. "Dress pirates," these shop keepers are called by the dress makers who pride themselves on their originality. One designer of note conceived the idea of protecting her name by the thumb print method and others quickly followed the lead. The prints are generally those of the designer, indelibly on the cloth.

SUES INVESTMENT FIRM ON CLAIM OF FRAUD

R. W. Watkins & Co., who recently opened stock investment offices in New London, and James H. Dunn, its general manager, were made defendants Friday morning in a $1,500 suit alleging fraud, brought by Louis Markow, according to papers served by Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tubbs.

The complaint alleges that on March 1, and prior thereto, the defendants were in the business of selling stocks. Prior to March 1, it is alleged, Manager Dunn represented to Mr. Markow a certain stock known as The National Investors, to be of great value and being purchased in large quantities, and represented that if the plaintiff would purchase some of it the concern would guarantee to sell it within the highest quoted price for that day.

On March 2, according to the plaintiff, he purchased 32 shares of common stock of the above named, and paid $896 for it. The defendant agreed to sell it on a certain day for not less than $35.50 a share. On that day, it is alleged, the plaintiff delivered to the defendant the certificate for such sale and was notified that the stock was sold.

The plaintiff claims that he demanded the money from the sale but was told from time to time that it was coming by mail and that one day there came from Hartford a registered parcel which upon being opened was the certificate of stock back.

Mr. Markow alleges that the stock was never sold and the representations made by the defendants that it had been were for the purpose of fraud and deception.

DIED ON ROOF WHILE ENGAGED IN PAINTING

While painting the roof of a shed at his home at 57 Merchants avenue Friday afternoon Joseph Paradis, 56, dropped dead at 5:45 o'clock from cerebral hemorrhage. Gildersleeve of Norwich was called and cerebral hemorrhage was given as the cause of his death. Undertaker George G. Grant of Taftville was given permission by Medical Examiner Gildersleeve to take charge of the body.

Mr. Paradis was born in Canada and came to Taftville with his parents 1882, having lived in th etown ever since. He was employed by the J. B. Martin company of Taftville. Besides his wife he is survived by six brothers, John, Gustave, Louis, William and Rages Paradis, all of Taftville and Ovide Paradis of Springfield. His parents and a brother died in Taftville within a period of nine weeks from Friday.

WILL VOTE IN JUNE IN CITY COURT ROOM

Appeals made to the selectmen and to the republican political powers in the city on behalf of aged voters, male or female, and women voters, who found it hard to climb the long flights of stairs to the town hall on voting days, have resulted in a decision on the part of the selectmen to use the city court room instead of the town hall for the poling place in the central district in the June election.

First Selectman William S. Murray made the announcement Friday that the selectmen would exercise their power to designate the voting place and they considered it advisable now to use the city court room. This is on the ground floor and is easily accessible so that reaching it will offer no difficulty to even the most feeble voter. The benches can be moved and other arrangement of the furniture in room made so as to accommodate the voting machines and the other necessary paraphernalia of the election.

It will be the first time in the history of the town so far as known that voting will not be in the town hall in this district.

OBITUARY

Lyman L. Chapman

Lyman Lester Chapman, 67, president of The L. L. Chapman Co., well known local harness dealers, died suddenly Friday evening shortly after 8.30 o'clock at the W. W. Backus hospital. Mr. Chapman, who resided at No. 10 Union street, was taken to the hospital Thursday morning, when his condition became serious after an attack of the grippe. Members of the family visited him Friday evening. Shortly after they left the hospital Mr. Chapman unexpectedly passed from earthly life.

There was not probably in the state of Connecticut a better known man in his line of business than Mr. Chapman and neither was there in Norwich a business that was built up as rapidly from a humble beginning to large proportions as that owned and conducted by him.

Mr. Chapman came from one of the oldest families in Ledyard where he was born July 28, 1860. In maternal lines, his line of descent was into the

LYMAN L. CHAPMAN

Lester, Lamb and Lyman families all of whom have been more or less prominent in the town of Ledyard for a number of generations.

He passed most of his boyhood days in Ledyard, where he attended the district schools and with the exception of one winter, in North Stonington, his schooling was all received in his native town. He received the customary training of farmers' sons of his time and early in life had a good practical knowledge of hard work. During the winter season he attended school and in the summer he worked on the farm.

When a young man of about 17 years he went to Litchfield county and took the position of overseer on a farm in the town of Goshen. Remaining there sometime he went to Toledo, Ohio, where for a short time he was engaged in a manufacturing business. This venture not proving a success, he entered the employ of what was then the American Union Telegraph Co., in the construction and repair department. He was in this line of work for about eight years, during which time he returned to Connecticut and was employed by the Western Union Telegraph company.

In the later eighties he purchased the livery business of Oliver R. Buddington at No. 160 West Main street which represented his beginning in that line of business. At that time his stock consisted of three horses. His push and energy were soon evident in the growth of the business, which in 1891, was removed to Bath street, and where at that time was purchased and added the livery stock of D. S. Tweedy.

Subsequent growth and additions brought about the extensive business which he conducted for years. His was the most extensive saddlery business in New London county at that time. It was a large and modern horseshoeing business and a carriage and wagon repository. The livery department comprised a half hundred horses, each kept for some particular purpose, and representing the various types of horses required to suit the numerous patrons of the large and well kept livery business. During the summer seasons Mr. Chapman conducted a livery barn at Eastern Point. He made his business a study and built it up from a very humble beginning. Of late years, with the passing of the old time livery stable, Mr. Chapman conducted a harness shop on Bath street.

Politically he was a republican and fraternally he was a member of Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. E. He is survived by his wife, who was Florence Kean, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Devine of Bristol, this state. There are several grandchildren.

Charles S. Peckham

The death of Charles S. Peckham, 59, a resident of this city for practically all his life, occurred suddenly about half an hour after midnight Friday at his boarding place in Mohegan. He was seized with a heart attack from which he failed to recover.

Mr. Peckham was born in January, 1869, and formerly resided for many years in the Laurel Hill section of the city. He was a member of Thames Valley council, United Commercial Travelers, and was of a genial and companionable disposition which made him a host of friends who held him in high esteem. He was one of the veteran members of the West Side Pinochle club.

He is survived by a son, Everett S. Peckham, and a daughter, Mrs. Walfrid Bjorn, both of this city.

Judge Robert B. Archibald.

Judge Roberts Burns Archibald of Jacksonville, Fla., who has a summer place at Westerly and had spent several summers in this city in the Warren street neighborhood, died March 27 at his home in Florida, according to word that has been received here. He had been in failing health for several weeks.

Judge Archibald was born in Scotland but had lived the greater part of his life in Jacksonville where he was a practicing attorney during his active

A Million of your Neighbors

Over a million breakfasts were cooked on Crawford Ranges this morning. Some of these breakfasts were cooked and eaten by people you know—right in your own home town, possibly on your block.

They were good breakfasts, quickly and economically cooked — as "Crawford Breakfasts" always are.

Crawford Ranges were first made in 1855. They were good ranges then. They are better ranges now. Each year of the seventy-three has marked a step forward in design and construction. Today they are as perfect cooking machines as three generations of experience and the finest stove factory in the world can make them—for you.
